Let Us Mind Our Business

Married and Jumped South Dakota to Wall St. When a Man Scribbles

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

CHINA would like the League of Nations to stop what Chinese call "Russian invasion and Russian massacres."

The Chinese have learned what war through the air means—comparative safety, easy invasion for the enemy; danger, death and helplessness for those attacked.

Uncle Sam, of course, is invited to interfere and tell Russia what she must do.

It is our business tell Russia, under the circumstances, exactly as much as we should expect Russia to tell US, if, for instance, we had marines in Nicaragua, or battleships in a foreign port. And we should expect Russia to tell us NOTHING.

Russia's business is RUSSIA'S business, not ours.

Before we undertake to interfere with a nation making war intelligently and efficiently through the air, it would be a good idea for us to learn something about air war on our own account. We don't know anything about it yet.

In fact, our army and navy aren't quite sure that the airship really amounts to anything, except as an "auxiliary" weapon.

We should cure ourselves of that delusion before interfering with any people that understand modern war.

Miss Klinger, 18 years old, fond of flying, and Mr. Babcock, of Mineola, Long Island, were married in the air, far up, the plane going 110 miles an hour.

When the wedding was over the bride, bridegroom and best man all jumped out of the airplane with parachutes, landing safely.

Interesting, but too much excitement, perhaps, for one day.

In old days the bride found sufficient excitement in a handful of rice and a shoe tied to the back of a carriage. However, it is better to begin marriage with a jump in a parachute for excitement rather than end it with a jump to Reno or Paris for a divorce.

The President and some newspapers have asked governors of states what they mean to do in the way of useful work to provide employment. The idea is, "What are you going to do to make up for that smash in Wall Street?"

W. C. Bulow, governor of South Dakota, replies that South Dakota is not particularly worried about what happens to Wall Street. He has observed that when things happen to South Dakota, Wall Street takes it calmly.

He says that tomorrow—Thanksgiving—"South Dakota will give thanks to Almighty God for the blessings they enjoy, and be especially thankful for the fact that they are not dependent for their bread and butter upon the wheat grown, or cows milked in Wall Street."

And the Dakotas might be glad some day to have money and engineers out of Wall Street to show them how to use those hundreds of millions of tons of lignite now going to waste.

The fuel turned into electric power and the electric power used in factories might be better for the Dakotas than raising wheat on land not fit for wheat.

You might buy of autograph dealers a signature of Herbert Hoover on a sheet of paper with many little queer, geometrical diagrams scratched on the paper while listening to a visitor.

Those diagrams usually mean that the man making them is not listening "very hard."

If Rockefeller or Ford called to tell the President of a plan to put ten million men to work at good wages, he would listen and wouldn't do any scribbling as he listened.

Not a gay stock market yesterday. A prize ring gentleman who has taken the count of nine is rarely at his best when he rises. But Wall Street has three days of cool head, three days to be thankful that things were not worse, three days to remember the wise words written on the Greek temple: "Nothing in excess."

In Wall Street that means especially, excess of watered stock.

Underground, near the marshy shore of the Bay of Biscay, old Clemenceau would be interested to hear that the German newspapers say, "We should have won the war, if we had had the greatest Frenchman since Napoleon."

Napoleon wasn't French, as it happens. He was an Italian transplanted to Corsica, never learned to speak or write French correctly.

What would interest Clemenceau is the fact that Germany calls him the greatest warrior since Napoleon.

And he began, notin his youth as Napoleon did, but took charge of the greatest war the world ever saw when he was long past 70 and WON it.

Leaders Tell Hoover They Will Spend $2,000,000,000 to Develop Business

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—A construction and maintenance program of nearly $2,000,000,000 for the coming year was outlined today to President Hoover by spokesmen for the public utilities of the country.

This is an expansion of more than $100,000,000 over expenditures for this same purpose this year and the report on it was received with gratification by the President as a material contribution to his plan for continuing business progress in the face of the fall in stock market prices.

Among the utilities officials who met with the chief executive at the White House were Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., and Samuel Insull of Chicago, one of the largest holders of public utilities interests in the country.

Charles L. Edger, head of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, said that those attending were "leaving the meeting with an unusually confident feeling about the future."

HUNT GIRL IN WORCESTER KILLINGS

Police Seek Cause of Casey's Quarrel With Woman; Poison Theories Eliminated

Worcester, Nov. 27—In their investigation of the deaths of Detective Chief James J. Casey and Mrs. Dora Bingham, a mystery that grows more baffling hourly, police today sought a young Webster girl with whom the detective had been friendly.

Casey danced with this girl at a Worcester roadhouse last Friday night and afterward quarreled with Mrs. Bingham, who was present.

Two Worcester policemen sought the girl without success in Webster after interviewing the proprietor of the inn. Her identity is not known to the authorities.

While the search for the girl went forward, Dr. Ernest L. Hunt, associate medical examiner, to the consternation of the authorities, exploded every theory they had as to the cause of the deaths.

After examining the contents of the dead man's body, Dr. Hunt reported he found no trace of any alkaloid poison. He definitely eliminated cyanida of potassium.

POLICE NAB FOUR MEN IN PLANT AT WORCESTER

15,000 Bottles of Beer Seized by Raiders in Biggest Haul Made in East

Worcester, Nov. 27—The old Bowler Bros. brewery building here, supposed to have been dismantled when prohibition went into effect, was today found to be operating with a capacity of 20,000 bottles a week.

Federal agents raided the building and found what their leader John J. Hall characterized as the biggest brewery encountered in the East since the Volstead Act went into effect.

Active operations were being carried out on the third floor, where four men were surprised and arrested, and a quantity of beer and paraphernalia seized.

The federal agents confiscated 15,000 bottles of beer, 3000 gallons not yet bottled, six vats of 2000 gallons each capacity only partially full, a filter, pasteurizing machine, and a quantity of bottles, caps and other devices. There were 19 empty malt drums, and 300 bales of hops.

The men arrested gave their names as Otis J. Stevens, 44, Port Chester, N. Y.; Charles Stahl, 20, Anthony Ruseckan, 44, and Frank Rice, 32, the last three of Worcester.

Stevens gave his occupation as a brewer.

YALE STUDENT TAKES POISON

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 27—Marshall Taylor, a sophomore in Yale College whose home was in Jacksonville, Fla., was found dead in his bed today, a suicide by poison.

Official finding was withheld although the police gave the information that death had been due to a quick acting poison, a few grains of which were found on a pillow.

Taylor is understood to have been in poor health. He had told his room mates and close friends that he was not feeling well.

J. R. Walker, Taylor's roommate, said that he was awakened during the night by Taylor talking, as he thought, in his sleep, and he arose and shook Taylor, who then quieted down.

Taylor was the son of Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, prominent Jacksonville physician. He was 22.

BAUER TO BLOW OFF RUM LID

Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn today promised the most gigantic liquor expose the Shoe City has ever seen.

The mayor, whose term ends in January, intends to fade out of the picture as liquor sellers wail and gnash their teeth.

He announced that for weeks detectives assigned by him have been at work in Lynn, compiling a mass of evidence which, when made public, will rock the city to its foundations.

No one, man, woman or child who may be guilty, will be spared, according to the latest pronunciamento of the mayor.

"You can bet," said Mayor Bauer, "on me. I never got stuck yet."

Possibly he had forgotten his recent threats against high school girls who wore no stockings, or his campaign to efface cigarette advertisements portraying a sailor giving a girl a cigarette.

At any rate, he states he "has the goods," consisting of photographs of women and children engaged in rum running, together with several small books filled with address and numbers of automobiles.

Among the addresses, the mayor claims to have are those of prominent men of Lynn, including leaders in business, civic and fraternal life. He also claims to have photographs of automobiles loaded with liquor.

"You haven't seen anything yet," he said. "Watch my smoke. The last month of my term of office will reveal plenty."

Cloudy, Cold Is Holiday Forecast

Partly cloudy and colder is the official weather forecast for Thanksgiving Day.

Light rain is expected tonight in southern New England, while rain and snow flurries are expected in northern New England.

Temperatures are higher today over nearly three-fourths of the country, but changes to colder have occurred in Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Wisconsin and Michigan. Minimum temperatures last night were above freezing in nearly all sections, with the exception of parts of the Rocky Mountain states, North Dakota, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Maine.

2 LIFERS QUIT STATE PRISON

Two "lifers" who entered the state prison in their youth today emerged to freedom as middle-aged men, released by executive pardon of the governor and council.

Sabatino Fantasia of Worcester and Joseph H. Sexton of Springfield were the prisoners.

Fantasia, who was 23 years old when sent to prison for a second degree murder in Worcester, has been in the Charlestown institution for 19 years and part of a month.

Fantasia was convicted of killing Hovannes Menzorian in a pub-

Cocktail for Antis Has Arrived

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—A cocktail, described as one "that satisfies and does not inebriate," has been introduced to Washington dry circles at a W. C. T. U. meeting by Mrs. James M. Doran, wife of the commissioner of prohibition.

Mrs. Doran in introducing the beverage, non-alcoholic, of course, said the recipe was obtained from a railway chef and that she planned to include it in a volume she intended to publish under the title "A Book of Juices."

Vic Harding Now Gaining Rapidly

Dr. Thomas K. Richards reported today that Victor Harding, Harvard end, was out of danger and recovering rapidly from the operation for a ruptured spleen suffered in the Harvard-Yale game. He has a good appetite, sleeps well and there is no further cause to worry about him, says the physician.

Allan Hoover Is in White House

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—Allan Hoover, son of the President, arrived unexpectedly in Washington today, to spend Thanksgiving with his parents at the White House.

It had been announced previously that Allan would remain in Cambridge, where he is attending the Harvard School of Business Administration.

Flier Killed as Plane Falls in City Street

Westbury, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP)—James Mooni, 20, of Brooklyn, was fatally injured when the airplane he was piloting crashed near the police station here today. He was rushed to Nassau hospital, Mineola, where he died shortly after he was admitted.

Witnesses said the aviator evidently tried to jump in his parachute but was unable to do so.

Police Shillelahs Rout Dublin Parade

Dublin, Ireland, Nov. 27 (AP)—A procession of about 1700 unemployed, which was marching to the Dail Eireann today, was stopped by plain clothes police armed with shillelahs.

The parade crumpled and the marchers ran helter-skelter for shelter.

Jail for Hubby Who Ran Auto Over Wife

Providence, Nov. 27—Found guilty of running over his own wife with his automobile in which another woman was riding with him, and failing to stop, Aime Couture, 33, of Riverside, East Providence, was today sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Couture, who surrendered at the East Providence police station after an alarm had been sent out for him, was found guilty of leaving the scene of an accident by Judge Everett Higgins in East Providence court.

He told police he did not stop after knocking down his wife because He wanted to protect the other woman. Couture was driving his automobile with his fair passenger last night when his wife unexpectedly appeared at Six Corners, East Providence.

Spying the guest in the car, Mrs. Couture ran into the street and ordered her husband to stop the machine. He refused, but claims he swung wide in an attempt to avoid hitting her.

One fender struck Mrs. Couture and she was felled to the street. Mrs. Couture told police her injuries were slight and displayed much more interest in the identity of the other woman, who, she said, was unknown to her.

PENNSYLVANIA CUTS MELON

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad has offered stockholders rights to subscribe for about $72,000,000 in common stock at the par value of $50 a share, in the ratio of one new share for each eight shares held.

On the basis of last night's closing price of $83.87 for the stock on the New York Stock Exchange, the rights to purchase the new stock are worth approximately $4 per share. The offer, therefore, is equivalent to cutting a melon of about $45,000,000.

the capital expenditure requirements made necessary by the situation in our district," he stated, "and listened to the same reports of every other section of the United States.

"The question of wages of working forces didn't come into the discussion, because the utilities companies have no intention of a reduction. We are in our operations favored with a very stable working force with very little turnover, and our program of expansion will keep all of the organization busy the next year."

THREE REPORTS.

Matthew S. Sloan, of New York, president of the National Electric Light Association, summarized the utilities situation in a statement to the President based, he explained, upon a survey of the electric light and power, gas and street railway industries, made yesterday at a conference in New York.

The President had asked for a report and the utilities leaders requested that they be permitted to come here to make the report, thus adding an unexpected conference to the many which have been held during the past ten days.

Separate reports for the main factors of the whole industry were made by Mr. Sloan for the electric light and power corporations; B. J. Mullaney, for the American Gas Association, and J. N. Shannahan, of Omaha, for the electric railways.

Mr. Sloan placed 1930 conditions for the electric light and power companies at $865,000,000 for expansion of facilities, an increase of $65,000,000 over corresponding expenditures for this year. This is exclusive of maintenance costs.

GAS EXPANSION

For the gas industry, Mr. Mullaney estimated construction expenditures at $425,000,000, a 6 per cent increase over this year's total, and maintenance of existing facilities at $50,000,000.

The report by Mr. Shannahan said the street railway companies were spending approximately $1,000,000 a day for maintenance, betterments and expansion and expected to maintain or exceed this rate of expenditure during 1930.

Mr. Sloan said a careful consideration of existing conditions justified the expenditure of $5,000,000,000 only by the light and power companies in anticipation of the growing requirements of industry for power and consumers generally for increased electric service.

"The customer contacts and day to-day experiences of the companies represented in the conference reflect no disturbing change in business conditions or trends," said Mr. Mullaney's report. "They suggest no reason at this time for curtailing the contemplated expenditures for the construction and extension of gas service facilities. On the contrary, it is conceivable that cheaper money, as predicted by many forecasters in economics, might accelerate construction, especially on the natural gas side of the industry."

Making a further statement on behalf of the light association, Mr. Sloan said to the President:

ELECTRIC EXPANSION

"The electric light and power utilities companies of the country contemplate an expenditure during 1930 of $865,000,000 for expansion of their facilities, an increase of $65,000,000 for corresponding expenditure for 1929. This does not include expenditures for maintenance.

"The programs provided for expansion and development in all sections of the United States.

"The electric utilities must maintain themselves in a position to meet increasing demands for service as they develop, and they, therefore, plan their construction well in advance.

"The plans for 1930 are completed, large commitments have already been entered into, and many contracts for equipment and material have been placed. Careful consideration of existing conditions has justified this expansion in anticipation of the growing requirements of industry for power, and consumers generally for increased electric service."

IN GAS INDUSTRY.

B. J. Mullaney, president of the American Gas Association, on behalf of that organization, said:

"Expenditures for construction by the manufactured and natural gas industry of the United States in 1930 will aggregate approximately $425,000,000, an increase of about 6 per cent over the corresponding expenditures in 1929. An additional $50,000,000 will be expended to maintain existing service facilities.

"Construction programs have to anticipate this growth as well as provide for the consequences of new trends and changing conditions, such as more and more large volume industrial use of gas; accelerated use for additional domestic purposes, including house heating, increased density of population, and use where large apartment houses supplant single family dwellings. Expansion is further stimulated by the growing popular recognition of gaseous fuel advantages and by the research that develops better utilization.

"In the Natural Gas branch of the industry, the existence of vast known reserves, coupled with large increases in production, is making long distance transmission economically practicable to a degree not anticipated a few years ago. Developments along this line will undoubtedly continue for many years.

NATURAL GAS EXPANSION

"These and collateral facts, trends, and factors have been coordinated with obvious necessities, in estimating the construction requirements of the industry for 1930.

"The customer contacts and day-to-day experiences of the company's representatives in the conference reflect no disturbing change in business conditions or trends. They suggest no reason at this time for curtailing the contemplated expenditures for the construction and extension of gas service facilities. On the contrary, it is conceivable that cheaper money, as predicted by many forecasters in economics, might accelerate construction, especially on the natural gas side of the industry."

BOSTON MAN PRESENT

J. W. Shannahan of Omaha, made the following statement for the electric railways of the country:

"A canvass of the electric railway companies of the United States, comprising street cars, rapid transit, interurban and bus lines, handling approximately one-sixth billion passengers annually, indicated that 97 per cent of the executive responding to our inquiry do not anticipate that the present stock market situation will affect their capital and maintenance expenditures during the coming year.

"This survey indicates that this industry, which during 1929 is spending approximately $1,000,000 a day for maintenance, betterments and expansions, expects to maintain this rate of expenditure during 1930.

"Those attending the conference included Owen D. Young, General Electric Company; S. Z. Mitchell, Electric Bond & Share Company, New York; Samuel Insull, Commonwealth Edison Company, Chicago; George B. Cortelyou, Consolidated Gas Company, New York; Charles L. Edgar, Edison Electric Illuminating Company, Boston; Frank L. Dame, North American Company, New York, and C. H. Clifford, Stone & Webster, Boston.

wood alcohol and corrosive sublimate and shattered the police theory that the agency of death was contained in food or liquid taken by the victims of the tragedy.

The pathological examination of Mrs. Bingham's organs was still in progress.

The possibility of coal gas or carbon monoxide poisoning was definitely eliminated by the first autopsies. The situation, then, was this:

Two and one-half days after the finding of the bodies of the police official and the Worcester matron in a Spencer "love nest," State and city police and the district attorney's office were without a single clue as to the cause of the tragedy or the manner in which it came about.

Traces of grain alcohol were found in Casey's stomach, proof conclusive that ordinary poison liquor did not cause his death.

"All theories are still good," said Detective Robert T. Hardy, "double murder, murder and suicide, a suicide pact, or accident. We do not know what killed them and until we do know it would be useless to concentrate on any one theory to the exclusion of others.

Admittedly, the search for the Webster girl was being made in the hope that she may have heard threats by the detective or by Mrs. Bingham during the quarrel, but even if such threats should be disclosed at this phase of the investigation, the police, without cause of death established, would be at a loss which way to turn.

Worcester detectives and the medical examiner made still another visit today to Casey's camp on the shore of Brooks pond, where the bodies were found. A fourth minute search of the four-room cottage and adjoining grounds took place.

Owners of nearby camps were also subjected to further questioning in an effort to determine how many times Mrs. Casey visited the place and whether any other person or persons had been seen recently about the camp.

While no poison has yet been found, police were checking sales of drugs and poisons made recently by stores in Worcester, Webster and Spencer.

State Detective Joseph McCarthy, who has been directing the probe, was ill today. Dist.-Atty. Charles S. Hugg is in Fall River, but following the investigation closely by telegram.

Casey was buried today in St. John's cemetery, following funeral services attended only by his widow, a few relatives and a detail of Worcester detectives.

Mrs. Bingham was buried in Hope cemetery.

Fight Took Place in Street, Not Cafe

A report in the Boston Evening American today to the effect that three men were arrested for fighting the St. Regis hotel cafe in Essex st., was declared erroneous by the manager, Harry Fern. His declaration was supported by police records.

The men who gave the police the names of Alfred Rosen, Dorchester, Jacob Levine, Roxbury, and Edward Riley, Brookline, started a fight in Essex st., on the sidewalk opposite the cafe. They were arrested for assault and battery on each other.

Admittedly, the search for the Webster girl was being made in the hope that she may have heard threats by the detective or by Mrs. Bingham during the quarrel, but even if such threats should be disclosed at this phase of the investigation, the police, without cause of death established, would be at a loss which way to turn.

ROTHSTEIN 'BIG SHOT' RIVAL IS TO TESTIFY

"Nigger Nate" Raymond Won $200,000 in a Game With "A. R." and McManus

New York, Nov. 27—Nathan L. Raymond, known as "Nigger Nate" and another gambler or two are scheduled to inject a little "pep" into the proceedings when the reading of old testimony to the "new" jury is completed at the trial of "Smiling" George McManus for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway's gambling "czar."

Raymond is the "big shot" gambler to whom Rothstein owed more than $200,000 at the close of a poker and high-spade game in which McManus participated. The game took place less than two months before "A. R." was fatally shot in the Park Central on the night of November 4, 1928. It is the State's contention that this "no limit" game led to a gambler's feud which precipitated the shooting of Rothstein.

For days Raymond has been waiting around the old criminal court building to testify. But one delay after another in the trial has kept him off the stand with other witnesses.

Today, the transcript of testimony of several witnesses remained to be read to a new juror before more evidence is introduced.

The new juror, Edmund Shotwell, was selected to replace Eugene A. Riker, excused because of illness.

James McDonald, an assistant district attorney, had completed the reading of the state's opening address and the direct testimony and cross-examination of three witnesses.

There remained the testimony of four other witnesses, the reading of which is to be shared between Mr. McDonald and James D. C. Murray, counsel for the defense.

10,000 IN LINE FOR LABOR 'CUT TAX' PARADE

Will Be Staged in Washington Dec. 7; Green on the Committee

Washington, Nov. 27—Plans are being made today for an income tax reduction parade of 10,000 to be staged December 7, following the acceptance of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, of membership on the advisory committee organizing an earned income tax reduction association.

On that date a petition bearing signatures of more than one million persons urging the reduction will be presented to Congress.

Following a conference at labor temple, with Major Joseph Caccavajo, chief of staff of the parade, President Green, said:

"This is a splendid and necessary gesture to make and it has my whole-hearted indorsement and enthusiastic support.

"I shall urge all the organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor to participate in this parade and by their presence bear witness to the fact that the movement for reduction in the taxes and surtaxes on earned income has the solid and unqualified support of the working classes.

"The Hearst newspapers have rendered the people of this country a wonderful service by conducting this nation-wide campaign. The fact that more than 1,000,000 men and women in all walks of life throughout the country took the time and trouble to sign the petitions is a convincing proof that the demand for the reductions is general.

"There can be no doubt that professional and business people who pay high taxes on their income add this cause to the bills. It is equally true if people who earn moderate incomes are relieved of some of the burden imposed on them because of the World War, they will have more to spend for food, clothing, recreation and the education of their children.

"What this is a movement in which all unionized men and women should join in a wholesouled way. The bigger the parade and demonstration, the more Congress will be impressed with the fact that the people of the country behind this movement mean business and want legislation for a downward revision at the regular session soon to convene.

"There should be no long delay. The sensible and just thing for Congress to do is to make the taxes and surtaxes on earned incomes at least 50 per cent less than the rate on unearned income, and to repeal the excise taxes on cutting coupons or cashing dividend checks."

Maj. Caccevajo expressed his gratification over President Green's enthusiastic and prompt of warm co-operation in obtaining the 100 per cent activ. co-operation of men and women in the unique pageant.

With unionized men and women, the chief of the District National Bank; Maj.-Gen. Anton Stephan, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association; Maj. E. E. Atkins, district department commander of the American Legion; Maj. Alex M. Lochwitzsky, chief of staff of the district department; Col. Robert N. Harper, president

300-CARAT JEWEL WOMAN CARRIED ROUND SEEKS U. S. BUYER

Archduchess, Owner of Necklace With a History Like Fable, Can't Afford It

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—On the crest of a blue velvet cushion encased in the steel of a Fifth ave. bank vault today lies a 399-carat diamond necklace that has traveled through Egypt and America in brown paper carpets since the day it graced the throat of Napoleon's empress.

More than 100 years ago Napoleon I gave the jewels to his young wife, Marie Louise, in his joy over the birth of their son, who he dreamed would carry on the Napoleon "dynasty."

Since then it has graced the throats of an Austrian empress and archduchess, has traveled the sands of Egypt and the subways of New York, has been the awe of customs officials and the wonder of bank clerks.

Today it is in the care of Mrs. Charles F. Townsend, who was born the Princess Baronte, daughter of the Italian Prince Baronte, and who is a friend of the Archduchess of Austria, Marie Therese, its 74-year-old owner.

OFFERED TO KING.

A little more than a year ago Mrs. Townsend, the wife of a retired English government official formerly serving in Egypt, carried the jewels to King Fuad of Egypt, who considered buying them for his queen.

No armed escort, no armored cars accompanied the necklace that once was Marie Louise's most prized possession. Mrs. Townsend put them into a cardboard shoebox, tucked them under her arm and boarded a second-class steamer so that she might attract no attention on her way to the palace.

When she arrived the King and his court gasped in horror at what she had done. The necklace was duly inspected, but the King offerred a rope of pearls, so the diamonds were not purchased.

Instead they returned to the Archduchess. Then Mrs. Townsend came to America and the jewels were sent to her, addressed to a New York bank.

They arrived and were refused by the bank as "romantic and unusual business," and back they went to Vienna.

Again they came to America, addressed this time to Marie Therese's friend, Customs officials investigated the necklace and cablegrams flew back and forth from Vienna and Washington to New York.

IN U. S. DUTY FREE.

"We had to get it admitted duty free," Mrs. Townsend said today, "because as an historic antique it was entitled to that, and to pay duty on it was akin to admitting it was not the real necklace of Marie Louise."

Eventually it was admitted to the United States—duty free—and customs officials sent for Mrs. Townsend to claim the necklace. They clustered about it when she called for it, exclaiming over its brilliance and recommending armored cars and police escorts for its journey to the bank.

"Look!" one assistant called in wonder to his companion. "Look what Napoleon gave his girl friend!"

Mrs. Townsend wrapped the jewels in brown paper and tied them with twine, boarded a subway and carried them to her New York apartment and thence to the bank which houses them today.

The necklace, set in silver and gold, has 47 diamonds, the larger ones 15 karats. Around its circular design hang 10 briolettes and nine pendants.

With it goes the will of the young empress for whom it was made, who bequeathed the necklace to the Empress Sophie, mother of the late Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, who in turn passed it on to her second son, Karl Ludwig. His wife, the Archduchess Maria Therese, is its owner.

NAPOLEON DREAM DENIED

With it goes also the bill of Nitot, the court jeweler, who assembled it from the jewel marts of the world, describing each stone in detail.

And last there is Marie Therese's signed letter of description and the Hapsburgs' certificate of succession.

The necklace which Napoleon ordered for the little Austrian archduchess, whom he divorced Josephine to marry in the hope that she could give him an heir, marked a joy that was short-lived.

Shortly afterward his dynasty began to crumble. The young empress refused to follow him into exile at Elba and escaped into her native Austria with the child, whom Napoleon had had crowned "King of Rome."

Napoleon lived to see the boy around whom he had woven the fondest dreams, a pawn in the game of politics, reduced to a rank inferior to that of Austrian archdukes. He died at the age of 21, and his mother became the morganatic wife of Count Von Neipperg.

Gold Medal for Eckener

Washington, Nov. 27—Dr. Hugo Eckener has been awarded a gold medal by the National Geographic Society for piloting around the world an aircraft of the type he so bitterly attacked as a newspaper editor at the time Count Zeppelin was making his first dirigible experiments.

Oxygen Test Which Helps Baby Fight Pneumonia

Photo shows a nurse in the Post Graduate Hospital in New York City feeding oxygen into the oxygen tent as the doctor watches the progress of the life-giving air in the tiny patient. These new tents are square frames with transparent celluloid sides, and are placed over the crib of the little sufferer in such a manner as to make the inside air tight. Oxygen is then pumped in, just enough to enable the child to breathe properly without effort. At one time pneumonia was always fatal to babies. Now the panting and gasping which comes from the disease vanishes when the infant is placed in the tent. (I. N. R. photo.)

MOVIES WRECK 20 ROMANCE OF MISS HARRIS

Ex-Wife of Charlie Chaplin Calls Her Latest Husband "Mean Man"

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 27 (INS)—Motion pictures today had wrecked the second romance of Mildred Harris, film player and former wife of Charles Chaplin. Miss Harris filed suit for divorce against Everett Terence MacGovern, Florida real estate man and prominent amateur golfer.

"He's mean—he doesn't like my playing in pictures and I've been in pictures since I was 9 years old. Besides, he wanted me to live in the East and I was raised here," said Miss Harris.

"It was just a case of talking different languages. I mean, motion pictures are my life work and I can't let even my husband interfere. I mean our marriage just wouldn't click."

Miss Harris alleged that MacGovern deserted her without cause on October 20, 1928. They were married in April, 1924.

She asked for the custody of Everett John MacGovern, four-year-old son of the couple. According to the divorce complaint MacGovern receives an income from an estate.

Charles Chaplin's "film genius" had caused him to be moody and to inflict mental cruelties upon his wife, it was alleged in the divorce, which ended Miss Harris' marriage to the noted film funny man some years ago.

Confession Alleged in Big Embezzlement

San Francisco, Nov. 27—Embezzlements aggregating $200,000, to which H. E. Anthony, manager of one of the Bank of Italy's branch banks in San Diego, was said to have confessed, were revealed here by the head officer of the bank.

RIVAL CHINESE FORCES CEASE HOSTILITIES

Report Nationalists Bribed Foes Into Truce; Plan for Counter Drive on Soviet

Geneva, Nov. 27 (AP)—Dr. Wei Kai-Seng, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations, told the Nanking government's attitude toward the latest developments in the Russo-Chinese situation in Manchuria before Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league, today.

(By the Associated Press)

Abrupt cessation of hostilities on China's civil war fronts in Honan and Hupeh Provinces was disclosed today in a grist of dispatches, some of which hinted that the war-harassed Nationalist government had paid its enemies for the truce.

On the Manchurian front Chinese forces are reported as planning a counter-drive against the Russians.

Advices from Hankow said fighting between the rebellious Kuominchun, or "People's Army," and Nationalist troops had stopped with a suddenness that took all observers by surprise, although it had been known that negotiations were going on between the factional leaders.

Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Nationalist government and head of its military forces, returned today to Nanking with a purported program of "sweeping changes," which is expected to give his late enemies, the Kuominchun, a measure of recognition.

Simultaneously, the "People's Army" was reported to be evacuating both Honan and Hupeh. Nationalist troops which had been fighting the Kuominchun were said to be withdrawing also, many of them heading for Kwangtung Province to resist another revolutionary movement aimed against Canton.

U. S. Ready to Assist Peace Move in China

Tokyo, Nov. 27 (AP)—The views of Secretary of State Stimson on the Manchurian situation were communicated to Tokyo today by Ambassador Debuchi, following his conversation with the American Secretary last Monday, but the foreign office disclaimed any intention of taking action at the present time, either independently or in concert with other nations.

Secretary Stimson was quoted as saying that he regarded the resumption of warlike activity between the Russians and Chinese as serious, and in the event suggestions by the United States might be thought of value in clearing the situation they would be made.

CLAIMS DANCER WON HIS WIFE

Hamilton, O., Nov. 27 (INS)—Mrs. Joan Sawyer Rentschler, former dancing partner of Rudolph Valentino, today had been named defendant in a $100,000 alienation of affection suit, filed here by Paul Weigand, prominent Hamilton steel magnate.

Weigand charged that the internationally known dancer had alienated the affections of his wife, Mrs. Martha Weigand, which ultimately resulted in Mrs. Weigand filing suit for divorce.

He alleged that after their marriage he and his wife lived happily until Mrs. Rentschler, a sister-in-law of Gordon S. Rentschler, president of the National City Bank of New York, caused his wife to become dissatisfied with married life by her alleged "enticements, favors and influences."

In her divorce suit, Mrs. Weigand charged cruelty, failure to provide and gross neglect. The steel magnate denied the allegations in a cross-petition and asked that her suit be dismissed.

Prince of Wales Now Among Best Orators

London, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Prince of Wales, who for many years had an acute dislike for speaking in public, now has become one of the best orators in the country, both in the matter of his discourses and in the manner of his delivering them.

Finds 3-Year-Old Children Smoking

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Cigarettes smoking by three-year-old children was one of the customs that Dr. Margaret Mead, ethnologist, says she found among the natives of the Admiralty islands. The Admiralty islands are southwest of the Philippines. They were part of German New Guinea.

Dr. Mead said that the children began smoking cigarettes, made of Louisiana twist wrapped in newspaper, at the age of three. She said the practice apparently had no ill effect on their health. They are as bright and more nimble than American children.

Naturally he seeks information from the secretariat on some of the thousand and one topics on which he is continually called on to speak, and welcomes suggestions as to how the subject may best be approached; but on majority of occasions on which a direct, human utterance on a non-technical subject is required, it is the Prince himself who is responsible for the composition of the speech which he delivers.

QUICK JUSTICE IN R. I. HOLDUP

Providence, Nov. 27 (AP)—Shortly before noon today, 83 hours after they held up, assaulted and robbed a taxi cab driver, Walter Furtaw, Raymond J. Cahill and George Hallridge, all of Providence, were sentenced to prison for 15 years by Judge G. Frederick Frost in Kent county court.

The crime took place early Sunday morning when they rode with Ernest Ernest, the taxi driver, to a lonely spot in Warwick and there held him up with a gun, struck him over the head with a club, and robbed him of $14. The three men were captured within a few hours of the crime and confessed.

They were indicted by the grand jury this morning and appeared immediately before the court and pleaded guilty.

Primate Pleads for Organized Church

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP)—Bishop Charles P. Anderson, primate of the Episcopal church in America, today called upon the church to concern itself primarily with spiritual things.

"I desire to urge the necessity of putting first things first," Bishop Anderson said in pointing out the spiritual goal of the church. "Organization is necessary," he continued; "machinery is necessary; money is necessary. The church cannot carry on a nationwide and worldwide enterprise without efficient organization and large sums of money."

USE A BODY IN TERROR REIGN

Wagoner, Okla., Nov. 27 (AP)—Two men are under arrest here today in connection with an attempt by two "hard boiled" men of the Hells Bend district of Wagoner county to terrorize an entire community by carrying from door to door the body of an aged Cherokee preacher they had killed.

Residents of the district, although plainly under the influence of the fear the two community bullies intended to inspire, told officers they were summoned to their doors Sunday to be shown the body of Jack Batt, Cherokee preacher, and told that "everybody had better mind their own business."

Batt had filed against the two men a charge of attack on his daughter, but withdrew it before his death.

W. W. Hadley, father of David Hadley, who is sought for questioning in connection with the killing, was arrested last night. The aged preacher's body was found at the elder Hadley's home Sunday night.

Bud Conley, said to have been Hadley's companion on the trip of terrorization, was arrested yesterday and charged with the murder.

You Can Be a Mummy 100 Years for $100

Berlin, Nov. 27 (INS)—Professing to have rediscovered the secret of mummification, a German firm today was advertising this type of mortuary treatment, with a guarantee that the bodies will look identical at the end of 1000 years as at the time of death. The charges are $100 per 100 years.

Morrows to Come Home for Holiday

Mexico City, Nov. 27 (INS)—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Morrow and their daughter, Elizabeth, will leave for the United States December 6 to spend the Christmas holidays at their Englewood, N. J., home.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife will spend the holidays

Huge Air Bomber Built for Italy

Milan, Nov. 27 (INS)—A giant new bombing plane, with six motors developing 6000-horsepower each capable of lifting 21 tons, has just been constructed for the Italian air force, according to announcement here. The plane, 150 feet long, will carry nine tons of bombs and 2640 gallons of gasoline.

May Tax Aliens $18 Day for Crossing Line

Washington, Nov. 27 (INS)—A large number of aliens who have been legally admitted to the United States, work here and live in Canada. They may soon find themselves confronted with the payment of $18 a day for the privilege of working here and living across the border if plans being worked out by the Department of Labor are put into effect.

In Detroit area alone, officials said, 6736 aliens who have legally been admitted live in Canada and journey back and forth daily.

The proposed regulation would impose a $10 visa and an $8 head tax on each alien for every trip made into the United States from either Canada or Mexico.

It would affect several thousand aliens along both the Canadian and Mexican borders.

Pope Names Envoy to Irish Free State

Vatican City, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Pope today appointed Mgr. Pasquale Robinson as apostolic nuncio to Dublin. Mgr. Robinson is titular archbishop of Tiana.

Negotiations between the Irish Free State and the Holy See for the exchange of diplomatic representatives have been going on for some time, and an Irish minister to the Vatican has been appointed. England has a minister accredited to the Vatican, but there is no nuncio in London, British law forbidding this.

Tardieu Seeks More American Tourists

Paris, Nov. 27 (INS)—In the hope of making up for serious decline in tourist expenditures in France last summer, Premier Tardieu today urged parliamentary acceptance of his national development bill, which includes $1,200,000 for "encouragement of tourists." A survey shows Americans alone spent $40,000,000 less in 1929 than in the previous summer.

15 YEARS FOR RUM ROBBERS

Providence, Nov. 27 (AP)—Rhode Island is not a playground for gang war upon citizens or property, Judge Jr. Lloyd Lete said in United States District Court today in imposing sentences of 15 years each upon four men who robbed the government warehouse here on the night of Sept. 17. A jury found the four guilty of the robbery last week.

For the first time in this jurisdiction, the maximum penalty of five years imprisonment was imposed under the Jones "five and ten" law after the four men had pleaded guilty.

Judge Lete imposed a sentence of ten years each on the indictment charging actual robbery of the warehouse and theft of 200 cases of liquor.

The men sentenced are Joe Green, Anderson ave., The Bronx, N. Y.; Michael Marello, of Newport, and John Johnson (Johnny) Campbell and Harry (Dutch) Leonard of Middletown, R. I.

Braggart Held for Shooting 2 Girls

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP)—Morgan Gipson, 24, whose habit of "bragging about being from the South" finally led Miss Florence Kohl to break her friendship with him, was arrested today for shooting Miss Kohl and her sister, Mabel.

The sisters, seriously wounded, identified Gipson as the man who shot them at their apartment after Florence had told him to leave with the Morrows.

WILKINS FLIER CHEATS DEATH IN ANTARCTIC

By CAPT. SIR HERBERT WILKINS
Commanding the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition

Universal Service Special Cable

Deception Island, South Shetlands, Nov. 27—Speeding at more than 125 miles an hour, our Lockheed plane San Francisco circled the heart of Deception's volcanic crater in the first flight of our Antarctic expedition this season.

Al Cheesman, our pilot, had a thrill that seemed bordering on near disaster to us, but to him it was just another "air break" that he handled successfully.

ENGINE GOES DEAD

Cheesman made a takeoff possible only because we have on the plane special large size tires. Crusted snow and moisture-saturated volcanic cinders lined the runway, and ordinary wheels would have sunk beyond a possibility of movement.

Speeding up Hoover field—named after the President—the San Francisco soared into the air and circled the island. It was Cheesman's first flight in the Lockheed. For five minutes he circled around, and then—we heat the engine die!

With the trained pilot's instinct, he turned the tap of the three fuel tanks. Then, once more, the engine took up its steady roar. It turned out that he had started with only one tank on instead of all. But with the full flow of gasoline, the engine never missed a stroke.

After 15 minutes, Al glided to a splendid landing and Cramer, our other pilot, took the plane's controls and climbed to 3000 feet. Here he stunted daringly, putting the San Francisco into all positions. And then, to demonstrate the fitness of the plane and his skill at the controls, he glided to a landing on the narrowest part of the runway.

FIRST LONG HOP SOON

The sky above was clouded, but far to the south, the clear sunlight shone on Graham's Land, which stood out with crystalline brightness.

Soaring above Deception's volcanic maw, we felt a trifle free of the snow and sleet that hampered us since our arrival here until today. The sight of land bathed in sunshine cheered us beyond all measure, and we hope to soar above the blankness of the Antarctic soon in our first lengthy exploration flight of the expedition.

(Deception Island, upon which Capt. Wilkins has established his Antarctic base, is one of the small islands of the South Shetland group. It is separated from Palmer Land, Graham Land and West Antarctica by Bransfield strait and is about 1750 miles from the South Pole in the direction of South America.)

DEFICITS FORCE BIG PAY CUTS

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP)—The County of Cook and the Chicago Board of Education today were considering drastic measures to meet large deficits facing them all.

The county board of commissioners recommended a pay reduction for all employes up to 20 per cent. It urged that elected officials—judges and other county officers—voluntarily accept a 20 per cent reduction in their salaries, and announced that county employes in all but a few cases, would face pay cuts the first of the year.

The deficit faced by the county is $5,000,000, and the board hopes to slice $2,000,000 from this in pay cuts.

Mayor and Sheriff Held in Idaho Raids

Wallace, Idaho, Nov. 27 (AP)—The liquor cleanup of Northern Idaho, where Federal officials claim municipal officers have made their own plans in a huge rum ring conspiracy, reached new heights today as raids continued after arrest of 17 persons in Wallace yesterday, including four city officials.

Mayor Herman J. Ross, Sheriff R. E. Wenger of Shoshone county, former Mayor W. H. Herrick, Deputy Sheriffs Charles Bloom and Albert Chapman and 12 other persons were charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

DUCE DECIDES NOT TO CALL UPON POPE

Rome, Nov. 27 (INS)—The abrupt and emphatic statement that Premier Mussolini would not pay a visit to Pope Pius XI in the Vatican shortly after the visit of King Victor Emanuel and the royal family confirms the report that the Premier and Pontiff are still in disagreement over the matter of education in Italy.

This interpretation is placed upon the statement in official quarters, thus confounding the announcement by the Giornale D'Italia several days ago that Mussolini and Pius were on the threshold of an understanding.

Many are inclined to believe the imminent publication of an inspired book reaffirming the Premier's views on education conducted solely by the State has something to do with today's curt announcement. This tenet of Mussolini is opposed by the Pontiff, who claims priority rights in education for the church and the family.

The refusal of Mussolini to permit a rumor of a proposed visit to gain credence is also interpreted as confirming the report that neither of the principals wished to see the other.

Chevrolet Success proves increasing popularity of the Six!

Since January 1st, more than a million three hundred thousand six-cylinder Chevrolets have been delivered.

This great volume of business has broken many records—both for Chevrolet and for the automotive industry at large.

It is a greater volume of business than Chevrolet has ever obtained in any previous year.

It has won for Chevrolet for the third consecutive time the coveted honor of first place at the National Automobile Shows.

It has brought undisputed sales leadership to the six-cylinder field for the first time since the automotive industry began. For six-cylinder sales during 1929 will greatly exceed those of any other type.

There are many reasons for the great success of the Chevrolet Six—reasons which every buyer of a low-priced car should pause to consider.

Chevrolet has made available to everyone the marked advantages of six-cylinder performance. Due to the great resources of General Motors, it is a Six in the price range of the four.

It is a thoroughly modern automobile, in design, in performance, and in appearance.

It offers the beauty and comfort of bodies by Fisher.

And it is as economical to operate as a four-cylinder car.

In view of these facts, it is easy to see why the Chevrolet Six is winning such wide public acceptance.

Women make Prosperity

THE BUYING STRENGTH OF EVERYWOMAN

Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of U. S. Department of Commerce, recently stated that 85% of the buying in retail stores is being done by women.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, authority on good merchandise, is a strong influence in women's steadily increasing buying of trade-marked goods.

The women who are managing the households of America are prosperity-makers as well as home-makers.

They are the electric-users, gas-users and 'phone-users who make dividends for what investors call "utilities."

They consume the goods that crowd freight cars and that give earnings to what financiers call "rails."

Their influence in the buying of cars makes steady sales for the automobile industry. Their patronage of service stations enables "the oils" to pay dividends.

The silks and woolens they use; the cosmetics they purchase; the hangings and furniture with which they beautify the houses they build; the trade-marked foods they buy; the electrical refrigerators, oil-burners and washing machines they install in their modern households give earning power to "industrials."

They buy 85 per cent of the goods sold in retail shops.

These women have followed new trends and found them worth clinging to; they accept and adhere to new standards. They will not turn back. Their slogan becomes the nation's slogan: Forward.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING and its advertisers both have won through good service the confidence of these progressive women, whose unflagging buying of nationally advertised products keeps business good.

Women make Prosperity—for the nation and for the GOOD HOUSEKEEPING advertiser.

AT THE DIAL

By the RADIO EDITOR

FOOTBALL will occupy almost as much masculine and feminine attention tomorrow as will the negotiation of the traditional roasted bird. The morning has important local schoolboy games which will not receive the attention of the radio announcers But there is also the important Brown-Cosgate game in Providence, which will be described through the transmitter of WJAR at 11 in the morning. The big afternoon game between University of Pennsylvania and Cornell at Philadelphia will go out on two chains, commencing at 1:45. This broadcast of this game will come through WNAC and WEEI (through Columbia and N B C leased wires. On Saturday, WNAC and WEAN will broadcast the annual Boston College-Holy Cross game at 1:45 p. m.

A THANKSGIVING EVE program has been arranged for the Mobiloil Hour on WEEI and NBC stations at 8 o'clock tonight by Erno Rapee, director of the 55-piece Mobiloil Orchestra. As a stirring finale to the Pilgrim Tercentenary, Rapee will direct "A.D. 1621," a tone-poem by Maurice Baron. It opens with the sailing of the Mayflower from England in 1620. The second movement depicts the weeks of hardship and privation later battled through the Atlantic to the shores of Cape Cod. Then follows the native pageant with the Indians: the coming of spring with days of planting and sowing, the summer with days of sunshine, the harvest and renewed courage Next comes a triumphant burst of melody as the first Thanksgiving feast of Thanksgiving is celebrated.

GLAZOUNOFF'S "Bacchanale" from the "Ballet of the Seasons" will be heard tonight at 8:30 through Station WEEI as a feature of the Wonder Bakers program. Among other features will be a medley of Jerome Kern's song hits.

THE Harvard University Band, following its busy season at Soldiers' Field during the football games on Saturday, will be given complete band will broadcast tonight at 10 from WBZ-WBZA. The program is in charge of the director, Leroy Anderson.

BORODIN'S "On the Steppes of Central Asia" and Saint-Saens' "Bacchanale," from "Samson and Delilah," feature the program of classics which the Stromberg-Carlson orchestra, directed by Dr. Frasier Harrison, will broadcast from Rochester, through WHEZ and the NBC Coast-to-Coast System today at 10:30.

A FESTIVAL service in observance of the holiday will be presented over the network of the Columbia Broadcasting System, on Thanksgiving Day, beginning at eleven o'clock by the Washington Cathedral choir, in arrangements made with Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, D. C. The Thanksgiving Day services will come from the Bethlehem Chapel in the crypt of the Cathedral. The sermon will be delivered by Bishop Freeman. Music will be rendered by the Cathedral organ and choir of ten men and twenty-four boys under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster. The program will consume an hour.

ON Thanksgiving Day a gigantic broadcast will be sent out from 41 independent radio stations including WBZ-WBZA from 4:30 to 6:30.

The Bond Bakers' Birthday Broadcast will present music of 10 nations, played by 10 famous military bands, orchestras and instrumental ensembles or sung by leading choruses and singers. The program will be heard, in the order named, The Band of His Majesty's Royal Air Force, from Hyde Park Corner; the Band of the Garde Republicaine of Paris (full 80 pieces), the St. Germain Orchestra of the Gaite of Paris, the Swissander Brass Ensemble, the Original Lanner Schrammel-Quartet of Vienna, the National Band of Germany, a Berlin Mannerchor male chorus under Dr. Felix Schmidt; an orchestra from La Scala Opera, Milan, Attilio Parelli conducting; the Irish Guards Bands, the Pipers of His Majesty's Scots Guards and an American finale by John Philip Sousa and his band. Deems Taylor, composer and critic, will announce and explain the numbers in his voice, like all the rest, being electrically transcribed.

JOHN McCORMACK, celebrated tenor, will return to the air after an absence of almost three years in a broadcast Thanksgiving night over WEEI and stations of the National Broadcasting Company. McCormack will be featured in the Victor program, which goes on the air at 10 o'clock. He was last heard by radio listeners Jan. 1, 1927. In the studios will be the new Victor Salon Orchestra, under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret. The broadcast also will be the first of a series of 60-minute programs sponsored by the Radio-Victor Corporation. Heretofore the program has lasted 30 minutes.

Unoiled Springs Hinder Comfort

Continuous riding upon unoiled or ungreased springs results in grooves being worn at the point where the leaves overlap. Such a condition greatly hinders the riding comfort of the car, and may only be overcome by removing the leaves and grinding the surface.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

SLEEVE VALVE AUTO BREAKS RECORDS

All records for sustained speed, previously held by American cars were shattered on the Montlhery track near Paris, France, when Marchant, Morel, Kirlioff and Leroy de Pressale drove their 12-cylinder sleeve-valve Voisin at 80.009 kilometers in 224 hours, 39 minutes, 56.78 seconds for an average speed of 82.97 miles per hour.

The engine of the Voisin is the same type used in all Willys-Knight cars built by the Willys-Overland Co., the world's largest manufacturer of cars employing sleeve-valve engines, C. H. Leonard, manager of the Boston Whippet-Knight Corp., said today.

The 20,000-mile record was made in 241 hours, 43 minutes, 40.9 seconds, an average of 82.73 miles per hour.

By this achievement the Voisin broke records nearly all the records established at Atlantic City last year and set up new records for one day up to 10 days recently recognized by the International Sporting Commission on the recommendation of the American Automobile Association.

After covering 30,000 kilometers, Gabriel Voisin announced that his car would be stopped at 40,000 kilometers, this being about equal to the distance around the world at the Equator. When near the 35,000 kilometer mark, however, the car turned over.

The car used for these records was a special Voisin, with a 12-cylinder sleeve-valve engine of 86 by 130 mm. bore and stroke (3.39 by 5.12 inches). The cylinder blocks were taken from stock, but the three bearing crankshaft, more than four inches in diameter, was built specially, and the crankcase was built up of welded sheet steel.

Officials of the American automobile companies are reported in touch with the racing board of the Automobile Club of France, with a view to attempting to regain their records on the French track.

DURANT EXPORT HEAD HERE

Detroit, Nov. 27—H. P. Gilpin, export manager of Durant Motors, Inc., returned to Detroit early this week after spending five weeks with Durant European distributors and dealers. Increased interest in American cars is seen everywhere and the Durant exhibits at the shows Mr. Gilpin reports, attracted a large amount of favorable attention.

Although, as reported, the attendance at the auto shows was no equal to that of previous years, Mr. Gilpin says, "the people attending seem to display an increased knowledge of cars and greater interest in salient mechanical features.

"This is particularly true of women spectators, more of whom are now taking an interest in driving their own cars, just as the women of America do. On the streets of London, Paris, Berlin and other large cities, one sees many women at the wheels of their own cars where formerly the woman driver was seen only infrequently."

In Paris, during the Salon, Mr. Gilpin conducted meetings attended by all Durant distributors and dealers from cities of the Continent, North Africa, Near East and even from sections of the Far East, and by several prominent automobile distributors who, it is expected, will before long hold the Durant franchise in their respective territories.

SILVER FLEET NASH HERE

A Nash coupe, one of the famous units of the Goodrich Silver Fleet that recently finished a 32,000 mile tour of the country covering a period of nearly 10 months, is to become the permanent property of Goodrich Tire Service Co. Boston, it was announced today by J. J. Buckley, branch manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

The Nash car is presented to the Goodrich Tire Service by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. as a prize for highest sales in a sales contest in truck and bus tires conducted by Goodrich among its dealers.

Goodrich Tire Service Co., under the capable management of Bob Freeman and Doc Fink, is one of the 14 Goodrich dealers among 40,000 to win this coveted honor and one of the silvered cars that has played a prominent part in the epochal tour of the United States for the purpose of tire demonstration. The car will be delivered by Pilot W. C. Walton, who drove it during the tour, that made touring history and demonstrated a new method of testing tires under practical conditions.

Yale Will Tax Parked Autos

The Yale University Athletic Association announced that a fee of $1 will be charged hereafter for the parking of automobiles on the playing field in the vicinity of the Bowl, New Haven.

The damage done to the playing fields by the wheels of automobiles and the expense of repairs to the fields was given by the association as the reason for the imposition of the charge.

We'll Say It's Good

One of the five New Fargos just added to the fleet of the Boston Evening American's fast growing delivery system. They were purchased recently from the C. E. Fay Co., Fargo Chrysler and Plymouth dealers in Boston.

Auto Engineer Tells How to Pick Car

What does an automotive engineering instructor think about when selecting a motor car for his own use?

The question is answered by J. H. Barrios, department of automotive engineering, Alameda, Calif.

"As an instructor of automotive engineering it naturally is necessary for me to keep informed on the changing trends in the building of better automobiles," he said.

"From past experience I have learned that the perfect motor must be as free from vibration as possible uniformly cooled, simply timed, free from piston wear and pin whip, lubricated and balanced correctly and designed in such a manner that it will have ample power without sacrificing gas economy.

"By actual comparison and elimination, Oakland theory revealed many advanced ideas and engineering features. I was impressed by the water cooling capacity around the cylinder walls and even more so by the principle involved in the cross-flow radiator. The Oakland semi-steel piston contacts together with that of the pin and rod assembly especially met my approval. So did the simple and positive action of the short, heavy timing chain unit. In fact, the Oakland practice coincided remarkably with my own ideas or a correctly designed motor.

"Of course I did not overlook such matters as body design, a result of a smooth-acting four wheel braking system and many other features of equal importance. Nor did I overlook the further requirement of a sound, stable organization behind the car. It is my belief that Oakland has given more to the buying public than any other manufacturer in the price class of the Oakland Six. That's why I bought one."

GRAHAM FIRST OVER BRIDGE

The gameness of a 34-year-old girl won for a Graham-Paige the honor of being the first regular "cash customer" car to cross the Ambassador Bridge, the longest suspension bridge in the world when it was opened to traffic, November 15, between Detroit and Windsor, Canada.

R. L. Manning, of Detroit, had driven his family in his Graham-Paige 615 sedan to see the bridge approach the day before the scheduled opening, and promised that they should all come back the next day and drive over to Canada. But Gertrude Manning, age 14, had a better idea.

"Let's be the first over," she said. "Stay right here, Dad; be a good sport, and I'll sit up with you all night."

Mrs. Manning and Helen, age five, were just as game, so Manning nosed his car up to the entrance, and so was the first in a long line of automobiles when the bridge was formally opened at 11 o'clock the next morning.

MOON ACQUIRES RUXTON CAR

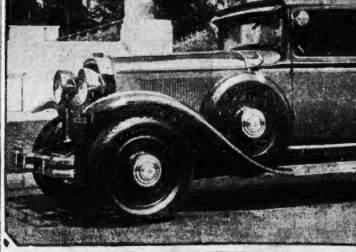
America's first front-wheel-drive car, the Ruxton, has been acquired by the Moon Motor Company, one of the oldest manufacturers of automobiles in the country, and is to go into immediate quantity production at its St. Louis plant, it was announced for today simultaneously in St. Louis and New York on behalf of C. W. Burst, president of the Moon concern.

Moon, New Era Motors, Inc., which developed the Ruxton, the Moon company has come into possession of all Ruxton patent rights, granted and pending, and all plant equipment, engineering data and finished and unfinished cars. This acquisition was effected by means of an exchange of stock. Additional financing, through new treasury shares, has already been underwritten.

Motor Taxes Big

Motorists in England were taxed more than $127,605,000 for the operation of 1,758,000 motor vehicles during the past year.

Stage Star Buick Owner 22 Years



Mary Boland, star of "Women Go On Forever," is a recent purchaser of a 1930 Buick. "Our family has owned and loved Buicks for 22 years," Miss Boland says, "and in my opinion, the 1930 model, for beauty, comfort and performance, surpasses Buick offerings of previous years."

BUICK SALES SHOW STEADY INCREASE

That the Buick Motor Co. is now selling 42 per cent of all cars in Buick's price class, is the statement made by C. W. Churchill, general sales manager, following a study of reports for the three months ending October 31.

The price class in which Buick cars are listed, embra

OWNERS ARE PROUD OF ANCIENTS

Effort to locate the first Dodge cars and establish their 15 years' service record have been rewarded with the recent discovery that Dodge cars No. 5, 7 and 12 are still in daily service.

No. 5 is the proud possession of ... O'Brien & Son, Dodge dealers in Omaha; No. 7 has just been reported at Lincoln, Neb., and No. 12 is running in San Francisco, says W. M. Little of Massachusetts Motor Car Co., Dodge distributor.

The announcement of John Cheek, the first Dodge dealer, that the first car shipped to him in December, 1914, was still being driven in Nashville, Tenn., started the search for other veteran cars bearing the Dodge name. Cheek is now president of the Cumberland Motor Car Co. of that city, and has witnessed the volume of Dodge business mount steadily year after year.

On November 14, 1914, the first Dodge car was completed, and as the corporation approaches its 15th anniversary, added interest is attached in locating these early models. Production in 1914 totaled only 249 cars, but the next year it jumped to 45,033 units, and today the total number of shipments since 1914 is approaching the 2,500,000 mark.

Only the serial number on the engine would convince an experienced automobile mechanic of the age of Dodge Car Number Seven. The touring car body has required no refinish since it left the factory, and mechanically it appears ready for 15 years more of service. No one knows how many thousand miles the car has traveled, since speedometers installed in cars then would not register over 10,000 miles.

"We expect to hear that many more of these early Dodge Brothers cars are still in daily service," said C. W. Matheson, general sales manager. "It has been the company's traditional policy to build a car offering the utmost in dependability and performance, and today the cars on the assembly line carry on that repetition which the company guards so jealously, in addition to having the high standards of comfort and appearance that the public now demands in motor cars."

RAIN TESTS FOR DE SOTO BODIES

A terrific wind-driven rain, natural in every characteristic except source, is the new method used by the De Soto Motor Corp. as an additional test of the ability of the bodies used on the De Soto to keep out all moisture from the outside elements, says R. H. Clarke, treasurer, Richards-Clarke Co.

This new device is a water-throwing apparatus consisting of a series of pipes in which have been drilled small holes. Through these holes many streams of water are forced under high pressure. The pipes are erected and the holes so located that the streams of water are directed onto every part of the automobile body, particularly the doors, windows and windshield crevices and recesses.

De Soto bodies are wheeled under this new water-throwing device before mounting on the chassis. The windows, doors and windshield are closed and the body is thoroughly rained on. At the same time a close inspection is made of the interior to finally insure its ability to keep out all moisture.

AUBURN ENDS LONG JAUNT

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 27—Battling floods of every description over more than 30,000 miles, the Auburn car used in the Goodrich Silver Fleet, ended its gruelling journey in perfect condition.

R. N. Kilgore, Goodrich Silver Fleet pilot, gave out the following at the end of the tour:

"The famous Goodrich Silver Fleet bade farewell to the people of New York city just 10 months ago, and started on a record-breaking cruise of 30,000 miles over the highway of the United States. During this time it has been my pleasure to have driven the Auburn unit of the Silver Fleet many thousand miles. The tour has proved to me that the Auburn has every good quality needed in a trip such as we have taken.

Newmark Agency Gets New Business

J. H. Newmark, Inc., Advertising Agency, New York city, specializing in automotive accounts, has secured the business of the Universal Gear Shift Corporation. This corporation has patented and perfected a ... gear shifting device which ... ...ear with the transmission hand lever, and makes gear shifting easy by finger tip control on the steering wheel.

Mr. Newmark will direct both the sales and advertising of the new product.

Newspapers, automotive trade papers and direct-by-mail will be used in their advertising plan.

"Keep to the Right" Is Rule in Australia

After traveling on the left-hand side of streets for years, Australia has decided to follow the system of the United States and other countries and change to the "keep to the right" rule. This change will necessitate an expenditure of more than $2,100,000.

GULF

MOTOR FUEL

Aviation Grade

is the perfect winter gasoline

AVIATION Grade means this--The INITIAL BOILING POINT is under 100° Fahrenheit, its END or DRY POINT is 374° Fahrenheit, the last drop vaporizes at this temperature and complete vaporization is the whole thing in winter starting.

Ordinary gasolines have an end or dry point of 437° Fahrenheit and do not vaporize readily -- Such gasolines may be doped with chemicals for anti-knock purposes but posses... no cold weather starting value.

The 63° Fahrenheit between end points of 374° and 437° not only slows down vaporization but charges the cylinder with raw unignited gasoline which passes the rings into the crank case diluting and ruining the lubricating oil--Choking only adds to the amount which passes the rings--Start right with NO-NOX--End worry and insure a safe return at night.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

ALTHOUGH there is something of the canine complex in it, we are not prepared to say that "Woof Woof," now at the Majestic, has gone to the dogs. But when a pretty heroine gives a good part of her evening to playing custodian to whippets, her boy friends may be excused for expecting the worst. Still, matters might have been more provoking, for there was romance and music, Gotham jazz and Southern sunshine to keep the tempo in good order.

IF tolling actors, a battalion of dancers and more impressive scenic accompaniment than you had any right to expect can make romantic musical comedy a thing of joy, the sponsors of "Woof Woof" may turn to their nightly slumbers confident of the morrow. There was an abundance of good entertainment in the piece, drawn from an intriguing love story that kept two young people constantly in doubt and misery. Louise Brown, a charming and gifted dancer, was the wistful maiden.

Nicholas Young

WHEN everything had been cleaned up for the night, with all the boys dancing into the grand finale with the right set of curls on his shoulder, I was were convinced that romance always takes care of itself in any kind of weather and keeps in good tune. Song numbers of etching quality gave Miss Brown, Jack Squires and Al Sexton cheerful moments with their audience, while Olive Faye and Louise Grey, perhaps more humorous than sentimental, gave vigilant attention to the bits left over for their talents.

BUT there must be boisterous fun—lots of it. So "Sunkist" Eddie Nelson made wise cracks and dallied with ditties. For a boy without baggage he exhibited a wide variety of colorful raiment while bicycling from Harlem to Mobile, Ala. That being all in a night's work, he made the best of it by stirring up a hearty laugh, although it must be confessed some of his raillery seemed slightly tinted. Helen Goodhue, too, was a casual offender.

AS a production "Woof Woof" was particularly rich in its scenic fittings, the most notable of which disclosed "The Top Inn," somewhere on the Hudson. Clark Robinson, the designer, may take pride in this piece of craftsmanship.

WHEN kind and gentle hands have been laid upon "Woof Woof," and all its furrows smoothed down, it should be quite able to move about in the best of musical comedy society.

DOLORES DEL RIO WILL GET GAY FOR NEW SCREEN ROLE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27—The character of Dolores Del Rio is undergoing a drastic change. I mean, of course, on the screen. George Fitzmaurice who is directing her in "The Bad One" did such an efficient job of changing an "Evangeline" into a modern coquette that he is to direct her in another picture which he wrote for her.

Louella O. Parsons

Just the moment "The Bad One" is finished he will start making tests for "Heaven for Two" which will show Del Rio as a gay girl without any vine-clinging tendencies. In other words, United Artists is firmly determined to change the lady. Probably because "Evangeline" was not such a red hot success at the box office. "Resurrection" was and while Del Rio played a suffering heroine in that she was by no means the snow-white lily of her other pictures.

I am reliably informed that Fox tried to borrow Del Rio for "The Cisco Kid" to play opposite Warner Baxter and Edmund Lowe, but "The Bad One," or Sailor's Sweetheart," which ever they call the picture, decided John Considine upon another Fitzmaurice production. Don Alvarado is on the United Artists lot once more playing opposite Del Rio.

METROTONE'S FEATURE IS AIR CRASH

ANOTHER remarkable achievement of Hearst Metrotone News was the photographing of the crash of the airplane in the heart of New York City. Within 20 minutes after the plane dropped to the roof of a building in West End ave., Hearst Metrotone News was on the scene recording, in sound and picture, all of its details. This thrilling subject is contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. In addition to the disaster itself, it contains the dramatic story of his fall by F. D. Bailey, a passenger, who escaped injury in a parachute.

Another exceptional subject is a trip to the sacred city of the Mongolian lamas in the Gobi Desert. For the first time in history these people, who spend their lives in the service of Buddha, have been photographed. It is extremely rare for a white man to even be admitted to their religious ceremonies which are now shown to the entire world.

The current issue also contains the only pictures of Richard Corbett, the young man in France who killed his mother to end her agony. Other subjects contained in Hearst Metrotone News include a thrilling hockey game at Madison Square Garden in New York; the impressive ceremonies at the Arc de Triomphe in Paris in honor of the World War dead; Belgium's royal family and the population of Brussels paying tribute to the Unknown Hero; Governor Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, telling of encouraging reports received from all financial districts; an expose by a psychic expert of the so-called "materialization" of a "spirit" from "beyond the grave"; remarkable ceremonies in which France conferred a doctor's degree upon the German scientist, Dr. Einstein, and other interesting subjects.

Two Keith Houses Have Midnight Programs

There will be a midnight show tonight at the New B. F. Keith's and also one at the Keith-Albee. All seats are reserved for these two shows and the performances will begin promptly at 11:30. At Keith's the feature of the program will be Will Rogers' first all-talking picture, "They Had to See Paris." At the Keith-Albee will be seen the all-talking, singing, Fox operetta, "Married in Hollywood," and an RKO vaudeville bill.

Thanksgiving Burlesque at Gayety Midnight Show

A special midnight show will be presented at the Gayety tonight, beginning at 11:30. There will be a program of burlesque specialties to mark Thanksgiving Eve. The show, "Pretty Babies," is headed by Viola Spaeth, Hazel Walker, Frank (Rags) Murphy, Jimmy Walters and Ruth Levine.

GARBO'S HAIR STYLE NIFTY

FOR those who wish to experiment with some unusual hairdresses, a number of styles can be glimpsed in Greta Garbo's latest picture, "The Kiss," now at Loew's State.

The famous Garbo hair bob—of shoulder length—is worn in a number of interesting ways in this picture, one of which shows softly curled bangs hiding the forehead with the hair brushed back toward the nape of the neck and the ears showing. A few strands of hair are brought out across the cheek to give a soft frame for the face.

Another style shows the hair parted low on the left side and brushed straight down to the sides with the severeness taken away by soft waves which curl becomingly over the cheeks. The ends are left free to form a halo around the face.

The off-the-face hats are worn by Miss Garbo with her hair tucked under and the ends showing at the sides.

Whoopee Show at Howard

The Old Howard will make whoopee tonight in a special preholiday midnight show. There will be special features in addition to the burlesque, vaudeville and film bill.

FILMS DRAW 30,000,000 A WEEK

MOTION picture statisticians are having their troubles. The progress of the humanized screen has been so meteoric that statisticians, after frantic efforts at compiling records systematically, have surrendered unconditionally.

For all of which there must be a good reason and the reason is none other than the fact that motion picture progress has been so rapid that the statisticians must have lost all sense of proportions. For instance, they would have laughed loudly had one but eight months ago informed them that the motion picture theater patronage would increase 10,000,000 per week. Yet that is exactly what has happened, according to government statistics given out at Washington last week. This statement now fixes the population, weekly, of motion picture theatergoers at 30,000,000.

All of which is within exactly 10,000,000 of the figure set by the motion picture industry as its goal. Two years ago William Fox, president of Fox Film Corporation, announced that it was his ambition to double the number of people who paid their way into the theaters. At that time this number was not quite 20,000,000. Mr. Fox predicted that that figure would be doubled within five years; governmental statistics indicate that he was far too conservative in his estimate that the goal will be reached within less than two years.

None perhaps illustrate more emphatically the sweeping progress of the motion picture, as it has developed since the talkies came into being, than the experience of the William Fox musical comedy production, "Sunny Side Up," co-starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in their first all-talking, singing and dancing picture, which opens at the New B. F. Keith's theater here next Friday midnight. Although "Sunny Side Up" will not be generally released until some time in January, the earlier showing in Boston bids fair to add another link to this picture's chain of rare accomplishment.

For instance, "The Cock-Eyed World" enjoyed an unprecedented career of almost endless record-smashing achievements not only in this city, but in New York and other large cities. Up to last Saturday "The Cock-Eyed World" had been viewed by 24,300,000 people.

"Sunny Side Up" is still playing on Broadway, at the Gaiety, at a $2 scale.

Now "Sunny Side Up" is absolutely rendering every record of "The Cock-Eyed World" cross-eyed.

Met's Midnight Premiere for "Show of Shows"

The "Show of Shows," the latest Warner Brothers' all-color opus, boasting a cast of nearly 100 stage and screen stars and a thousand gorgeous girls, and described as "100 Shows in One," will be given its New England premiere (one performance only) at midnight, tonight, at the Metropolitan. All seats will be reserved.

MET CHANGES TWO CHIEFS ON STAGE

TWO important changes in stage personnel will be effective at the Metropolitan, beginning tomorrow. Gabriel Hines becomes conductor of the grand orchestra of the theater, and Al Mitchell becomes master of ceremonies. Mr. Hines is among the foremost of directors.

Gabriel Hines

Coming of a musical family, he has had training with such masters as Saint-Saens, Sobrawenks, Safinoff and Damrosch was thorough, subsequent to which he began conducting symphonic programs which eventually led to a tour throughout the United States and Canada. Mr. Hines' versatility as a conductor ranges from symphony, grand opera and light opera down to the picture house orchestra. He strives to popularize the classics by means of novel original arrangements, making all music pleasant and entertaining.

Mr. Hines is also a composer of songs and piano pieces, among which was "The Pilgrim's Voyage," awarded second prize at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and performed there under his direction in 1915.

Al Mitchell, popular musical master of ceremonies, who won a great many friends during his previous engagement here, returns to the Metropolitan to preside over the popular Publix Playboy Band and the talent in the lavish Publix revues. Boston theatergoers will remember this personable chap, a protege of Paul Whiteman.

Two Shows at Midnight Billed at Scollay Sq.

FLATLEY SAYS

"HOW FLATLEY

THE mangled countenance of Ernie Shore convinces us that hockey players should draw 10 grand per game. It's all in fun, the broken noses and whacked off teeth. So was trench warfare.

It will be cold turkey for the athletes who get licked tomorrow morning—and the victors will give more than thanks, what we mean—Eddie Farrell kept his appendix for dear old Harvard: that's the ultimate in sacrifice—those Maine cross-country stars should make great lovers; boys who can hold hands after running six miles have IT—the Leslie Cup players get no expenses; that will hurt their cut shots—the M. G. A. will try to oust Herb Jacques; that will be as easy licking Henry Ford—your correspondent lost three fingers at the Yale game; not frozen, just split.

THE boys are advocating canvas jackets for the halfbacks. We favor straight jackets for the coaches, who get beaten.

GIVERS of thanks; that there's only one Harvard game—Yale; that Dempsey has resigned—Jack Sharkey; that there are not more boxing commissions—Gus Sonnenberg; that there is only one more football game—Jim Shannon; that the Maroons use sticks instead of axes—Eddie Shnee; that there are no more arenas in Boston—Geo. Brown; that Sunday baseball will not have to be fought for this fall—Judge Fuchs; that Notre Dame is not on the schedule—Pittsburgh; that football guessing is over—Consensus; that the Miami fight is approaching—Mister Boston; that no more boxing will come his way—Jim Maloney; that he didn't have to go to Montreal—George Owen.

Charlie Devens, who didn't Know where he was between halves at the Stadium, had nothing on a lot of spectators, us, and I. The Yale team didn't know where Charlie was, either, in the second period.

FANATICS looking for a Thanksgiving appetiser would do well to trickle out to Tech Field in the a. m. There the First Corps Cadets and Battery A have their annual war, which is always a great show.

The boys, old college stars all of them, play for the fun of it, but they put the college spirit into their stuff and serve a real brand of football. The lot of them have been semi-proing or coaching all fall, so they're in good shape. They offer real proof that the football spirit never dies.

Kola Kwariana, the Russian who wrestles Ned Maguire this p. m., speaks ten languages, but says he can't say "Uncle" in any of them.

AL MARSTERS, now an author, admits that the check back for a story is the greatest play in literature—Ben Tickner will be the next Harvard captain; they should make him a general — a heavy elimination tourney, Theophilus, is a series of punk shows in which fans are separated fro mheavy money—members of the Byrd expedition will be in good shape to watch post-season games — Mexican commission wants to know how badly a champion must be licked to lose his title; he can be mur dered and keep it if the referee is what the boys call "right"—Joe Di Pesa says his movie passes are just as popular as Barry Wood's forwards.

ALL-AMERICA teams are harder to explain than the stray white glove in the overcoat pocket.

Three Hub Boxers Qualify in N. Y.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Twenty-six matches will conclude the two-night intercity amateur boxing meet at Madison Sq. Garden tonight.

The out-of-town survivors include Russell Wolstram, Washington, and Russell Hegg, Boston, heavyweights; Douglas Swetman, Washington, and Gilbert Brenner, Boston, bantamweights; Frank Orange, Washington, and John Barry, Boston, flyweights.

B. C. ELEVEN RETIRES TO SECLUDED TRAINING CAMP TODAY

LARGE PETER HERMAN, Boston College's left tackle, will kick the all-important point after touchdown against Holy Cross in the big Jesuit clash at Fenway Park next Saturday, according to a new arrangement by Coach Joe McKenney.

With the announcement that Boston College's starting backfield would consist of Capt. Paddy Creedon, John Marr, Chesny Antos and Joe Kelley, the Eagle coach had to find someone to add the extra tally in place of George Colbert, the Maroon and Gold drop-kick artist.

Herman has been practicing all week and will continue until game time. After looking large Peter over, it is evident that he will fill the role. Herman has been booting them consistently through the uprights and he's not the type to quiver when an opposing line is charging in. He's as cool as a Northern lumberjack.

However, if that point had gone through the spires Boston College might be undefeated today and be entering this Crusader clash favored to win and confident of victory.

Boston College's picked squad of 34 warriors leaves this evening after practice for Drabbington Lodge, Weston. They'll remain there until Saturday shortly before game time. Coach McKenney will put his charges through morning and afternoon signal workouts on a nearby field.

McKenney's selections were way night and that's one of the essentials.

For a half hour of the last practice workout Herman practiced his new assignment. Harry Downes passed the ball to Capt. Paddy Creedon, who held it for the swing of Herman's size 10.

The fact that McKenney is spending so much time with Peter indicates Joe's resourcefulness and optimism. Joe feels sure that he'll have use for a point-after booter against Holy Cross and also intends to see that this duty is performed perfectly.

Boston College's string of disaster this fall was caused by a missed try for point against Fordham. It wasn't actually the kicker's fault; Colbert was back and got the drop-kick off, but the Fordham line crashed through the B. C. frontier.

Downes, Anderson, Mason, Convery and Curran, centers; Morelli, Maloney, O'Connell, Gorman, DiPesa and Larkin, guards; Herman, Young, Plausse, Bennett and Romanowski, tackles; Murphy, Dixon, Gibbons, Buckley and McDonald, ends; Creedon, Colbert and Frano, quarterbacks; Marr, Kelley, Antos, Vodickya, Shea, Ricci, Aaron, Lyons, Mallett and Mirley, backs.

The rest of the Eagles will remain at home but they won't break training. Limitations at the lodge kept the B. C. A. A. from taking the full squad of more than fifty. All the Eagles will be in uniform on Saturday, and some of these left behind will have a chance of earning their letters.

George Colbert is back with the squad, but is still favoring a char-

RIVALS IN BIG GAME TOMORROW

VINCENT NAMED YALE CAPTAIN

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 27 (INS)—Yale today had upheld its custom of selecting a lineman to lead the football team.

At the annual dinner of the gridiron squad last night, Francis Thomas Vincent of Torrington, Ct., right tackle, was unanimously chosen captain of the 1930 Blue Eleven. His election came as no surprise, even though he was serving his first year on the team and did not receive his Y last season.

Yale's new leader prepped at Hotchkiss and captained his freshman team at Yale.

Illinois Gridders Want No Captain

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 27 (AP)—University of Illinois football regulars have voted against a football captain for 1930.

Out of the 18 letter men entitled to vote for captain at the annual banquet, 15 wrote "no captain" across their ballots and none was chosen.

They said a football player cannot turn in his best game if he has the captaincy to worry about.

Van Nice Elected Captain at Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 27—Erret Van Nice, halfback who clipped the claws of the Princeton Tiger, has been elected captain of the 1930 University of Chicago football squad.

Van Nice's 200 pounds were employed to good advantage throughout the last season and in him "Old Man" Stagg sees a "wonder" performer next year.

B. U. 'Night Owls' to Report Tonight

Boston University's evening division basketball squad will hold its first practice of the season at the varsity gym tonight.

The Terrier "Night Owls" will be coached by Joseph Rosenberg and captained by Arthur Callioutette, and under these directors should develop another strong team.

This is the third season the evening division students at B. U. are to put a team on the floor. The boys finance the project without any aid from the university, and although forced to practice at 10 o'clock at night at the conclusion of classes, the "Night Owls" always manage to organize a strong quintet that more than holds its own against most opponents.

Real Leader

Koepke, Navy guard and cap tain, is said to be a better lineman than Eddie Burke who made the All-American.

CORPS READY FOR BATTERY A

The First Corps Cadets has a strong team ready for its football game with Battery A tomorrow morning. Several stars have been added to the team that was defeated by the Battery last year.

This will be the 23d meeting of the football teams representing these two famous military organizations and this year's game will be played on Technology Field, Cambridge, at 10 a. m.

The teams play on an amateur basis, with no admission charged to spectators, and it is due only to the long established rivalry between the organizations that so much preparation is made for the game and victory so prized.

More than the usual number of former college stars are going to play. The First Corps team have Mike Galian of Brown University "Iron Men" fame playing one tackle, with Clem Coady, the Harvard captain of a few years ago, playing the other tackle.

"Wild Man" Jim Combs, who has starred for Harvard, being noted for his ability to block kicks, will play left end, while Shad Osborne, who made his letter at Yale, holds down the opposite end.

Harvard Captain to Play in Legion Game

EDDIE CASEY, former Harvard star and present backfield coach, has assured Jim Fay, chairman of the Crosseup-Pishon post All-New England college football game, that "Red" Barrett, captain of this season's victorious Crimson eleven, and Dick O'Connell, star end, would be in the lineup of one of the teams December 7 at Fenway Park in aid of the Christmas basket fund for indigent veterans.

Eddie's assurance is as good as a bond. He has taken considerable interest in this game and would have gladly taken one of the positions as coach, but for the press of business which precluded it. His interest is not superficial, inasmuch as he is a member in good standing of the post itself.

Casey was a member of the Harvard team in 1916, which gave Yale the scare of its season at New Haven. In fact, Eddie got away with a fine run for a touchdown that would have resulted in a Crimson victory but for an argus-eyed official detecting holding by one of the Harvard linemen. When the call came, Casey was one of the first to hop to the colors.

He served as an ensign in the Navy for the duration of war. Upon the signing of Armistice he went back to Cambridge to finish his course. He was a member of the great eleven of 1919, which later went to the Coast to play in the Tournament of Roses, where it also was victorious.

Mexican Boxing Board Lacks Sense of Humor

The New York Boxing Commission was considerably mystified by a query received from the Mexican commission, which wished to be informed how badly a champion had to be beaten in order to lose his title or how badly he had to be beaten in order to get a draw.

The commission took time out to see when April Fool's Day comes below the Rio Grande.

Mickey Walker Seeks Reconciliation With Wife

New York, Nov. 27 (INS—Mickey Walker has just come in from California to spend Thanksgiving and Christmas with his mother, but he's ready to grab the first train back, if there's any chance of seeing his estranged and sulky wife, Mrs. Maude Bell Walker.

"I would do anything in the world to be reconciled with her," the middleweight champion said wistfully.

The news that his wife, whom he believed still in the East, was actually in San Diego while he was fighting Huddins recently in Los Angeles, was a surprise to Mickey.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 27—If Nelson Munson, the Brown right guard, can stand the pace through 60 minutes of tomorrow's game between Brown and Colgate, he will hold the record for participation in Brown football in the modern era of the game.

When he takes the field for the kickoff tomorrow, he has a record of having played every minute of every game this season, a mark that has not been equalled since 1910, when Charles P. Sisson, now assistant United States attorney-general, played every minute at center in a trying season.

Tuss McLaughry, making his bid for three victories in six major games this season, will field the strongest combination available and every post will be filled by a regular who has seen duty in the major games this season.

Paul Mackesey, the Lynn boy, is the only sophomore on the team, all of the other men having been members of last season's varsity squad.

COLGATE IS STRONG

McLaughry considers Colgate the strongest combination that the Bruin has met this season, and Bruin hopes were none too high for a victory over the famous Maroon eleven, when coaches closed out the drill today.

Brown will be outweighed in every position except the guards, and the power of the fast-stepping Colgate backfield has caused plenty of concern all this week.

McLaughry has confined most of his attention this week to the perfecting of the aerial, and indications point to a liberal use of that weapon in an attempt to gain the yardage that will be needed if Brown is to emerge the winner.

FINAL FOR BROWN STARS

Jim Munroe, Capt. C. H. Edwards and Nelson Munson, regulars, and Bob Carton and Paul Babcock, letter men who have held down places on the second team, will be playing their last game for the Bruins tomorrow. Munroe, Edwards and Munson have been on two previous teams that have met Colgate, and all three have played full-time roles in three years of Brown varsity football.

Colgate will arrive late today and will get in a light workout on Brown field after the Bruin had topped off his work.

Coach Kerr, meeting a Brown team for the first time, will field his strongest combination, with Stromiello and Ord, ends; Huntington and Haines, tackles; Doyle and Gillson, guards; Capt. Cox, center; Tabick, quarterback; Hart and Dowler, halfbacks, and Macaluso, fullback. The kickoff is set for 11 a. m.

Washington Offers Thistlethwaite Job

Chicago, Nov. 27 (INS)—Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite of the University of Wisconsin has been offered the coaching post held by Enoch Bagshaw at the University of Washington, according to word received here today.

Earl Campbell, representing Washington University, is here at present, but refuses to admit that the post has been definitely offered to anyone as yet.

Thistlethwaite declinel to comment on the report, but many of the rumors regarding his pending appointment.

Schoolboy Elevens in Objective Games Tomorrow

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

MEDFORD AND MALDEN TILT TOPS LIST

A TASTY dish of schoolboy football is served tomorrow morning when the traditional rival clash in their objective games of this football season.

Malden at Medford, Salem at Beverly, Boston English and Boston Latin at Braves field, and Dorchester and Commerce, also at the Wigwam, Lynn English and Lynn Classical are a few of the fine grid wars slated for tomorrow.

Malden and Medford rivalry dates back 40 years and this long term of rivalry, plus the fact that each team is strong, has caused a big demand for the tickets. More than 17,000 pasteboards have been sold.

Malden, which has won every game it played in the Bay State, must be at top form to win over the Blue and White. Medford went through without a defeat until it met Waltham, which team won over Stubbs Collins boys.

Medford figures any season a success which marks a win over Malden, as the eleven will be fighting to knock Malden out of the unbeaten class. Capt. Spellman of Medford is the boy whom Malden must stop.

Ed Goodreau has his best Malden eleven ready for action. Rob Lapidus, Malden guard, one of the season's best, has recovered from his leg injury, and will be in there. McCarthy, end, and Fenton, guard, are other fine Blue and Gold linemen.

Sam Fishman and Johnny O'Brien, in the Malden backfield, ought to make the going tough for the Medford clan tomorrow. The teams should put up one of the best games in the history of their grid meetings.

Salem goes to Beverly for its war of the day. Salem is unbeaten as yet, and if it winds up its regular schedule tomorrow with a win, we'll be claiming a slice of the state title.

Norman Rood, Salem star halfback, is a great all around performer. Bill L'Italien, fullback, also is a good player.

On the Salem line Pszonny, guard, is good. He not only carries out the usual guard assignments, but also is a fine place kicker.

Beverly has not as good a record as Salem, but it is a strong eleven, and may surprise Bill Broderick and his Salem squad.

Somerville goes to Russell Field, Cambridge, where it meets Rindge Tech in a battle which settles the final standing of the Suburban League teams. If Somerville wins or ties Rindge, Charley Dickerman's boys get the crown.

However, the worst Somerville can get is a tie with Rindge for the title, which is the result if Rindge takes to the victory.

Somerville has a splendid half back in Francis Escott, and a heavy plunging fullback in Eddie Marino. Jim Ryan and Joe Regan, left end and tackle, respectively, are a line pair who should do a lot of damage to the Rindge attack.

Boyle, Rindge back, is heavy, fast and experienced. If Somerville can stop Boyle and Gilgun it is doing a lot toward winning that Suburban League title.

St. Mary's high of Brookline and St. Clement's high of Somerville tilt at Dilboy Field tomorrow morning, in the final game of the Catholic High School League race for the Cardinal O'Connell trophy.

Capt. Kenney, Connie Maloney, Tommy Griffin, Roger Haley and John Welch of St. Mary's should make things interesting for the St. Clement's boys.

Waltham has recovered from that tough fray with B. C. high last Saturday, when the Watch City team was beaten by the intown eleven. Waltham has a great grid team. Phil Pendergast has broken away at least once in every game this year, and is apt to slip through Brockton for one or two scores.

Benny Murray has brought his Shoe City eleven along slowly this season, however, and the team now is ready for the hardest kind of opposition. Brockton should make things hot for Waltham.

Cambridge Latin goes to Everett tomorrow and here should be a great battle. The Cantabs have not had much luck this year, with ineligibles and injured members of the squad robbing Leander McDonald of his chances for a good year.

The light Cantab line, though, has come through nobly and if the Cambridge backfield can click, Everett will have a hard time.

Johnny Del Isola and his mates are primed to wind up their season with a win over the Cantab eleven.

A flock of other fine games are on tomorrow. Lynn Classical and Lynn Classical should stage a great scrap for the Lynn fans. Punchard at Stoneham, Newton at Brookline, Lawrence at Lowell and Manchester, N. H., at Haverhill are a few more of the tilts tomorrow which offer a lot of good football for the schoolboy fans.

St. Alphonsus Meets Brookline Tomorrow

The St. Alphonsus A. A. will tackle the Brookline Collegians in the annual Turkey Day classic tomorrow afternoon at Brookline ave. playgrounds.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

"THE fight game has finally secured some tone," remarked Mr. Boston as he breezed into Jim Toland's gym to find a young man sporting a huge diamond ring on the little finger of his left duke whanging away at a heavy punching bag.

Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, was coaching the boxing millionaire.

"Keep punching," shouted Sharkey. "Don't stand there flatfooted. Get up on your toes."

"Who is your latest protege?" demanded Mr. Boston as he sat down next to Sharkey.

"Take a peek for yourself," advised Sharkey.

"Mickie Alpert in the flesh," said Mr. Boston laughingly. "How come the king of Boston's night clubs to don the padded mittens?"

"Let Mickie answer that one," chirped Sharkey.

His workout completed, Mickie mitted Mr. Boston.

"I have to get some exercise to keep in condition," declared Mickey. "I have always admired Sharkey, and he told me to drop in here and he would put me through the paces. I guess it's easier to be a wow in a night club than it is to knock 'em kicking in the gym.

"How did I look?"

"I liked the diamond ring on your left duke," replied the veteran. That ought to help in the mixups at close quarters."

PHIL BUCCOLA dropped over to hello Mr. Boston.

"I want to give you a straight tip," said Phil. "Riccardo Bertazzolo will knock Big Boy Rawson for a loop when they clash in a 10-round bout at the new Boston Arena on next Monday night. Bertazzolo is already in good condition.

"I consider Rawson a three-round fighter. If he doesn't win quickly, he is sure to get flattened.

"Nobody is knocking Bertazzolo out. He is one of the toughest big fellows in the business. Remember how he stuck his chin out to Jim Maloney at the Garden? Shamus is quite a thumper, but he didn't jar Riccardo.

"The Rawson bubble will burst after Bertazzolo crashes through with a few of his healthy body blows. There will be a knockout Monday night, and Bertazzolo will be the one to send the big sock over."

SAMMY FULLER, New England featherweight champion, told Mr. Boston he is in fine condition for his 10-round bout with Johnny Farr in the New York Garden on Friday night.

"Fuller should win and make an impression on New York boys," declared Mr. Boston.

MR. BOSTON watched Billy Murphy of Lowell and Andy Callahan, Lawrence Thunderbolt, breeze through a lively three-round workout.

"Murphy is likely to lick Bruce Flowers at the Boston Garden on Friday night," asserted Mr. Boston. "The weight for the tussle is 140 pounds. Murphy is already at this notch. It will be the first time in more than two years that Murphy has entered a ring with an opponent of his own weight. Billy has usually been obliged to give away eight to 10 pounds.

"I LOOK for a torrid battle when Callahan and Zeranby start swapping blows. This match is a natural. It will bring together New England's two outstanding lightweights. The winner will be in a position to claim the New England lightweight title."

Green Eleven Drills in Atlantic City

By BILL GRIMES

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 27—Comfortably quartered at the President Hotel on the famous Boardwalk, the Dartmouth squad is making final preparations for the Navy game, which will be played at Penn Stadium on Saturday.

With Memorial Field up in Hanover covered with snow and the thermometer flirting with zero, the Indians of the North camp late Monday afternoon and piled for warmer climes. It would have been impossible to have primed the Green for the Navy at home and the Dartmouth Athletic Council sanctioned the early departure.

Mayor A. M. Ruffu, Jr., turned over the use of the Municipal Stadium to Dartmouth, and the squad will work out there daily.

Bill Grimes

Head Coach Jackson Cannell will drive his squad at top speed again this afternoon and will wind up the strenuous work with a practise session tomorrow morning before the team departs for the Cornell-Pennsylvania game in Philadelphia. On Friday, the final polish will be applied, during a long signal drill.

GREEN NEEDS PRACTICE

Dartmouth has not been in action since the Cornell game two weeks ago and, due to the bad weather in the north country, the squad is badly in need of practice. The squad was rested after the Cornell game and by the time practice was resumed the field was covered with snow, forcing the Indians to seek the shelter of the indoor baseball cage.

Coach Cannell will start the same team against Navy that was in at the opening kickoff of the Cornell game. Al Marsters was left in Hanover but he is due to be in the Quaker City tomorrow, where he will witness the Cornell-Penn game with the Dartmouth squad.

Paul Crehan, the giant guard, who has been forced to retire in each of his last three starts, appears to be ready for action against the Navy. Crehan was injured in the Columbia game, losing a mouthful of teeth and then on the opening kickoff in the Harvard Stadium he was cut down and did not get back into the game until Cornell visited Hanover, when he lasted less than a period.

Hal Andres, Gay Bromberg and Charlie Nims are the first varsity center trio, with Capt. Ellis Armstrong and "Cowboy" Cole, tackles, and Hal Booma and Stan Yudicky on the wings.

MORTON AT QUARTER

Bill Morton, who sprang into prominence in the Brown game and then turned in a fine performance against Cornell, is established at quarter with Wild Bill McCall and Shep Wolff, wing backs, and Henry Johnson at full.

As Dartmouth's prayed Columbia, Harvard, Yale, Brown and Cornell in a row, the squad was in poor physical condition until this week. The rest has been very beneficial to the Indians. Hal Andres, Stan Yudicky and Gay Bromberg were badly battered up, but they have staged a comeback and will be at the peak of their form against the Navy.

$85 a Plate for Muldoon Dinner

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—The boxing world will rise on Friday night to pay homage to William Muldoon, aged "solid man" of sport, at a testimonial banquet in the Biltmore Hotel here.

The 85-year-old member of the New York State Athletic Commission will be the guest of 850 friends, who will pay $35 apiece for the privilege of paying their respects to him. Each reservation for the dinner will include a ringside seat for the bouts at Madison Sq. Garden, where Al Singer and Pete Nebo will meet in a bout.

Famous sports figures from all sections of the country will be grouped around the board. Following the dinner, which has been promised as "practically speechless," Mr. Muldoon will be presented with a life-sized oil painting of himself.

Woodsies to Play 'Recs'

The Woodsie-Providence game scheduled for Brookline field has postponed the grounds being occupied by the Brookline high school football eleven but the Hub management has arranged a game with the Lucy Recs at Blake Field which should be a good attraction on the holiday.

The elvens met once before this season and the Woodsies triumphed by a 6 to 3 score but they are not quite so strong now as they were then and the East Cambridge eleven is confident that they can reverse the score.

The contest starts at 2:30, and both clubs will fiel their regular elevens.

Rosenbloom Off Contenders' List

New York, Nov 27 (INS) — In consequence of Maxie Rosenbloom's defeat by Jimmy Slattery in Buffalo, Rosenbloom today was dropped from championship consideration in the light heavyweight division by the New York Boxing Commission and Slattery named in his place.

The commission then suggested that Madison Square Garden submit a new contract for its Dec 9 show, naming Slattery as Yale Okun's opponent, in which case the board promises to recognize the bout as a championship elimination test.

Rosenbloom originally was named as Okun's opponent. According to the local liat, Slattery, Okun, George Courtney and Lou Scozza now constitute those eligible to compete for the title left vacant by the resignation of Tommy Loughran.

TIGERS OFF FOR GAME WITH REDS

BOSTON TIGERS left today for Providence, where they will meet the Providence Reds in their fifth Canadian-American League game of the season.

Inasmuch as the Boston entry defeated the Rhoda Islanders, 11 to 5, last week, in Boston Garden, chances seem pretty good of continuing the present winning streak to four straight.

Manager Eddie Powers, however, expects a much harder game than the last one. Tigers will go out for the lead at the start and try to protect it in the hope of saving the regulars as much as possible for the second home game of the season, with Springfield Indians in the Garden tomorrow night.

If the Tigers can get over these two without defeat and without injury they will have established themselves at the top of the standing, out of the immediate reach of their rivals in games won, as well as goals scored.

At present the team is setting the scoring pace for all of professional hockey with 24 goals in four games.

Capt. Deacon Waite, leading scorer of the league, will be at his usual center position tonight, flanked by rugged Johnny Loucks and the brilliant "Yank" Boyd.

Reg Mackey, premier defense man of the league, has played thus far with a cracked rib, though his record of six goals does not indicate his handicap. He is just beginning to feel like himself and can be expected to go faster than ever.

Manager Powers took the entire squad to Providence and planned to use three sets of forwards and two sets of defense men against the Reds.

Calza Vs. Komar Tonight; Lewis and De Vito on Holiday

TWO SHOWS ARE OFFERED MAT FANS

By RINGSIDE

WRESTLING shows tonight and tomorrow night are sure signs that the Thanksgiving holidays are here.

Years the late George V. Tuohey used to stage wrestling carnivals in this city on Thanksgiving night. George felt that folks required a little relaxation after spending the day at home with the youngsters.

Billy Avery will stage a show at Mechanics Building tonight, which will feature George Calza and Joe "Bull" Komar in the main event.

Tomorrow night, at the Grand Opera House, Paul Bowser will offer Strangler Lewis, former world's champion, against Joe DeVito of Providence in his headline attraction.

Bowser has Joe Malcewicz and Pat McGill in the semifinal, which gives him a double windup.

CALZA, who tackles Komar at Mechanics Building tonight, will have the backing of the North End. George has always been popular with Italian mat fans. Calza comes here from New York, where he made a good showing against Dick Shikat on Monday night. Calza was tossed by Shikat, but he did well enough to warrant the promoter making him an offer for a return match.

Jack Reynolds, who claims the world's welterweight championship, will oppose Jackie Rogers, former Michigan star, while Glen Wade, giant Ohio grappler, will meet Carl Pojello, Lithuanian wrestler.

Jim McMillen, former Illinois star, and Ray Steele of California will clash in another match.

BOWSER'S show at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night is one of the best ever offered in this city.

Lewis, always a favorite with the fans, will have a big task on his hands when he clashes with Joe DeVito of Providence.

The Strangler is perhaps the greatest defensive wrestler of modern times. In seven years, only one man—Gus Sonnenberg—has been able to crash through his defensive lines. His defensive skill is aided and abetted by one of the most cruel and punishing holds in the sport, his headlock, and with that favorite weapon he hopes to crush the up and coming young DeVito.

Lewis worked lightly at Toland's gymnasium. His weight was announced as 220 pounds when he finished his session, and the ex-champion, who has been wrestling regularly, is confident that he will make his local debut for the fall season a great success.

DeVito won the right to meet Lewis by virtue of his sensational showing against Joe Malcewicz in the Arena last week. For 45 minutes he outwrestled and outrought the clever Malcewicz, and though the bout was called a draw, there was no doubt in the minds of the thousands of fans that DeVito had thoroughly outclassed Malcewicz.

PAUL BOWSER has signed one of the greatest semi-final matches ever arranged for Boston—a battle between Malcewicz and Pat McGill, smiling Irish heavyweight. McGill is a greater favorite in Boston than ever before because of his great though losing war with Gus Sonnenburg at the Arena last week. For a whole hour, he gave Gus the Goat the worst beating the old Dartmouth star has ever received.

He held the heavyweight crown in the hollow of his hand until with Sonnenberg high over his head, he stumbled backwards and crashed unconscious to the floor. McGill and Malcewicz are expected to furnish one of the most brilliant matches of the year.

Henri Digiano, undefeated French champion, will meet John Grandovich, big Russian, and Ed George, former captain of the University of Michigan wrestling debut, will make his second local appearance against Charlie Donnell of Norwood.

Bowdoin Six to Play 13 Games

Brunswick, Me., Nov. 27—Bowdoin's hockey squad will begin practice after the Thanksgiving holiday in preparation for a schedule of 13 hockey games, starting on January 4.

The schedule follows:

January 4, Bates; 8, New Hampshire at Durham; 11, Colby; 13, Northeastern; 15, Bates at Lewiston; 17, Boston University at Boston; 20, Colby at Waterville; February 10, New Hampshire; 13, Bates; 14, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; 16, Colby at Waterville; Boston University (tentative); Northeastern at Boston (tentative).

Brighton T. T. Plays Wilsons Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon the football fans of Brighton and Allston will have a feast when the Wilson A. C. and the Brighton Town Team will play for the championship of Brighton and Allston.

This game is the talk of the district as both are very keen rivals and both will put their strongest teams on the field to win. Both teams have very good lines and it will be interesting to watch them battle.

PREDICTS WIN BY KAYO

Andy Callahan, sensational Lawrence lightweight, who says he will chill Jake Zeramby in their 10-round battle at the Boston Garden on Friday night.

Callahan-Zeramby Hot After Mandell

BOTH Babe McCorgary, hard-hitting Canadian, and Bruce Flowers, ebony flash of New Rochelle, N. Y., principals in the Boston Garden's triple windup to be staged Friday night, are due to arrive in the Hub late today to put on the finishing touches to their training for their important events.

It is expected that a huge throng of holiday fans will be on hand at Kelley and Hayes' gym tomorrow to get an early glimpse at these ring stars in action.

McCorgary comes to the Hub to take on the hard punching Arthur Flynn of Lawrence in one of the ten-round bouts, while Flowers will oppose Billy Murphy of Lowell.

In the third of the feature tenrounders, Jake Zeramby of Lynn and Andy Callahan of Lawrence, each claiming the New England lightweight crown, will clash in a bout which is almost certain to prove one of the best battles of the entire season.

With six main bout performers on this triple windup card, such as has never before been offered to Hub ring fans, it is expected that one of the largest throngs of the indoor season will turn out to witness the show.

OF course interest is centered in the meeting between Zeramby and Callahan, a couple of bitter rivals who have been sidestepping each other for many months, and yesterday Garden officials provided a new incentive for these boys when negotiations were opened with Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, to meet the winner.

A change in the proposed plans of the Garden was necessitated when it was learned that Honeyboy Finnegan of Dorchester will be unable to don the gloves again for six months. Finnegan had only recently agreed to meet the winner, but he underwent an operation for an infected knee in a Philadelphia hospital, which put such a bout far out of his thoughts.

For this reason, Garden officials immediately decided to make a bid for the champion and a flattering offer has been made Eddie Kane, manager of Mandell, and it is expected that a reply will be received today.

While both Zeramby and Callahan are disappointed that they will not get a chance to meet Finnegan, the promise of a match with the title holder seems to have greatly increased interest in the bout and both of these boys plan no let's moments over the holiday for they expect to continue their training sessions at Toland's gymnasium.

NOT since the historic meeting between Matty Baldwin and Eddie Murphy, which old time fans well remember has there been such interest shown in a lightweight match in this city. The heavyweights have been the big cards recently but with such bitter rivals due to swap wallops Friday night, no doubt a capacity house will greet them.

The hard punching Callahan indicated that he plans to carry the battle to Zeramby's body and his crushing punches are certain to offset the Lynn boy's long left, which has carried him to so many victories.

leyhorse in his right thigh. George is practicing drop-kicking and forward passing but not running through signals.

Johnny Dixon roosted a dozen or more 60-yard punts and then hied off to the showers. Dixon's left leg has a bruised muscle. He'll take life easy until game time. The loss of Dixon, though it isn't likely, would be the hardest blow Boston College's chances could suffer.

B. C. OPTIMISTIC

The Eagle squad is full of pep and any downheartedness is hard to detect. Slowly, but surely, the outfit is working itself into the right mental mood. They keep reading the tales of Holy Cross' power, the quoted 2-to-1 odds and the news that they're going to lose their third game of this season. But they have to be shown.

Coach Joe McKenney seems to be the happiest of the lot. Joe is just letting things drift along their usual way and polishing up a few of the fine points.

"We'll win," said Joe this morning, "if the team plays the same brand of football it showed against Fordham. I admit it isn't a real good football team here at B. C. but it's an eleven that will fight all the way."

Joe was also pleased with the fact that his team has been made the under-dogs in this coming fray.

"That's going to help us a lot," he added. McKenney is a firm believer in the theory that psychology can win football contests and much of his hope arises from that source.

Pete Herman and Al Morelli, the rough and rugged B. C. linemen who play side by side, are going to give Holy Cross plenty of trouble. These two giants are in perfect trim, physically and mentally. If Holy Cross is to gain through their side of the line they'll have to do it over the dead bodies of the two B. C. bad men.

GRID CLASH FOR CARDINAL'S TROPHY

His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell, head of the archdiocese of Boston, has donated a beautiful trophy to the Catholic high school league, indicating thereby his real interest in athletics for schoolboys.

The new trophy will be awarded to the winner of the St. Clement's high-St. Mary's high game which will be played tomorrow morning at Dilboy Field in Somerville. This is the final league game. St. Mary's high comes from Brookline.

The cardinal is unusually interested in games for boys and is heartily in favor of the parochial high school league which is just finishing its first season of football. The cup is of sterling silver, of graceful design and makes a wonderful trophy. The award is in the way of a surprise and adds very much to the interest in the contest.

It is difficult to name the winner in the game at Dilboy Field. Both teams have excellent records but St. Mary's high appears to have more experience.

MAROONS PIN DEFEAT ON BRUINS

THE Bruins were crushed in the final period at the Boston Garden, where the Rossmen dropped their first game in five starts to the Montreal Maroons.

After making a creditable showing for two periods the Bruins, who were also without Harry Oliver, crumbled before the crushing and sensational attacks of the Maroons, who stacked up four goals in the final to soundly trounce the Hub team, 6 to 1.

Eddie Shore, hero of many a scrap in the National League loop was kept out of the lineup. He did show up, however, but was in civies and with his cut cheek, broken nose and blackened eyes, watched the fray from a box with his wife. Harry Oliver was still on the sick list and unable to compete.

The Maroons were a powerful team pitched in their determination to pay back for the defeat they took on their home ice last week. They were tough and rugged and took plenty of penalties. But they were clever, and carried their good luck charms all evening. They looked good and much that they tried succeeded. On the other hand the Bruins were in position loads of times to tally but just couldn't put it across. Benedict had the most saves, had the more scrimmages piled up in from of his net, had his goal posts hit twice by Bruin shots and came out of it all with only a single count scored against him.

Camels have always welcomed comparison with any other cigarette because the true test of value is the pleasure to be found in smoking.

The most important thing for smokers to know is that genuine cigarette quality must begin with the selection of tobaccos. Nothing can take the place of quality tobacco. Thus the extraordinary goodness of Camels begins with the choicest tobaccos grown and these are blended with expert skill to achieve the mildness and surpassing fragrance of this great cigarette. It is this genuineness of quality which smokers appreciate when they have passed the experimental stage and know real smoking pleasure.

MAN FREED AS SLAYER TO WED KAFFIR WOMAN

London, Nov. 27 (AP)—Oscar Slater, who spent nearly 20 years of his life under sentence and conviction for murder, only finally to be exonerated and awarded $30,000 for wrongful imprisonment was said by the Daily Mail today to be contemplating marriage with a full-blooded South African Kaffir woman.

"My fiancee was born in Basutoland," the Mail quoted Slater as saying in an interview given at Glasgow. "Her parents, who are wealthy, have plantations there. I met her more than 20 years ago when staying in Paris.

"We were at the same hotel and became very friendly. She was then scarcely 20 years of age and had just finished her education.

"We wrote to each other occasionally, but I did not see her for many years until one day when I was in Peterhead prison she came from Paris to see me. Her faith [illegible]

"Throughout long years in prison we wrote and when I was released we met in Glasgow and became engaged.

[illegible] but from agitation growing out of Slater's appeal an act of Parliament was passed creating a court of criminal appeals for Scotland.

Finally, in July, 1928, the former verdict was set aside, Slater was given his freedom, and the government awarded him $30,000 damages for his wrongful imprisonment.

DEATH CLOSES 12 BANKS

Oklahoma City, Nov. 27 (AP)—C. O. Graves Shull, state bank commissioner, announced today that 12 state banks failed to open their doors today.

The closings were an immediate result of the unexpected death last night of H. A. McCuley, 55, of Sapulpa, who was interested in all twelve.

Representatives of the State Bank Department were placed in charge at each institution.

The banks announced as closed were: Sapulpa State Bank; The Bank of Mounds; Henryetta State Bank; Bank of Commerce, Weleetka; First State Bank, Vian; Citizens State Bank, Webbers Falls; Davenport State Bank, Dalton State Bank; First State Bank, Terlton; Avant State Bank; Keystone State Bank; and the Bank of Kellyville.

Total deposits of the 12 failed banks, as of October 4, given in the last statements to the bank commission were $2,520,976. Capital stock totaled $350,000.

McCauley was president of all the banks but those at Henryetta, Webbers Falls and Vian.

Lack of Funds Closes Lowell Department

Lowell, Nov. 27—The city lands and buildings department, employing about 50 skilled mechanics and tradesmen, was ordered to shut down indefinitely tonight by Superintendent John E. Monahan. Failure of the finance commission to appropriate additional funds for the department at its meeting yesterday was the cause. Another attempt to have the commission renew the exhausted treasury of the department will be made at its meeting next week.

Urges Use of Law to Fill Army Division

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—A selective service law was described today in the annual report of Gen. J. F. Summerall, chief of staff, as the one method of procuring recruits "for the far from complete infantry division of the army."

In other respects the report is fanciful a generally satisfactory condition throughout the army.

Letters From Readers

Commutes by Train Rather Than Auto

Editor Boston American:

Commute to Boston by railroad train, not by auto. I have tried both. For 35 years I have commuted to Boston on the Boston & Albany and New Haven and never had an accident of any kind.

I tried driving for a short time into Boston by auto and had three accidents in a short time. One was my own fault.

I am through with auto commuting. It is too much on the nerves.

There is too much congestion on thoroughfares; too many signal lights; too much lost time.

With others, I have gone back to the stability of the railroad trains. They are comfortable and above all you have not got to have your eyes peeled for the antics of that other driver.

Costs Everyone $2 a Year for Rats

Editor Boston American:

Do your readers know that every man, woman and child in these United States spend $2 a year supporting a rat?

This is the statement put forth by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. There are more than 125,000,000 rats in this country. Every rat does two dollars damage yearly.

There are rats on every street in Boston except in many of the streets out of the congested district. There are rats enough on Atlantic ave. to kill the whole population if the inhabitants of Boston would allow these rodents full away.

A quarter billion of dollars could be saved if we could kill every rat in this country.

Thanks "Eye and Ear" for Treatment

Editor Boston American:

Some time ago I had occasion to seek treatment for an eye infection at the Eye and Ear Infirmary of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

They were so careful of me and gave me such kind service during the time that I had to go there, that I want to make public through your paper, my obligations to nurses and doctors.

I told my feelings to one of the doctors and he replied: "Oh, that's nothing. We are doing that work daily."

I think that the public are not aware of the great service being rendered by this institution. Through their social service, one of the visitors has called upon me weekly. I hope I have not asked too much of your paper to publish this letter of my thanks to that hospital.

"Uncle" Should Cut Officers' Salaries

Editor Boston American:

Now, that the government is slicing buts off salaries of the civilian clerks in the army, not only in this corps area, but in the nine corps areas of the United States, does it not seem fair to begin with the officers higher up rather than with those whose salaries are so low that they are not equal to the strain put upon them?

Who can stand this reduction better? That is the question.

TICKLING IN THROAT KEEPS DORIS AWAKE

DORIS GROVER

REM brings relief with usual speed

Little Doris Grover of 200a Q St., Washington, D. C., was kept awake one night with a bad cough, the result of an awful tickling in her throat. In the morning her mother fortunately noticed a REM advertisement in the paper. She bought a bottle of REM at a drug store on Pennsylvania Ave., and now she reports "REM relieved Doris' cough right away." The reason for the quick return isn't hard to explain. REM contains a special ingredient that clings to the throat, soothing and relieving the irritation very quickly. And that's true for grown-ups as well as children, for REM is a most effective cough remedy for young and old. Ask your druggist for REM—every druggist has it.

REM is quicker. Clings to the throat. Starts relief immediately

TURKEYS CHEAP AND PLENTIFUL IN BOSTON

If you haven't ordered your turkey yet, today is an excellent time for bargains at Faneuil Hall, which this year is heavily overstocked.

Retailers at the market look for a sharp drop in prices by late afternoon and early evening. The stalls are all loaded with fine specimens from New England and points west, with prices ranging from 39 cents to 65 cents.

Last year, when the birds were comparatively scarce, those left unsold at 7:30 o'clock on the eve of Thanksgiving were dumped on the last-minute market for 25 and 30 cents. With this experience in mind, many predict a similar situation for tonight, for this year the market is crowded.

Some 75,000 Massachusetts raised turkeys have flooded the market. The special commission on the necessities of life at the State House announced that 170 carloads of turkeys have arrived in Boston, fully 25 carloads more than last year.

[illegible] are cheap, in addition to the law of supply and demand. While birds "tagged" as being native grown are priced at 60 and 55 cents, many retailers are asking only 45 and 49 cents for [illegible]

This year the turkeys are cheaper than any year since the war, but up to Tuesday night dealers had expressed disappointment at the small crowds at the market.

All fruits and nut prices are much lower. The Fruit Growers' Association has announced that oranges are the lowest in ten years.

Quiet Thanksgiving at the White House

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—Thanksgiving will be observed at the White House tomorrow in a quiet, old fashioned way. In the morning President and Mrs. Hoover will attend church services and then will spend the balance of the day with a few friends.

In the evening the handsome mahogany table in the state dining room will be filled with both domesticated and wild turkeys, along with the trimmings" found on the board of most American homes.

Morganthaus Visit Daughter in Paris

Reno, Nev., Nov. 27 (AP)—Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, accompanied by Mrs. Morgenthau, arrived here today for a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Agnes Morgenthau Wertheim.

It is believed Mrs. Wertheim, who has resided here several weeks, is preparing to file suit for divorce, although she has refused to confirm or deny the report. Mrs. Wertheim's husband is Maurice Wertheim, New York banker.

TEXT OF WORLD BANK'S PLANS REACHES U. S.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—The text of the trust agreement for the bank of international settlements drawn up at the recent conference of experts at Baden-Baden was published today by the New York Herald-Tribune in a dispatch from Paris.

The trust agreement was not made public with the charter and statutes of the bank on Nov. 14 because it must be approved by the governments concerned at the forthcoming second Hague conference.

The text, as revealed by the Herald-Tribune, contains provisions relating to issuance and marketing of reparation bonds provided for in the Young plan under which the bank for international settlements was outlined. The principal provisions relative to the issuance and marketing of bonds are contained in Article XII, which provides that the international bank, as trustee, will be guided in matters relative to mobilization of annuities "by the provisions of the Young plan which shall govern nominations." The bank also will inform the creditor government when it seems "practically possible" to proceed with issuance of bonds.

Another clause is concerned with marketing bonds and the sole powers of the central banks. The states of one or more governments concerned propose an international issue on other markets than their own respective market, the trustee, if it considers after examination that market conditions justify such operation, shall take measures to proceed with the issue of these bonds and to determine, after making sure that the central banks concerned have no objection the markets on which such offers may be made."

BETTER LIQUOR IN N. H.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 27—In an interview on the liquor question in New Hampshire, Charles D. Howard, State chemist, today said that bootleg liquor samples submitted to him in recent months had indicated a distinct decrease in beverages containing poison and other injurious ingredients.

The alcoholic content of the samples received by Howard has, he said, in practically every case been pure. Denatured alcohol has seldom been found, he said.

Regarding the "home brew" industry, Howard said malt and hop products has supplanted the once popular prunes and raisin concoctions and that, on the whole, this beverage is of a better quality now than ever before.

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN, beautiful, young brunette, meets the lad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator. Guy is developing a perfect airplane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure. Later Guy receives a visit from Barbara and her young son, upon whom old Bryce squanders a fortune. Tom Burns, a workman, rages about the unfairness of wealth. His invalid son is dying for want of necessities. When Bryce refuses a loan, Burns swears revenge. He robs the office safe and is captured after a grim fight. Preparations are being made for Pat to enter college. Hearing much gossip about the youth of today, Mrs. Dawn prays that Pat will remain the sweet girl she is. Pat's father dies and Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest, but Guy gets them back. Bryce stops financing the plane factory.

Now Read On

CHAPTER 22

FOR two days Guy worked in a state of nervous apprehension. What would Bryce do? Some humiliation, some bitter, punishing move would certainly be the outcome of the quarrel.

Saturday it came.

Since that night Tom Burns broke into the safe Bryce had adopted the check system of payment. He signed the pay checks the first thing each Saturday morning.

But now at 11 o'clock the foreman of the plant called Guy on the phone: "The payroll hasn't come over."

At Guy's inquiry the bookkeeper replied only: "The checks are waiting to be signed. Mr Bryce hasn't come in yet. [illegible] would be here any moment."

Half an hour later the bookkeeper said this: "I called Mr Bryce on the phone. He's in his downtown office and is not able to come out. He told me to get the payroll money from you."

"No," said Guy slowly, "you misunderstand. I'll get in touch with Mr. Bryce at once."

In a furious quiet Guy stood at his table. Useless to phone Bryce. He would give a mocking laugh and hang up.

Yet his position was untenable. It was ridiculous. He was compelled to meet the wages of his workmen. The Labor Commission would force him. He couldn't take out a personal revenge in this manner.

"Have your men wait," Guy told the foreman. "Bryce has been delayed. I'm going out to get the payroll now."

Bryce was not surprised when Guy, brushing past the stenographer, came flinging to the inner office. He turned a paper-cutter end to end, and after a moment, glanced with cool, narrowed eyes into Guy's face. "Good morning," he said with a crisp nod.

"The men are waiting for their pay-checks!"

"So I've heard."

"You can't take out your hostility to me on your wage earners."

"Why should I pay your workmen, Mr. Elliott?"

"For the same reason you've been paying them for the past three years. I've brought the checks for you to sign. The men will be kept an hour overtime as it is."

Bryce took the checks and with a rap of his knuckles, set them on the far edge of the desk. "I'm not aiding the pay-checks of your laborers. Get it straight, Mr. Elliott! I'm done financing you! I'm not putting up another cent to keep your company operating."

"The company is mine in name only. The property is yours."

"And remains mine. But you keep the men working on your plane at your own expense. Understand?"

"You have a contract with me."

"Read the contract."

Said Guy through his shut teeth: "You can't pull any damned crooked stuff like this! I'm telling the men to call Monday for their wages. See that the wages are there."

On his return to the plant, Guy found the foreman waiting outside the workroom: "What's the matter? Are you and Bryce going to split? One of you has got to meet the payroll. Pretty dangerous to pull a stunt like this."

Through some mysterious channels the rumor of the quarrel had filtered all over the yard. The men loitered in groups, groumbling and truculent.

"Tell them to come Monday," said Guy evasively. "Their money will be here."

I hope, that's not a stall. These are mean fellows to cheat——"

Bryce would pay. He'd have to. Yet that ominous, threatening device he had hurled: "Read your contract, Elliott!" Was there some slick loophole through which he could escape, leaving Guy responsible?

With still lightning clarity Guy recalled the incidents leading to his partnership with Bryce.

Bryce had come to him with this glittering offer: Guy should take charge of the airplane factory, which was already a going concern. He should perfect his design of the plane. Bryce would put it on the market. He, of course,

SLAIN COMING FROM BEDSIDE OF ILL WIFE

Police Say Youth's Friends Feared He Would Give "Racket" Secrets

Because he "knew too much" about Boston racketeers and had planned to "beat the rap" by telling the police what he knew, Angelo Sprizza, 23, alleged gambler and bootlegger, was "placed on the spot" and slain.

This is the theory of Hub police following Sprizza's death at the Haymarket Relief Station, a few minutes after he had been stabbed by an unknown man, on Greenough lane, off Charter st., North End.

The youth was slain while on his way home from a hospital where his wife is ill. She has not been informed of the tragedy.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, took personal charge of the investigation immediately on being notified of Sprizza's death.

Sprizza was dragged 300 yards from the point where he was stabbed and then tossed into a doorway on Hanover st. The racketeer's head was nearly severed from his shoulders, police said, by the fury of his slayer's attack.

Sprizza appeared in municipal court only yesterday on a charge of illegal transportation of liquor. At that time, Sergt. Harry Butler of Station 4, Hanover st., requested a continuance for a week, saying Sprizza's wife was ill.

As he already had a suspended sentence pending, conviction in the latest case would have meant a long term in jail, police said.

From various sources detectives learned that associates of Sprizza feared he planned to turn against his racketeer comrades to save himself from jail.

His varied activities, police said, gave him intimate information of the liquor racket from all angles and, had he "squealed," he would have brought many local gunrunners into the toils of the law.

Within a few minutes of the time he died at the Haymarket Relief Station, his father and brothers arrived.

Assisting Doyle in his probe, are Inspector James Dennessy of the headquarters homicide squad. Inspector Joseph Watkins, fingerprint expert, and Sergt. William J. Harrow of the headquarters special squad.

B. U. Students Off for Holidays

Having attended their last classes at noon today, the majority of Boston University's host of undergraduates are scattering to the four points of the compass in their annual exodus for the Thanksgiving holidays. They will resume classes on Monday morning.

Two colleges, those of business administration and practical arts and letters, got away to an early start when their classes closed last night.

PHONE WAGES TO STAY UP

In response to a letter from the Massachusetts Industrial Commission, addressed to the heads of industrial and public utility organizations in this State asking those organizations if they would be willing publicly to announce at this time their purpose to maintain wages at the present levels, President M. B. Jones of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. replied as follows:

"I would say that back in the closing weeks of 1920 we advised our employes that we proposed to maintain their wages under the conditions that then existed.

"They know so well that this is the policy of the company at the present time that it is scarcely necessary for us to say anything to them with reference to the matter, but we have again given them this assurance and we are very glad to add our testimony to that of other employers in order that the public may be advised as to what our position is."

Year for Special Cop in Hit-Run Death

John Gallagher, special police officer at Nahant, was found guilty as a hit-and-run driver and was given a term of one year in jail by Judge George B. Sears, sitting in District Court at Salem. Gallagher, who is an officer in the National Guard, assigned to a Somerville unit, appealed.

On a charge of manslaughter Gallagher was found not guilty, but he was found guilty of charges of going away after an accident and with operating so as to endanger life. He was given six months in each count. Police alleged he drove the car which struck and killed Ernest T. Phillips of Lynn on Canal st., Salem, Nov. 14.

ADMIRAL LYON IS BURIED AT MT. AUBURN

Two Survivors of Those Who Fought With Him Remain to Attend Funeral

But two survivors of the men who fought with him remained to attend the simple burial service of Rear Admiral Henry Ware Lyon at Mount Auburn crematory chapel at noon today. The Rev. Abbot Peterson of Brookline officiated.

Sergt. William Jennings, Admiral Lyon's orderly, and Lieut. Ernest V. Sandstrom were all who were left of Admiral Lyon's command.

The rest of the tiny gathering included the admiral's widow, his son, Capt. Henry Ware Lyon, Jr., navigator of the airplane Southern Cross, and a few close relatives and friends.

Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the navy yard, was represented by Capt. Rufus C. Johnston.

After military rites in Washington, where Admiral Lyon died Friday, the body was cremated and the remains brought here today for the burial service.

The ashes of Admiral Lyon will lie beside those of his father, Dr. Henry Lyon, in Mount Auburn cemetery.

Admiral Lyon served 45 years in the navy after being graduated from Charlestown high school. He was born in Boston 84 years ago.

Following the chapel services, Capt. Lyon started with his mother for their home in Paris, Me., as Mrs. Lyon is in ill health.

CO-EDS TO AID HUB NEEDY

Determined to make tomorrow a Thanksgiving Day of joy the German Club at Boston University college of liberal arts will distribute baskets to the needy German families in Greater Boston.

Most of the club's funds, accumulated since the start of the club, are being used for this purpose.

The club, in order to distribute the baskets to those families who are really needy, received co-operation from the German Aid Society on Chardon st. and have drawn up a list of the German families in want.

All the girls in the club will have the mission of joy spreaders. The officers of the club are Judith Brana of Lawrence, Laura Kmiech of Ipswich, Rebecca Rogosha of Lynn, Marion Maichman of Falmouth and Elizabeth Glover of Ipswich.

County Officers Seek More Salary

An outline of the continuous duties of a medical examiner and a plea for an increase in the salaries of such officials by Dr. Timothy Leary, medical examiner of Suffolk County, featured the hearing before the special commission which is studying the salaries of county officers, district court judges and others.

At the hearings there were appeals for salary increases for judges, clerks of courts, probation officers and others. Dr. Leary, in discussing the duties and salaries of medical examiners, suggested that the salary should be at the rate of $7500 a year and greater time off for research and other work for the betterment of the service.

Young Shepard suffered a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries. Police [illegible] to learn the registration number of the truck or the names of the other boys who were [illegible].

NEW SYSTEM IN EFFECT ON DEC. 15

Applicants Must Prove Freedom From Color Blindness on Lights

Ability to read 88 road signs at a distance and proper eyesight to distinguish red, yellow and green lights are among the new requirements of automobile license operators' tests which will go into effect December 15.

Registrar George A. Parker today announced three changes in the system of granting licenses. Definite appointments must be made for examinations. Applications will be asked orally by the laws of traffic upon the road. The eye tests are regarded as the most important change, it [illegible] of the kind ever attempted in Massachusetts.

The road signs which a prospective operator must be able to read at usual road distances include railroad signs, turns, stops, [illegible] school zones, theater exit zones, etc.

After December 15 all applicants for examination must apply in writing for an appointment several days ahead.

The stating of a definite time for examination," said Capt Parker, "will make it more certain that those who appear for examination will have had the opportunity to make themselves proficient before they appear."

In the questions to be asked [illegible] has been added since the passage of the law. The law requires use of hand signals on state highways has been stamped into the heads of operators' cars are now available for advance [illegible] by applicants.

Thankful for Peace, MacDonald Visit

The visit of Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, to the United States was cited in the invocation of a Thanksgiving prayer by the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean of Yale Divinity School, at King's Chapel today.

"We must think of the great possibilities of the Kellogg peace pact and be thankful of all nations the world around it. We must be thankful for the revolt of the young men of this generation against war, their emphasis upon the cultivation of good will and [illegible] peace," he said.

Mayor's Sons to Carve Turkeys

Mayor Nichols and his two sons, Chester and Clark, will carve the turkeys at the dinners to be held in the D. Loring Judkins Home for the men and women on Thanksgiving Day. Each year the dinner is given by the Judkins Association to the homeless and penniless, no tickets being required and no questions being asked.

Oliver C. Elliott, superintendent of the home is in charge of arrangements.

SOUTH BOSTON MAN KILLED AS STOLEN AUTO RAMS INTO POLE

DORCHESTER YOUTH HELD IN CRASH

Fatal Mishap Ends Long Chase by Police Along Road in Southboro

A South Boston man is dead and a Dorchester man is under arrest at Southboro, charged with larceny of an automobile, as a result of a crash at Cody Corner, between Southboro and Framingham early today, following a thrilling chase by Chief of Police William Wentworth of Southboro

Paul Campbell, 21 single of D st., South Boston, is dead.

Charles F Gill, 20, of 19 Howell st., Dorchester, was the man arrested.

According to Boston police Campbell stole an expensive automobile in South Boston during the night. While on Broadway he picked up Gill. They decided to go New York.

As they entered Southboro Chief Wentworth, who was doing patrol duty in his car, gave chase, as he claimed the South Boston men were traveling at an excessive rate of speed. The chase continued for nearly two miles, when Campbell who was alleged to have been driving, lost control of the car at Cody Corner. The machine left the road and crashed into a telegraph pole Campbell died instantly, his skull being fractured when he was thrown through the windshield Gill was slightly bruised. The machine was wrecked and the telegraph pole was snapped off

Chief Wentworth, giving chase was only a few yards back of the car when it crashed into the pole Finding Campbell dead, he arrested Gill Investigation showed that the car had been previously reported stolen by the Foley Cab Co. At Marlboro police headquarters Gill admitted the car was stolen and told the police both he and Campbell were on their way to New York

TURKEY DINNER FOR PRISONERS

For the first time in the memory of the oldest inmate or attache, turkey will be served tomorrow at State Prison, as the feature of Thanksgiving dinner to be enjoyed by the prisoners.

Some of the inmates have not tasted turkey for three decades, as on all previous holidays it has been customary to serve roast pork.

More then 900 pounds of succulent bird have been contracted for by prison officials to be served tomorrow, and the rest of the menu will include turkey soup, cranberry sauce, squash, mashed potatoes, mince pie, coffee and bread.

Incidentally, each man who wishes it will get a whole mince pie.

During the day the inmates will enjoy a motion picture show and will have the regular holiday-extra recreation period.

PLEDGES B. & M. AID TO HOOVER

Thomas Nelson Perkins, acting president of the Boston & Maine Railroad, today pledged full co-operation with President Hoover's plan to stabilize employment.

Mr. Perkins said:

"President Hoover's action to insure stabilization of employment is a new and constructive step in economic statesmanship. It deserves full co-operation by industry, labor and business, as well as by governmental agencies. The New England railroad (the Boston & Maine) pledges the President full co-operation in his plan.

"We have spent for improvement projects this year approximately $22,000,000. We have already authorized several major improvement projects for the fall, which work now under way and to be continued as long as the weather permits. Our complete budget for construction and improvements next year will be a substantial one."

Complain of Smoke Nuisance at School

Owing to complaints from residents and from the State department of public utilities that the heating plant of the Newton high school created a nuisance in the neighborhood, the Newton school committee has taken steps to remedy the situation

The mayor has been asked by the committee to appoint heating experts to make a study of conditions.

Plan New Shoe Union

A meeting has been called for next Friday night at Deacon Hall, Washington st., by a committee of local shoe workers, for the purpose of establishing an independent union and eliminating further control on the part of the United Shoe Workers Union.

City Hospital patients, doctors and internes are going to have something else to be thankful for, and the cooks at the big institution are preparing. It's tough on the birds, but then that's just their destiny. Thirty-seven hundred pounds of turkey will be served to 1100 patients and 1000 attaches. There will be 2000 pounds of mashed potatoes, 1500 pounds of squash, five barrels of cranberry sauce, 200 mince pies, 75 plum puddings and the "fixings."

Mended Stocking Is Called 'Work of Art'

A child's mended stocking was being friendly with Mrs. Moody.

called a work of art in Middlesex Probate Court by Elmer E. Spear, counsel for Mrs. Catherine Wheeler, German war bride of Everett, who is seeking a divorce from William F. Wheeler, watchman and former member of the A. E. F.

The stocking was introduced as an exhibit to support Mrs. Wheeler's claim that she is capable of caring for her three children whose custody she is seeking. Her husband is contesting the suit.

Holding the small piece of hosiery aloft for the court to see, the attorney pointed to the mended spot and commented:

"Your honor, here is a work of art."

Army records, to secure which Atty. Spear made a hurried trip to Washington over the week-end, were offered in evidence at the trial. They were used to attack previous testimony of Wheeler

Mrs. Sarah Condy, a neighbor and friend of Mrs. Wheeler, was recalled to the witness stand and described how she and the libelant watched the home of another neighbor, Mrs. Kyle Moody in Everett. Wheeler is accused of be-

Describing an altercation in the Wheeler home one night at which both she and Mrs. Moody were present, Mrs. Condy testified that the former, referring to Mrs. Wheeler, turned to Wheeler and said, "Don't mind her, Bill. She's just a big, fat cow."

Mrs. Wheeler, also recalled to the stand, related how during a conversation about the Hall-Mills murder case, Mrs. Moody said to her:

"Would you really shoot me if I was in love with Bill?"

Mrs. Wheeler said she made no reply.

HOLD WOMAN IN GIRL VICE CASE

Jennie Taddeo, 54, of Sheafe st. North End, accused in the case of Helen Bryer, 17-year-old daughter of a New York policeman, was arrested today.

She was taken into custody in a Main st., Medford, house by Sergt Robert Mooney and Special Officer Mark Madden of Division 1, after a search which started in October.

The arrest was the sequel to the recent visit to Saugus made by Mooney, Madden and other officers armed with shotguns. What time the officers had been informed the Taddeo woman might be found in Saugus and that they might meet resistance.

The arrest was made on an indictment warrant and Mrs Taddeo was taken to Moak Superior Criminal Court for arraignment.

Recently a lineup was held at Station 1 for Helen Bryer to pick out a patrolman who she charged had visited the Sheafe st house. The girl identified an officer in the lineup, but later, when she was confronted with a patrolman in a private office, said a mistake was made.

STEARNS AND ATTWILL ARE REAPPOINTED

MacDonald Also Renamed for Present Post by Governor Allen Today

Governor Allen today reappointed Henry C. Attwill as chairman of the public utilities commission, A Warren Stearns as commissioner of correction and Herman A. MacDonald as associate commissioner of public works

These were the only officials occupying major positions out of a list of eight that the governor took action on. Among the remaining five, who are holdovers, is Commissioner of Civil Service Elliott H Goodwin.

Goodwin's department is practically under an investigation by a special recess commission and because of his unbending attitude in regard to rules and regulations, has aroused the wrath of powerful politicians all over the state Goodwin was appointed by Governor Fuller for the express purpose of cleaning up unhealthy conditions in the service.

Others whose commissions expired today but who will hold office until the governor has reappointed them or named their successors are Commissioner of Conservation William A. L. Barclay, Commissioner of Agriculture Arthur W. Gilbert, Director of Fish and Game William C. Adams and Edward Fisher, chairman of the state board on conciliation and arbitration

PRISON REFORM PREVENTED BY 'COUNTY RINGS'

National Society Hurls Charge at Bay State in Rapping Charlestown Conditions

The power of "county rings" is retarding the development of penal institutions in Massachusetts

This charge, set forth in the third issue of the Handbook of American Prisons and Reformatories, is made by the National Society of Penal Information, Inc.

The handbook further declares that while Massachusetts has secured outstanding leadership in its State Department of Correction, that leadership is handicapped by a prison plant which is as obsolete as its county government as far as prisons are concerned.

The present Commissioner of Penal Institutions and Correction is Dr. A. Warren Stearns, formerly dean of Tufts College Medical School

"Severe criticism has been levelled at Charlestown," the handbook says "The State Department of Correction, wardens, and public-spirited citizens have repeatedly called the attention of the state to its shortcomings. It is the oldest prison plant in the country

"It is probable that the real reason why Massachusetts has not built a new prison is the power of the so-called county rings. Many offenders who in other states would be sent to the prison, are sent in Massachusetts to the county jails. It is impossible to bring these jails to a high standard and inequality of sentences for similar offenses often results. Until the power of those elements which demand the retention of prisoners in the counties is broken, Massachusetts will fail to meet its penal problem successfully.

"It appears that the consummation of the efforts of many years is now in sight. A penal colony of 40 acres in the town of Norfolk, about 25 miles from Boston, has been started on land owned by the state. It is to be hoped that this penal colony will favorably situated and offering opportunities for the creation of a fine modern institution, may be allowed to expand until Charlestown can be abandoned."

Heart Attack Kills Fireman on Duty

Seized with a heart attack while on desk patrol duty in the Engine 19 station at Mattapan, Hosemen Joseph O Allen, 43, married, of 23 Cook terrace, Mattapan, was found crumpled up over the desk dead, when the fellow firemen were aroused from their beds today on an alarm of fire.

Allen reported for duty at midnight, stating that he was not feeling well, but went on work. Later an alarm came in from an intown box which the Mattapan apparatus does not respond.

It is customary in such a case for the man on duty to stop the house gong in order not to awaken the men sleeping.

In this case the gong sounded, and when the men came down the poles to the floor they found Allen crumpled over the desk.

Dr. A. M. Levine of 1310 Blue Hill ave. was notified and he pronounced the man dead. Medical Examiner Timothy Leary was called in and pronounced death due to heart trouble.

RHEUMATISM PAIN NEEDLESS Relief in 7 to 10 minutes

I have been troubled with muscular rheumatism for many years, and could get no relief from the various remedies I have been using for my ailment. I tried your MUSCLETONE and can truthfully say that it gave me almost instant relief from suffering for so long a time. In fact, I cannot say too much for your wonderful remedy, and from now on will always keep a bottle on hand as I have found many uses for your preparation.

MRS. E. M. FIELD
24 Lafayette Park
Lynn, Mass.

I am very happy to write you about what your MUSCLETONE has done for me. I have suffered with sciatica for two years; tried many remedies, but to no relief. I have suffered with very stubborn pains in my back and at times was unable to walk or stand. After using your MUSCLETONE my pains are relieved and I can now do my housework without trouble. I have also recommended your remedy to my friends, and they all say it is the only one to be without MUSCLETONE is the best.

MRS. SYLVIA E. KING
604 Shawmut Ave
Boston, Mass.

Do you honestly want complete and lasting relief from the pains of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica or neuralgia? Science has proven these troubles needless. A new way has been found to end muscular agony and distress so amazingly speedy that it seems almost miraculous. In Pain actually stops in 7 to 10 minutes and may be forever. Chronic cases and those unusually severe will of course require continued treatment for a while. This would be only natural. Yet often less than a single bottle is enough for complete relief even in most severe conditions of long standing.

This new discovery is known as MUSCLETONE. It was found by Dr. Chopra, a famous physician of New York. Now almost a million people have used the MUSCLETONE treatment. They learned of it entirely by word of mouth recommendation.

The amazing success of MUSCLETONE is due to the fact that it supplies needed medication by means of injection. It neutralizes accumulated toxins, absorbs them and relieves congested tissues. Pain goes. Joints become limber. Yet you take no violent drugs. No upset the stomach. Nothing is taken internally. MUSCLETONE is applied directly to the part affected. Yet it is not a liniment, a "body-rub" nor a counter-irritant. It couldn't irritate a baby's skin, so bland and soothing is it. And how it would seem that all old theories of ending rheumatism pains are now made obsolete.

We urge only that you make this test. MUSCLETONE is now obtainable at any drug store. Buy it today. Use one-half the bottle and if you are not amazed return the remainder to the druggist and he will refund your money. The price is $1.00.

FINDS NO VICE IN CAPE PROBE

"I find nothing in the report that would warrant any action of my office," said Dist. Atty. Winfield E Wilbur of Brockton after perusing over the report of a grand jury on moral conditions in Plymouth County, Cape Cod, presented by Mrs. Wenona O. Pinkham of the Massachusetts Civic League. The district attorney said the Boston woman was unable to back up her charges of vice on Cape Cod

"The evidence as produced by her investigators discloses no gambling, no sale of dope and no commercialized vice. There were no specific violations of the law reported. They simply reported they found something fine for crime

"The purpose of the report was to demonstrate the need of legislation to regulate conditions in overnight camps and cabins and demonstrate that women should be appointed on the state police force I have grave doubts as to the wisdom of appointing women to the state police.

"The communities within my jurisdiction stand cleared of any charge of immorality or low vice to the extent published in the newspapers. I think conditions there are about average."

STATE BOARD WON'T LET EDISON COMPANY SHIFT ITS LOSSES

ELECTRIC CUSTOMERS PROTECTED

Assurances to the Public Are Given at Hearing on Rate Reductions

Assurances that the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston will not be allowed to saddle any loss on electric customers that it may incur in furnishing steam was given today by Chairman Henry C. Attwill of the Public Utilities Commission at the resumption of hearings on petitions for rate reductions

Atty. Wycliffe C. Marshall of Watertown had raised the point in connection with the list of 51 questions that he had filed with the commission for the company to answer

Marshall, reading from the annual return of the company, contended that a steam loss of $4500 had already taken place in two customers' accounts

"Obviously," interposed Attwill, "we will not permit the light customers to bear any loss from the steam business"

For various reasons, mostly for the reason that the company is not required to keep separate setups the company volunteered to answer but 16 of the 51 questions asked. Among these were inquiries regarding schedules of all rates, contracts for purchasing supplies and coal, minutes of directors' meetings, salaries, analysis of earnings between 1921 and 1928, names of customers receiving power rates

Corporation Counsel Frank H Deland and Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman cited in and followed the arguments of Atty Marshall and the company's attorney, F. Mosley Ives, over each individual question, with close attention

Waiting to testify as a witness for Marshall was William A. McKenney of the McKenney & Watson Co., dealers in Pittsburgh futures

MAYOR CALLS COUNCILLORS SCHOOLBOYS

Raps Refusal to Accept Courthouse Act; Predicts Even Stricter Terms

"The members of the Boston City Council are a lot of schoolboys," said Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols in commenting on their action in tabling his communication urging them to pass the legislative act providing for the construction of a new courthouse in Boston, or an addition to the present one at a cost of $5,000,000

"The all important thing is that the courthouse is urgently needed and many men are out of work," said the mayor

"Under the terms of the act the last date on which it can be accepted is Dec. 31, and if it is not accepted by then, it will mean waiting for another year before any thing can be done

"While the terms of the act are not entirely to my liking, I venture to predict that if the present act is not accepted, the terms of the next will not be as favorable to the city. I would not be surprised if the next Legislature votes to build a courthouse in Boston with a provision to assess the city in connection with it.

"I believe now as I did when I went before the Legislature in connection with the act that the city of Boston should pay not more than 66 2-3 per cent of the cost

"I still believe that the mayor of Boston should be given the power to appoint at least two of the commissioners under whose direction the courthouse will be built.

One of the most outspoken opponents of the act is City Councilor Timothy F. Donovan. He said:

"I am opposed to acceptance of the courthouse act because I believe in home rule for Boston and this act does not give it. It places 50 per cent of the cost of the courthouse on the city, although many State bodies such as the Supreme Court are to be housed in it.

"I believe that such organizations as the Social Law Library a private one, be housed in a building paid for by the money of the taxpayers of Boston" I tried to get into that library once and was stopped," declared Donovan.

"I believe it would be much better for the city to pay the entire cost of constructing the courthouse and then charge rent to the Supreme Court, Social Law Library or any other organization that is not engaged in strictly county business

City Councilor Edward M. Gallagher who voted against the acceptance of the act said

"I agree that a new courthouse is urgently needed but I believe that the provisions of the bill are unfair to impose an immediate burden on taxpayers of Boston and that is why I voted against acceptance of the act

"If the people of Boston are going to pay for building the courthouse they should control the appointment of the men who will have charge of building it."

The shade of Harry Dunster, first president of Harvard College, would be bewildered if it returned to the site of his old homestead at 1 Court st., where the Ames building now stands. Before the Dunster house was erected the town pump of Colonial Boston stood there. After the Dunster house was torn down commercial buildings were erected, the last of which (shown above) was that immediately preceding the Ames Building and was standing in the 50's. More pictures of Old Boston will be printed in the Boston Evening American.

CRIPPLED GIRL IS SOUGHT IN GEM THEFT

Vanishes With Man Accomplice After $23,000 Haul in Hub Store

Police of Massachusetts and the principal cities of surrounding states were called into the search today for a girl, described as "very attractive," who posed as a cripple and with a man companion robbed the H. S. Page jewelry store on Washington st. of unset diamond valued at $23,000

The robbery was characterized as one of the most clever staged in Boston in years

Feigning an injured arm that necessitated the use of a sling, the girl, police say, slipped the stolen diamonds in it as she and her confederate fled the store

According to the story told by Harold S Page head of the company, the pair entered the store located on the second floor while two other customers were present, and asked to look at a tray of unset diamonds reposing in the showcase

Page said they selected two stones valued at $2,500 and the man tendered two $20 bills in payment. Page said he gave the change, a $10 bill and $2.50 in smaller currency. The man then asked him to change the $10.

Finding no $5 bills in the cash drawer, Page went to his safe in the rear of the store. When he returned the pair had fled. The diamonds went with them

Parking Space for Babies Provided by Church

Parents of small babies who desire to attend services at the North Congregational Church in Lynn will no longer be troubled or hindered by their cars, as the church announced that a nursery and playroom will be established at the church where the youngsters may be parked.

The minister's wife will assume charge and take over the responsibility of entertaining the little ones.

A church committee found, upon investigation, that many parents were prevented from attending Sunday morning services because they had no one to take care of their children.

BIG WELCOME FOR FLYING SANTA CLAUS

Speeding along the skyways from the frozen Northland, the great orange hydroplane of the Santa Claus family is winging its way to Boston for the great reception and parade which have been planned to welcome to our city the most eagerly anticipated young fellow to come here in many years.

Santason will certainly be astonished and delighted with the plans which have been made to welcome him as he arrives to spend the holiday season in Jordan Marsh's Toyland.

Yesterday the big plane left Chilkoot Pass and flew safely to Edmonton. From Edmonton it is on the way today to Winnipeg, and late afternoon bulletins from the Canadian wilds tell us that the Northwest mounted police have decided news of its progress.

Plans for the parade and reception moved rapidly since it was first announced that Santason would come to Boston.

This parade is to start from Embankment rd. at the foot of Chestnut st., near the public landing on the Charles river basin. The route will be Beacon st. to Park av. to Tremont st. to Boylston st. to Washington st., disbanding in front of the Jordan Marsh store.

PUBLIC RECEPTION

Prior to the start of the parade a public reception will be tendered to Santason at the public float on the Charles river esplanade near the foot of Chestnut st.

It is hoped to have Mayor Nichols and Governor Allen present.

Those taking the part of the four Wooden Soldiers will be: George MacGarvey, 18 Jones ave., Chelsea. William Nelson, 958 Highland ave., Medford. Edward Quimby, 127 Larch rd., Cambridge. Robert O'Connell, 3 Murdock st., Somerville.

Those taking the part of the four Gnomes in Santason Castle float will be: Francis Glover, 80 Johnwood rd., Roslindale; Bernard Scollin, 112 Wason st., Medford. Nestor Nelson, 502 Huron ave., Cambridge; Joseph Murphy, 98 Beachwood rd., E. Braintree.

Those taking the part of the Old Lady in the Shoe will be: Witch—Irene Cargill, 28 Red-Riding-Hood—Evelene Bond, Jack Horner—Rose Daner, Jack and Jill—Helen Lane and Mary Wright, Humpty-Dumpty—Don Seavey, Little Boy Blue—Laura Wiltshire.

Those taking the part in the Toyland float will be: Margaret Collins, Annie Ross, Virginia Benford, Charlotte Mullens, Catherine Moffitt, Lillian Rowe, Evaline Thompson, Kay Burke, Marjory Leonard.

MEN OF THE HOUR

After paying a fine, careless drivers caught in Libertyville, Ill., have to clean up the street in front of the city hall.

Why not have them just clean up the city hall?

And Chicago might utilize its careless motorists by making each of them go out and run over a gangster.

But instead of being practical, the city officials of Bucharest are adding to the gayety of life by having local speeders walk around with a sign which says, "I AM A CARELESS DRIVER," suspended from their necks.

This is Simon C. DeCats, president of the Ills-and-Laugh Motorists' Club who suggests that all pedestrians carry signs, front and rear with the legend:

I AM A CARELESS WALKER.

Thought for today—

With mankind divided into those who are trying to abolish lipstick and those who are trying to remove it, there should be more results.

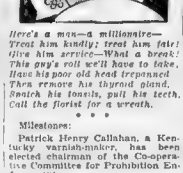
HOSPITAL CHART



Here's a man—A millionaire—
Treat him kindly; treat him fair;
Give him service—What a break!
This guy's roll we'll want to take
Have his poor old head trepanned
Then remove his thyroid gland,
Snatch his tonsils, pull his teeth,
Call the florist for a wreath.

Milestones:

It might be better if Mr. Callahan had some experience in spreading the stuff but he'll probably learn very quickly.

Simile—

Tragic as having money to burn with nothing but a cigarette lighter.

BOOK REVIEW

Gems from "Palaces of Sin," by Col. Dick Maple of Indiana.

"She was not bad looking to look at—"

Reformer Maple has told how he created the impression that he was worth $3,000,000 in order to be taken into society at Washington, D. C. He has described the dreadful goings on at the parties of a Mrs. Middle. We continue with sizzling excerpts from his book, "Palaces of Sin."—

"MRS. MIDDLE and her daughter, Clara, seemed determined to have me understand that I was to marry the young lady and they tried in every conceivable manner to impress all with the idea that 'Col. Maple' had peopoised and been accepted. However, I never missed an opportunity to let them know that Col Maple was out on the market, and had no desire to become the husband of a 'female distillery' and mother-in-law of a 'she-bolshie'."

(Ed Note—That's telling it to them, Colonel!)

"I will frankly tell you, readers, that I was interested in Clara to a certain extent, for she was not a bad looking girl to look at and had been a bright lady-like country girl before her father had entered politics, which turned his wife's head and he drank himself Clara down in the grime of drink.

"All at once Clara, the dear 'thing,' ceased to show her 'hosiery' at social functions and I could not imagine where she had disappeared to until—"

SIGN AND SAVE TAXES

Income Tax Editor, Boston Evening American:

You may list my name on a petition to the President, the Secretary of the Treasury, and Congress, to secure adequate reduction in taxes on earned incomes. I believe that the proposed cuts as announced by Secretary Mellon do not represent a sufficiently large proportion of relief to the salaried class. Annuities and other creative faculties are subject to limitations and fluctuations, while income from property is a permanent and stable income.

Firemen's Haircuts on City's Time O. K.

Portland, Me., Nov. 27—A resolution adopted by the Journeymen Barbers' Union of this city condemning the practice of a fireman at Central fire station cutting the hair of other firemen while on duty will have little effect, for City Manager James E. Barlor said that he has no intention of stopping the tonsorial work at the station.

Firemen have little time off duty, and if they can save time by having their hair cut in the station, the city has no objection, he said.

Seeks Own Divorce

Successful a few weeks ago in having the divorce decree of her husband, George C. Murray, of Everett, set aside on the ground that it was obtained through fraud Mrs. Bessie E. Murray, of East Eighth st., South Boston, has filed a cross action for divorce in her own behalf in Middlesex Probate Court.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's so trouble at all to mix and costs cut a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

5 CALIFORNIA HOUSE PARTY TOURS

The Santa Fe and Burlington railroads again this winter will conduct a series of five traveling house parties to California and back on the all expense, escorted plan, one in January, two in February and two in March.

Everything is to be planned in advance and everything paid for in advance in a lump sum, which includes railroad fare, Pullman, hotel accommodations, motor transportation, all meals, sightseeing, sightseeing, in short every necessary item of expense.

An escort tour manager does all the work and the morning with the finest and fastest service within reach of the railroad lines and hotels controlled.

The tour begins and ends at Chicago, covering a period of 22 days. Now invited folks desiring to make the tour leaving from Boston can secure additional information by communicating with any Santa Fe or Burlington route office.

S. Carlson is the district passenger agent of the Santa Fe line with offices at 294 Washington st., and P. F. Donahue general passenger agent of the Burlington route, located at 212 Old South building, Boston.

George Mack With Gallagher Again

George Mack, master of ceremonies at the Cotton Club, Huntington ave., this week, is an old time partner of Jimmie Gallagher, popular orchestra leader there.

George and Jimmie are staging a couple of their numbers at each of the three performances at Paisley's daily, and they are assisted on the bill by four other acts.

Devere and Kiki are appearing in an interpretation of White Cargo. They have just completed three months engagement at Atlantic City.

FAMOUS RESORT PLANS WINTER SPORTS

The Manor Richelieu at Murray Bay presents a busy aspect these fall days as preparations are being made for the first winter sports season in the history of the famous hostelry.

P. W. von Allmen, who recently made a survey of the Murray Bay district's potentialities as a winter sports center, has been appointed director of sports at the Manor Richelieu, and has left to company with J. J. Evans for Murray Bay to organize his forces. A. J. Kerr, for many years manager of Hotel Tadoussac, will be at the manoir this winter in the capacity of assistant manager.

Definite announcement is made of the construction of a bobsled run which will ultimately extend for three miles. Six bobsleds are being imported from Switzerland for the course. The run will be constructed some distance back of the manoir and von Allmen states that it will be possible to attain a speed of forty miles an hour on these sleds.

This run will be the first of its kind in Canada on such a large scale and the Murray Bay district lends itself successfully to its construction.

An open air ice rink for figure skating and hockey matches is being laid out on the site of the tennis courts behind the swimming pool.

A site for a toboggan slide is also under consideration which will ensure a steep chute and long fair way.

Ski runs will be blazed through the surrounding wood and, due to the topography of the country, it will be possible to ski downhill from a considerable distance in the country to the doors of the Manor. For those who enjoy the thrill of ski-jumping, there will be six flight trotting horses at the Manor stable for this purpose.

Director von Allmen is planning several trails for skiers with an overnight stop at comfortable cabins. Dog teams will be utilized on these expeditions.

Advance bookings for the Christmas and New Year seasons are exceptionally heavy considering that the advertising has barely commenced.

Bandits Kidnap Man When Robbery Fails

Monmouth, Ill., Nov. 27 (AP)—Back home today, Henry W. Conrad, business man, related how he was kidnaped in his store and given freedom two hours later upon abandonment by the kidnapers of their stolen automobile.

Conrad said two men, pretending to be salesmen, ordered him to open the safe. The day's receipts had been banked. After lining up the employes and searching the offices, the kidnapers ordered Conrad into their car. In Lowell, Ind., the men forced Conrad to indorse a check for $1000 which they attempted unsuccessfully to cash.

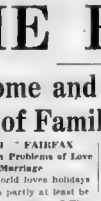
THE ROMANCE AROUND THANKSGIVING TIME

At Home and Abroad It Is Day of Family Happiness

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

THE entire world loves holidays

Is not this partly at least because holidays are romantic? They release us from the plodding and prosaic to a bigger and still more alluring perspective, so to speak. Thanksgiving may not appeal directly to young lovers as do St. Valentine's and Hallowe'en, yet it carries its message of romance, painting as it does to the deeper sweeter meaning of love, marriage and family life.



Beatrice Fairfax

Let us vision a few typical Thanksgiving festivities and try to catch their romantic significance. It is a frosty, bracing afternoon, let us say, with something of the chill of approaching winter. The great athletic bowl is a sea of men and women, old and young, wearing college colors! Cheer leaders in mass-formation are working overtime. College bands are playing. College songs ring out.

A roar of cheers. Every player on his toes. The crowd tense with excitement. The score is tied—the time, near the end of the last period. Bob, "red-headed flash," enters the game, instilling new life in his tiring squad. Thousands of spectators cheer as he makes a spectacular run that gives his college the lead and wins the game.

Of course, Bob enjoys the triumph and lionizing that follow. Who would not enjoy being a football hero, even though it may become embarrassing when one is naturally shy? But it is of one spectator Bob is thinking. No, not even of his mother, although she is there, proud as Punch of her athletic son. It is of a certain girl he is thinking, who in reply to his eager question had said, "I'll tell you after the Thanksgiving game!"

Needless to say, her message today is completely satisfactory to Bob. What girl can resist clean sportsmanship, strength and courage? And so after all Cupid scores the most successful touchdown, and the "catch of the season" will be the reward of the player famed for catching enemy forward passes.

There is romance of a quieter sort when the family gathers round the Thanksgiving dinner-table, with its mellow glow of candles, sheen of spotless damask, gleam of chrysanthemums and the famous roast turkey, cranberries and pumpkin pie. Grandfather and Grandmother are there—honored guests. Father and Mother busily dispensing hospitality. The grand children are like so many steps! And if the scene is typical, there are one or two guests.

There are thousands of these family dinners all over the land, some luxurious, some plain, but all radiating warm affection, gratitude and hospitality. What a tribute to the success of marriage and the endurance of the ideals on which our country is founded!

Nearly every family gathers in the church of its denomination bright and early on Thanksgiving morning to offer thanks to the Giver of All Good Gifts. And this service is the essence of the romance of the holiday, drawn up 300 years ago by our Pilgrim Fathers, to cross the Atlantic in the little craft "Mayflower." This contract began "In the name of God, Amen!" Does not every marriage, also begin a note of high idealism—a pledge to live up to the highest standard—if it is a true marriage, and destined to last and build up character for time slows? True love is not only happy but realizes it is happy, and proves its fourfold happiness by radiating good in its service to others and the community.

'I'm Done Financing You,' Said Bryce

Miss Pat -:- Romance of Airways

would finance the venture. In return for this he would have exclusive right to sell Guy's plane.

To simplify matters two companies were formed; one to manufacture the plane, one to sell it. Guy was given control of the manufacturing unit, with 51 shares of its stock. He must pay back the original capital only when the manufacturing plant had acquired a surplus.

It appeared, even recalling it now, businesslike and fair.

"He'll get over his pesve," Guy decided. And if he didn't a break between them might be a good thing. In Bryce's present financial slump, years could pass before they were turning out ships in paying quantity. Other concerns were far outstripping them.

One of these, the Bothfield Aircraft Company, would welcome Guy to their staff. Their design engineer, Carl Brunner, had attended Brooks and Kelly schools at the same time as Guy. He knew of Guy's parents. Recently he had wrote asking if Guy were free. Bothfield wanted Guy's design. He offered a salary of $600 a month and royalties.

"And now especially when one was slender and most thrillingly sweet —could live on this.

Then let Bryce rant. Let him break his connection! Guy pulled his soft hat on at a jaunty angle and went out happily enough to meet Pat. There sat in a new Bryce-Swallow which Guy had equipped with a radio. He had already taught Pat how to send an "S O S." With a little card showing the symbols, he now had her tap off her name and his.

"And when we cross the dark and stormy seas, love, I'll be your little radio-Lie. Guy, are you awfully sure it's you I want to take? And not the beauteous Barbara?"

He looked with dark, mocking tenderness on her glowing face. Tre color, the young, fiery sweetness filled his heart with longing. She was so much more vivid than Barbara Bryce. She was dew-like and new flower.

"What do you laugh, Guy? Are you sorry about what I said?"

He yawned and stretched out his arms, regarding her with flushed, happy yearning. "Yes, you! Too much sometimes—you sweet!"

"But I'm not nearly as beautiful as she is"

"Ten times more tempting, which is more important."

Pat turned brightly red: "I fear you'll be a wicked husband."

"The thing that every woman ought to try out is disappointment."

They forgot William Bryce and his cold selfish obsessions as they flew down the path of the setting sun; down a lane all riotous with gold and scarlet flowers. His was the little plane ride as it would be his sweet arm about Pat, and shouted: "I'm marrying you on Monday!"

Sunday Guy sent a telegram to Carl Brunner. He asked if the offer of the Bothfield Company was still open. It never occurred to him that the sending of this message could assume sinister import.

Monday there was a notice on the bulletin board outside the factory.

"The Bryce-Elliott Corporation will no longer be responsible for wages, materials or other obligations contracted for by the Bryce-Elliott Company."

The men stood in a stormy group. They read the notice and made ugly threats. Then the bookkeeper appeared. He gave the men their paychecks. But in each envelope was a printed slip with the same curt information.

"Is the plant closed?" the foreman asked.

Guy answered: "Tell the men to work today. I'll see what can be done."

His face felt his blood flame as he crossed the threshold of Bryce's office. The lawyer who had drawn up the contract three years ago was there.

"Have a chair, Mr. Elliott," said Bryce regarding Guy with exasperating quiet.

Guy remained standing: "Is the plant shut down?" he fired abruptly.

"Not that I know of"

"It can't run without money!"

"That's your concern. You're the president of the manufacturing unit. My business is to sell your product. I remind you—I'm under no obligation to finance YOU!"

"Suit yourself. I may take it, I suppose that you're throwing up your contract"

"You may take nothing of the kind. The contract remains. Nowhere in it does it specify that I am to be your bank. I'm now giving up the honor."

"You can't withdraw your backing and yet hold me to the contract."

"I can and do!"

"Well, try it!"

"Don't get excited, Mr. Elliott. There's nothing in your contract stipulating that Mr. Bryce must supply funds for the operation of your plant."

"But the whole spirit and essence of the agreement stipulated that he would finance the venture until my plane was on the market. He's not done this. All right, if he wants to quit, I'm satisfied."

"Mr. Bryce is NOT quitting."

"What is he doing?"

"Simply giving no more money to the company over which you have control."

"Do I understand you to be telling you the contract between us is abrogated. I'm going out and get a job and I'm taking my patents with me!"

Said bryce softly, through anut teeth: "You can manufacture your plane, Mr. Elliott. But neither you nor any other company can SELL it. I hold this exclusive right. Violate it and you can answer to the court"

He saw that he was trapped; viciously trapped. He went up to Bryce and swore in his face: "If this a game to get even, you can't win! Make one more move to jam me to the wall, Bryce, and you'll sweat blood for it. Don't try!"

He went to Harold Heming, a lawyer and a friend. Heming studied the contract. "You own the patents, Guy. But they're no good to you. You can't SELL the plane. Of course, no company will take the design with a cloud on the rights. And your services belong exclusively to the Bryce-Elliott Corporation."

"For the love of Pete, Hal, can Bryce keep me from earning my living while refusing to pay for my services?"

"Not indefinitely, of course. But he can make it damn unpleasant. He can make your services too costly for another aviation company to consider."

Feeling very cold and shaken Guy called up his sister. There was an answer from Carl Brunner.

"Our offer holds good. Bothfield greatly interested.' Wire immediately if you are free and have exclusive rights to your patents."

He couldn't take this job! No chance at this $500 a month . . . In a burning race he returned to the plant. He found ominous welcome

On the Need of Clean Thinking

By LUCY LOWELL

YOU wonder sometimes why people as a whole don't do more? why they don't progress more brilliantly and easily—why the race has not reached a shining goal far beyond the place where it now stands

Is it because they don't think? Taking them haphazard, every one you know will say that he does think. He will tell you that he thinks all the time—that he loses sleep thinking—that he sets his head aching by long, long thought.

Yet there is thought and thought. There is what someone has called "necessary and wandering thought," —recollections which go sailing through the head, vague bits of memories which come and go, cluttering up the mind, leading nowhere.

There is the thought which has to do with impossibilities, what one would do if such and such were the case, what one would say if he was somebody else.

Speculative thoughts about other people. Speculative thoughts about one's self these may be useful if they tend toward an object —but too often they do not. They start with "I wonder if —" and end at far from there.

The point is that with all the thinking done by everybody day in and day out, almost none of it is the logical, forward-moving thought which is the basis of all right action, of all progress

We need to clear our minds of the "unnecessary and wandering thoughts. We need to get them out of the way, as men clear a road so traffic can go through

We need to cultivate constructive thought; to form the habit of ideas which will express themselves in Progress in our daily lives.

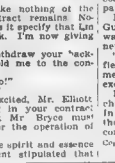
Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

BACK at the old job again . . . whanging away at the same old tread mill . . . with the smell of the campfire dying out of your nostrils and the sound of the waves fading from your ears . . . Oh, yes? Sore that vacation's over? Sorry for poor self, a little? Then perhaps you'd like to hear about my room



It's a long low room . . . the whole in terior of a log cabin, three thousand feet up in the California Sierras. The cabin is set deep in pines on a ridge that looks down and out over a small clearing which is ringed with the forest again. It's late, as I write, nearly evening. The pines have become very dark . . . peacock blue . . . and the sky is a delicate, bright glaze, almost without color. All the ridge seems to be flowing down, gathering in the clearing

The clearing is filled with cinnamon grass and russet ferns. Now they are drenched in soft amber light . . . sweet and heavy as desert honey. The light rises spreads . . . passes . . . then sinks into the tips of tree trees. The ground seems filled with little plaques of beaten copper, dull and bright, gold. And presently, my table stands in a deep ruddy pool.

It is a heavy table . . . ten feet long, roughly made of two thick planks of sugar pine. I do everything on it . . . work, eat, fix my tools, dry my fruit. Already the boards, nailed together last spring, are nicked and scarred and glow ing with the work they've carried

As I write, there are various things on my table which I suspect they're the sort of things YOU'D put on a table like that: A big yellow bowl piled with the best peppers and tomatoes and lettuce . . . a blue and white pitcher, filled with milk . . . a box of flapjack flour . . . a tin canful of honey . . . a ragged pile of books . . . a tray of drying herbs . . . a pick head, a shovel and a rake . . . a flashlight . . . a jar of goldenrod and red oak leaves . . . some purple grapes . . . a head of cabbage . . . some furs and grated cheese . . . a picture of a boy

The room is still and glowing with the golden dusk. Through the shadows there come bright flicks of color, I can smell the smell of rosemary and thyme . . . the little clicking noises that seem to live within my fireplace soon. The things on the table have lost their shape. They are only a dim, warm jumble of blue and scarlet, purple, orange and green. Outside, across the bowl, I see the first little star

In a little while now I must go away from this place and work. Or perhaps I will travel in cars and eat in hotels. Eat at white tables under glittering lights . . . tables without flies, powder or gas. But always I'll feel homesick . . . homesick for this simple, friendly room. And, looking at the apple around me . . . all the busy, bored, bustling, brilliant people . . . I'll know they're homesick, too. For I've never yet met a human who didn't have a homesick dream of a place like this tucked away somewhere in his or her heart

I've never met a successful man who didn't think back fondly on days when he ate in the kitchen and tried his own trout with a scrap of bacon . . . or who didn't wonder how his smart, Parisian wife would look in one of those old-fashioned gingham dresses like Ma used to wear.

And I never yet met a worldly woman who didn't, at some time, wish she was back in Centerville, making her first party dress again out of pink-dotted swiss . . . and waiting, with pounding heart, for him, the grocery boy, to come up the walk

The oldest, sweetest dream there is . . . just a dream of living natural . . . being plain . . . laughing and working and loving, then living down to sleep . . . in some simple place . . . near God.

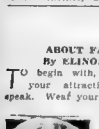
The Truth

ABOUT FASHION
By ELINOR GLYN

TO begin with, you must veil your attractiveness, so to speak. Wear your clothes so that the possibilities of perfections are suggested, not exposed.



Elinor Glyn

The swirling of chiffons and laces, the slinky fall of soft velvets or the rustling of crisp taffetas and the suggestion of dainty lace petticoat under with give you a great chance now

As I told you the other day you are all too sensible not to understand that everything must match, and no incongruities, attitudes or manners must appear to mar that effect. I want to talk to you about a number of different charms which go with the new feminine expression because the very style is what I like best myself —and what we likes ourselves we are generally the most eloquent about.

One thing is certain, the new fashions require a different sort of makeup, and I want you, Gracie and Maud, to be among the first to ring the changes

The effect upon the subconscious mind of the sunburnt tones, and the indiscriminate sun worshipping, was to suggest back to nature frankness, and no mystery at all. We must change all that while the feminine wave lasts!

The chic is always ready to accept ways and sell old things for new and then resell them again for old—if the spirit of the time demands it!

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Alphabet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, Boston American. P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass.

WHEN Nancy started this alphabet quilt she had planned a story which would go with each one of the alphabet blocks but she found that it was impossible to keep that up. She would take out the block "A" with its letter and apple and chant a little song as she looked at it. With the blue bird of the second block she was enraptured and kept running to the window to see whether she could find a blue bird. One evening Aunt Nancy told her of this blue bird and the happiness for which it stood.

The cat block made Joan chuckle. When the doll block was finished she begged Aunt Nancy to draw one of her dolls, Martha Ann, just like the quilt one.

At the quite upset Uncle Peter by telling the world at large when he took her to the circus that the elephant was just like the one on h quilt. And now Aunt Nancy wondered what she would do with the flower. As soon as the block was finished Joan ran for some perfume which she put on the flower to make it smell sweet. "What don't children think of," exclaimed her aunt.

The flower block was done in lavender and purple Nancy had had a print dress which gave her scraps she needed for the flower.

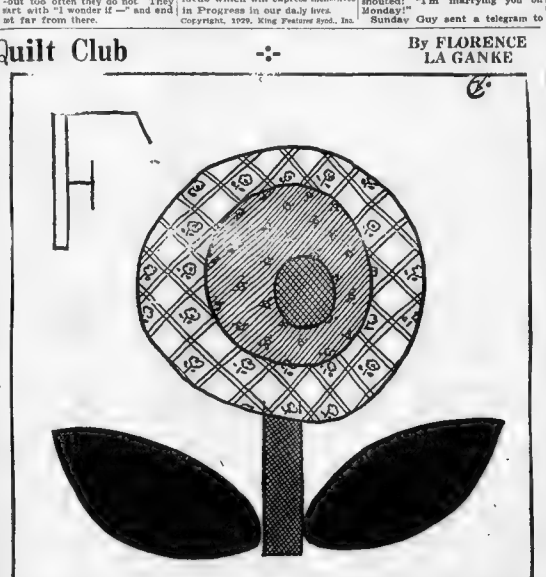
She chose a pale green for stem and flower center and used the same shade of green for the leaves as she had appliqued for the apple leaf. First the square was cut from paper. Over it was laid the white block which was 6½ inches square

By basting the two flat against the window pane, Nancy, traced the design on to the cloth, using a sharp pencil.

Then she pasted the paper square on to a piece of light weight tag board or cardboard and dried it under pressure.

She embroidered the F in green, fast color embroidery cotton. This was the same cotton she had used for the preceding five letters

When the paper pattern was dry she cut out the leaves, the stem and the whole rose. She laid the whole rose on the piece of print and cut the pattern allowing one-quarter inch on all sides for turning under.



ALPHABET QUILT BLOCK 6 — THE FLOWER

Then she cut the second circle from the pattern and cut her cloth for that, again allowing the quarter inch.

The innermost circle was cut last from the same green as used in the stem. The stem itself was cut from a bias piece of material, two times as wide as the pattern given. The raw edges were folded back until they met in the center of the wrong side and basted in place.

After all edges on all pieces were turned under, basted in place and pressed, Nancy laid them on the white block. She used the pencilled outlines as a guide.

She laid on the large circle first and appliqued that with fine, slanting invisible hemming stitches.

Then over that she laid the second circle. When that was sewed in place she appliqued the small one on top of the other two.

The leaves and stem were put in place and the sixth of the 24 alphabet blocks was done.

"G comes next," mused one club member. "What do you suppose will be used for that?"

Block 7 will appear on this page in next Saturday's Boston Evening American.

Thanksgiving Frills

WHAT can I talk about that will interest you today when all the talk is of the coming feast, probably even the stuffing and trussing of the noble bird"

There are just one or two frills however, that I want to remind you of that will add much to the festive board.

Firstly, a frill for each turkey drumstick You've probably noticed in hotel and restaurant how much the garnishing adds to the turkey, platter, and the frills are really very simple to make

Martha Lee

Cut a piece of heavy wax paper 9 inches long by 4 inches wide Fold once, making a strip 9 inches long by 2 inches wide. Fringe it on the folded edge. Open the paper and fold it over in the opposite direction, which gives you a double fluffy fringe.

Roll around your finger and into rosette shape as you would roll a bandage. Pin, and bring through a hole cut in the center of a clean paper doily 3 inches to 3½ inches in diameter. Behold! a custom made pair of boots for his honor the Turk.

Cranberry men strung on tooth picks are an attractive garnishing, and so are gaily threaded with balls of raw carrot, cranberries and any other colorful raw vegetables your fancy may dictate. These graduate from good-sized balls to small ones and are speared at angles into the bird.

A generous amount of parsley will do much towards decorating the turkey platter. Don't forget a sprinkling of parsley on the mashed potatoes, too. Color has invaded our cookery just as surely as it has our kitchen and house furnishings. The recips I must give you to complete your dinner is a Tomato Juice Cocktail.

COCKTAIL

1 No. 2 can tomatoes or 1 lb. finely diced fresh tomatoes
2 tbsps. mild vinegar.
3 tsps. sugar.
A bit of bay leaf.
1 tsp. grated onion.
2 tbsps. lemon juice.
1 stalk of celery.
1 tsp. vegex.
2 tbsps. hot water.

Drain a No. 2 can of tomatoes or finely diced 1 lb. of fresh tomatoes. Force the pulp through a puree sieve. You should have 2 cups. Add 2 tsps. of mild vinegar, 3 tsps. of sugar, a bit of bay leaf, 1 tsp. very finely grated onion 2 tbsps. of lemon juice, 1 stalk of celery bruised with a heavy knife, and if desired 1 tsp. of vegex dissolved in 2 tbsps of hot water. Let the stand for 15 minutes on ice and strain through a cheesecloth. Cool again and serve in small glasses.

Farewell Words to Priest

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please advise what statement to use in a telegram which three intimate friends are sending a priest who is leaving for Europe?

2—What would be an appropriate gift to give him?

THREE OF US

"BON voyage. We three hope that every mile of your way will be happy," or, "Friendly greetings from three of your friends, and the hope of a most happy and delightful trip"—something of this kind to evidence your friendship and wishes.

3—A book would be perfect, I think, if possible, a book on some subject in which he is particularly enthusiastic. Best of all a book on travel, perhaps something on one of the countries he is to visit. Or a detail for his traveling case if you wish to be a bit more "personal." And I have observed, on shipboard, that men eat more sweets than women do. Boxes filled with many different varieties of peppermints are always welcome

Miss Katharine Davis and Miss Edith Mitton Will Be Honored Tonight

Miss Elinor K. Coues Presented at Tea; Vincent Club to Give Show

A COUSIN OF MISS ELINOR K. COUES, Miss Emily Everett, gave a presentation tea for her this afternoon at her home on Chestnut Hill ave., Brookline. Miss Coues, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William P. Coues of Monmouth rd., Brookline wore a frock of old colored chiffon taffeta and rose and silver shoes, her bouquet was of Coolidge roses, tied with green ribbon. Both Miss Everett and Mrs. Coues were at home in black georgette. Miss Sally Wambolt, a post debutante, was in charge of the charming bevy of pourers which included Miss Betty Fitzpatrick, Miss Caroline Crosby, Miss Constance Greco, Miss Virginia Beatey, Miss Harriet Fitz, Miss Phyllis Vose, Miss Anne Marshall Vose, Miss Madeleine E. Jonckheere, Miss Sylvia Pratt, Miss Frances Shea, Miss Marian Duane, Miss Rosamond Holton, Miss Ellen Eastman, Miss Sylvia Sweet and Miss Hope Potter.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS B. CROWNINSHIELD are to be the hosts at a dinner-dance in honor of Miss Katherine Davis this evening at the Ritz-Carlton. This same debutante, who holds the distinction of being the chairman of the provisional members of the Junior League, was feted at a dance given by Mr. S. W. Crowninshield at the Copley-Plaza November 6.

THANKSGIVING EVE HAS always been one of the most popular dates of the year for parties and tonight proves no exception. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Mitton, who presented their charming daughter, Miss Edith Mitton, at a luncheon at the Hotel Somerset October 30, are entertaining for her at a large dance at the Country Club. They have invited about sixty of their guests to a dinner preceding the dance. Miss Mitton is wearing a dainty frock of pail pink with which she is carrying tallman roses.

THE VINCENT CLUB HAS announced that "Vincent Virtues and Vices" is the title for their annual show, which, as last year, is to take the form of a revue, the parts to be taken by its charming and talented members. The performances are to take place March 13, 14 and 15, the rehearsals for the same to commence February 24. The proceeds are to be given to the Vincent Hospital outright to meet expenses. In order to do this the club constitution had to be amended, as heretofore only the interest on the money has been allowed to be used. This amendment was decided upon at a meeting held recently at the home of Miss Edith Bayliss.

MEMBERS OF OLDER AND younger Boston Society listened with great enjoyment to E. H. Sothern's dramatic recital held at Symphony Hall for the benefit of the Junior League. He vividly portrayed rolls from "Othello" and "Hamlet," also his father's famous part, Lord Dundreary. Mr. Sothern likewise told many amusing incidents from his father's and his own careers as actors. The programs distributed by League members, charmingly clad in various smart black evening dresses, with blue ribbons worn across their shoulders, were of particular interest, as they had in them a picture of the new Junior League Clubhouse, now being erected at Marlborough and Arlington sts. There were also floor plans and explanation of combinations of rooms that non-members might rent for entertaining, on being sponsored by two members. No doubt in years to come it will be the smartest place for dances, dinners, teas, lectures, exhibits, concerts, children's parties, card parties, bazaars and meetings.

Miss Virginia Taylor — Miss Alison Towle — Miss Elizabeth Scaife

Three post debutantes, Miss Virginia Taylor, Miss Alison Towle and Miss Elizabeth Scaife, were among the Junior League girls assisting at the benefit matinee for the Disabled Veterans' Hospital Service.

MISS ELIZABETH T. SOULE chairman of the entertainment committee of last night's performance, was assisted by Mrs. Paul G. Courtney, Miss Helen Jackson and Mrs. Charles B. Barnes, Jr., in charge of different committees. Miss Marion Upton superintended the publicity and Miss Phyllis Elsworth the posters. Invitations to be patronesses were sent to all the mothers of members whose names are in the Social Register; most of these were in attendance, for the most part wearing black evening gowns, which seems to be the mode for these affairs.

AT THE JUNIOR LEAGUE Garden Club's annual business meeting, Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Jr., was re-elected president. Mrs. Thomas Thatcher was elected vice-president, Mrs. J. Timothy Walker, secretary, and Mrs. Francis Rogerson, treasurer. The chairmen of the program for the plans and planting, and of Horticultural Hall committees are: Mrs. Robert Sturtevant; Mrs. Frederick Kingsbury and Mrs. Dudley Peters, respectively. The club's December meeting is to be omitted, the next one to take place in January.

ANOTHER DEBUTANTE OF last season who has succumbed to the attraction of working in one of Newberry st's up and coming dressmaking establishments, is Miss Caroline Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson Read of Appleton st., Cambridge, and a sister of Miss Peggy Read, who had a job in a Boylston st. jewelry shop. Miss Caroline's engagement to Francis Appleton Harding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Harding of Dedham, was announced early last month. No date for their wedding has been given out as yet.

MISS KATHERINE VARNUM DENNY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Marshall Denny of Oak Hill Apple Farm, who had a dinner-dance given in her honor at the Concord Country Club last Friday evening, is to be presented to Pittsburgh society on December 24. She is also making her debut in New York.

AMONG THE PROMINENT society matrons and debutantes in charge of the sale of tickets at Herricks for the forthcoming program of Jose Iturbi at the Hotel Statler, December 2, to benefit the Denison House, are Mrs. Malcolm Lang, Mrs. James A. Cave, Mrs. Franklin King and Miss Laetitia Orlandini. Miss Margaret Lang and Miss Rosamond Musgrave

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

CLOSE PLAY OBVIOUS FROM THE BIDDING

The bidding of this deal is such as to disclose an obvious cross-ruff to the West player on the strength of which, at Contract, he carries his original bid to a game declaration after a take-out and subsequent assist from his partner.

West holds, in addition to seven Diamonds, five Hearts, the suit bid by North and assisted by South. East, therefore, is clearly marked as being void of Hearts and as West, in turn, is void of Spades, West can count upon an almost complete cross-ruff of the two hands.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: South bids originally one Club. While he has a No Trump distribution, he does not hold three of the four suits stopped and the Club call is therefore preferable.

West bids one Diamond, there being no occasion for a pre-emptive bid in view of the fact that opponents have already indicated a suit and further that with West's particular holding he can show his strength and length in Diamonds on a subsequent round of bidding just as well as showing it at once.

North, with a two suited hand and only three small cards of his partner's suit, overcalls the Diamond bid with the stronger of his two suits (Hearts) rather than with the higher ranking (Spades).

East bids one Spade, seeking a better game going declaration despite holding three Diamonds to the Queen.

On the second round, South assists his partner's Hearts, West rebids Diamonds, North rebids Hearts (following his partner's assist) and East, his Spades denied, assists West's rebid by going to four Diamonds which becomes the final declaration.

Contract: The bidding at Contract is identical with that of Auction with the exception that West, following partner's assist to four Diamonds, bids five odd for game, figuring as stated above that cross-ruff of Hearts and Spades is marked in the combined hands and that this may produce the necessary number of tricks for game.

The Play

North leads initially the King of Hearts. Dummy goes down disclosing no Hearts and Declarer uses the Diamond Two in Dummy for the first ruff of the hand. He next lays down the Ace of Spades, discarding thereon the Club Four from his own hand.

Declarer now starts the cross ruff, trumping alternately three rounds of Spades and two rounds of Hearts. Thereafter he lays down his four high Diamond honors, giving up two Heart tricks at the end. He thus makes the Ace of Spades, three Spade ruffs, three Heart ruffs and four high trumps, or eleven tricks in all

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your bridge problems. Write to him, care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope.

BOOK LAWS OF BAY STATE ASSAILED

"We are being made absurd in the eyes of the world as result of our book censorship laws," declared Edward A. Weeks, Jr., director of the Atlantic Monthly Press, in a scathing denunciation of the book laws of Massachusetts before the Professional Women's Club at the Hotel Statler.

He urged the gathering to get behind the attempt to revise the book censorship statute to make it mandatory that, when a book is placed on trial that the whole text be judged, rather than an isolated passage.

Weeks, who is also chairman of the Massachusetts commission for revision of book law, pointed out that the existing laws are breeding contempt, giving notoriety to cheap books and causing great injury to fine literature.

Many of the classics and even the Bible were cited as examples of the fact that single passages might be considered objectionable.

The meeting was the first of a series sponsored by the literature and library extension department of the club. Mrs. Hazel Campbell Lenk is the chairman of this department.

TALKS ON INDIA

Prof. Sunder Joshi gave a vivid picture of the political development of the women of India in an address on "Literature and Culture of India."

The people who go around the world on tourist ships get only a shadowy opinion of the East, said Prof. Joshi. It is a mistaken idea that the women of India are not free politically, he continued. The liberty of women, as developed in the West, is only a thing of recent years, while for centuries the women of India have played an important part in the history of the country.

A program of music was offered by Miss May Taylor, lyric soprano, 1929 state winner in the Atwater Kent audition, and Miss Lucille Monagham, pianist, winner at the New England Conservatory.

Assisting Mrs. Lenk as committee of this department were Miss Nelson W. Howard, Mrs. Josiah Rowan, Mrs. Lillian S. Mitchell, Mrs. Jeannette B. Ellis, Mrs. Wallace Star King, Mrs. Nicholas Richardson, Mrs. H. B. Campbell, Mrs. E. B. Kinsman, Mrs. G. W. Benway and Mrs. E. H. Woodward.

ANNUAL BRIDGE

On Tuesday afternoon, December 3, the club's annual bridge is scheduled to take place in the ball room of the Hotel Statler.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Emory F. Chaffee, general chairman, the event promises to be a brilliant one. The proceeds are to be divided between the club house and emergency funds.

An informal reception will be held preceding the bridge, when the guests of honor will be presented. They will include President Mrs. Mabel Mann Gordon, Miss Marion Howard Brazier, founder; Mrs. Frank G. Allen, Mrs. Newton B. Nichols, Mrs. William Youngman and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller.

Attractive souvenirs will be found at each table. Mrs. Ella Thompson Hall and Mrs. John F. Hollenbeck are in charge of the detail. Tickets are in charge of Mrs. Mary L. O'Connor. Other members of the committee include Mrs. Frank S. Schofield, vice-chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Donaldson, Mrs. Lenk, Mrs. Charles L. Overlander, and a long list of volunteer workers from the members.

MISS SPEARE SINGS IN HUB

Dorothy Speare, Newton girl novelist and prima donna, spent a busy day today rehearsing two leading soprano roles which she will sing with the new Boston Opera Company during its season commencing next Monday at the Boston Opera House.

The young singer, just arrived from New York, will be heard in the leading soprano roles of "Traviata" and Carmen," in collaboration with distinguished singers recruited from the Metropolitan, La Scala, the Opera Comique in Paris and other leading opera companies of the world.

The singer's first appearance, which will take on the aspects of a gala night, will occur next Tuesday when she sings the role of Violetta in Verdi's "La Traviata." She will be heard later in the season in the role of Micaela in two performances of Bizet's "Carmen." The first of these occurs Wednesday night, December 4, and the second on Saturday afternoon December 14.

In view of Miss Speare's widespread public among music-lovers, literary folk and college people there is a tremendous interest in her first appearance in Boston in a new guise. Having attained success in the production of "Dancers in the Dark" and other books depicting college life, the former Newton girl took up the serious study of grand opera.

Her appearances in Italian cities have been made the subject of numerous amusing short stories and are now culminating in a play which is shortly to have a Broadway production.

Her first American operatic appearance occurred in Washington two seasons ago, where she literally "stopped the show" with her brilliant performance of the role of Micaela.

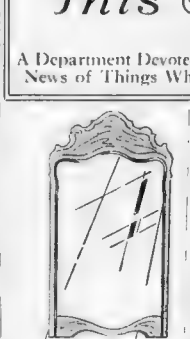
A Mirror Forms Part of the Room Ensemble



MIRRORS have always been used decoratively but not until recent years has their value in this direction been completely realized. It is now understood how a mirror hung in just the right position will lend depth to a room. How if it is hung low enough and its position carefully studied, it will reflect some beautiful setting—a window filled with colored glass—a table group of amusing porcelain figures, a lamp with glowing shade. There are many possibilities in thus duplicating your room's decoration center.

But there is another consideration in hanging a mirror, besides that of its position. It must be in keeping with its surroundings. In buying a bedroom suite, you expect the mirror to be in the same style as the rest of the furniture. The mirror for the living room, purely decorative though it may also be chosen with regard to the group with which it is to be placed.

IN the case of the modern mirror of which there are so many different types, you do not have to be so particular to have them set amidst furniture definitely modern in design. These new mirrors are so simply framed—in silver, in natural wood, in dull gold—that they can be harmoniously used in all sorts of rooms.

Some of these modern mirrors are extremely large, of a size great enough to reflect a whole side of a room. Others can be selected for use in a simply furnished room where wall space is limited but where it is even more necessary to give an effect of space.

A MIRROR is an ideal gift for Christmas, a wedding, anniversary or birthday. A gift for an individual, or for the household.

There beauty, usefulness and charm are assured and if a New England antique can be found both donor and recipient are in luck.

FOR example, if you have a Duncan Phyfe drop-end table, a circular convex mirror of that period American period is a correct choice to place over it. Or you could choose one of the mirrors of the Colonial period, perhaps the type that had a painted wood frame and an old print at the top for decoration. You see, it is not necessary to have your mirror and your furniture of exactly the same style—but the pair must be harmonious with the setting, and of course.

FOR a Queen Anne lowboy or console you would probably select a mirror of the same period—an oblong, walnut-framed mirror with the typical ornamental curved top.

The shield mirror is best when placed with a Directoire table. With a Colonial piece of furniture, a small chest or a sewing table, use a Chippendale mirror with an eagle perched on top of its mahogany frame.

BROKERS' LOAN FIGURES COME OUT FRIDAY

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Because tomorrow is a holiday, the weekly figures on brokers loans will be issued Friday. Successive weeks of large decreases cannot be expected to continue indefinitely, and small increases must now be expected. It is certain to be many weeks before they assume much importance.

The decline last week of brokers' loans brought the total down to $8,587,000,000, the most thoroughly deflated figure since tabulations were begun, which was only three years ago. The drop of $585,000,000 for the week was unexpectedly large. It is regrettable that the figures continuete be unitimized lamiders would be a most important factor to further market stability.

try from the 1929 crash is Francis H Sisson, speaking in Boston this week, as he has done on many former occasions. Mr Sisson is vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. It is interesting that Mr. Sisson estimates business 60 to be 20 per cent stronger now than it was at the end of 1928.

Governors of the New York Stock Exchange, as well as those of the Curb Exchange, yesterday allowed members to discontinue the daily reports by which they have been kept informed regarding the extent and leverage of professional bearish activity. Our information is that many local commitments have been made in the short side, mostly with a view to quick turns; possibilities have are largely seen as a likely result of the quadruple holiday which begins with the stroke of the closing gong today. The action of discontinuance in itself was held to evidence confidence in the improved stock market conditions.

Boston Stock Exchange is advising its members that while there will be no session of the exchange on Friday, and Saturday they are expected to keep their offices open on Friday until at least 3 p. m. and on Saturday until 12 noon, in order to clear up such delayed deliveries as possible on those days.

Remedying of delayed activities, according to my observation, does not lie much with local brokers as with the transfer offices, still buried in many cases beneath the record-breaking volume of the past month's business. Most of the complaints come from customers who do not understand the situation.

"Never since 1921 have investors had such a golden opportunity to lay the foundations of future success based on sure and substantial growth," says the latest market analysis of The Brookmire Economic Service, Inc. "It has become the duty of every investor to discredit every rumor of more disaster yet to come and to begin to rebuild investment prospects.

"There is no place in an investment policy for quick, easy riches. That is speculation. It should be recognized as such, and the man who takes the sporting chances should accept the consequences, good or bad, as a sportsman.

"We believe that American industry and finance will take tremendous forward strides in the next few years. The electrical, chemical, communication and transportation industries remain the world's Public improvements or unexampled proportions are being planned. This means business and prosperity. Never were our corporations and banking institutions more strongly intrenched to assume leadership in the work which is awaiting to be undertaken in every country on the globe.

"When this present readjustment has been completed, we expect our best industrial companies to sell at a relatively higher price level than during the early crash. Their splendid organizations, their stability, their enormous cash resources and the low lines of activity which are opening up to them, all justify this. What is the immediate investment policy to follow?

"First, do not sacrifice sound securities.

"Second, place a portion of liquid funds in equities. Do not buy on rallies. Exercise courage and show faith during discouraging periods. Ignore the next three months immediately ahead. Buy as an investment for growth.

"Third, do not invest all funds at one stroke. Hold cash in reserve for special opportunities as they develop."

Will President Hoover Hasten Rail Rulings?

Interstate Body's Action Long Overdue; "Piker" Now Justified

— By B. C. Forbes —

B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—Will President Hoover please prod the Interstate Commerce Commission into taking action on the important railway consolidations plans which have been before it far too long?

Few things would be more helpful than the prompt issuance of constructive decisions.

Emphasizing this point, Jay E. Latimer of Cleveland, writes in part:

"The Interstate Commerce Commission has had up for the last six years the matter of a Four Trunk Line system, and has spent millions of dollars in making a complete survey which, I understand, has been completed. Mr. Porter, which has been very carefully guarded and kept from the public.

"The proposed Baltimore & Ohio merger was scheduled to be heard in October of this year, and both the Chesapeake & Ohio were to have their hearing. All of this has been delayed for some unknown reason—probably politics.

"I believe that confidence could be instilled in the minds of investors in railroad shares and bonds by some definite and drastic move by the government to force action on the part of the Commission to carry out the intent of the Transportation Act.

Another interesting letter from a lawyer:

"I must be a piker,' a client remarked one day last July. 'At least my wife seems to think so, and I have felt for a couple of years that my children thought so. Now, Bill, this vice-president is an old-established concern was far from being a piker, as I well knew from twenty years' association with it.

"'Why do you feel that your wife thinks you are a piker?' I asked.

"'Well, because I seem to be always telling me how much money her friends' husbands are making in the stock market, and I am beginning that I try it. My wife belongs to a couple of clubs, a bridge club and a study club, and they seem to have a fine line of prosperity talks, all of which my wife swallows.

"'So this morning, when I told her that I was going to your office I rose to real estate deal, I began to tell me that if I would quit fooling around with real estate and play the stock market, like her friends' husbands, that I would make big money and be somebody. That made me sore, and I spoke my mind about the stories she was swallowing.

"'Many times since I have thought of what Bill said, and have come to the conclusion that little Bill was not an isolated one. The idea of getting some easy money without hard assumed epidemic proportions and was extremely catching. I believe that the crash in the stock market will be a great real blessing. It was time for the people to get back to earth and to hard work."

From another reader, A. Wineburgh, comes this novel suggestion: "Within a year you are going to hear people from all sides say: 'Like a fool, I disposed of my holdings and now they have shown their real worth, on which I based my judgment in the first place, and when I made my investment, and I did not know enough to hold on.'

"Of course, there are some who did not have the money with which to hold on, and these are the ones that suffered.

"Admitedly, if you sold your stocks when they were at the peak, you would have realized a sum far greater than you could today—and if you had done what would you have done with the money? You would have bought some other stocks, perhaps not as good as those you have now, and the depreciation would have been as much as, or more than, on the stocks which you would have sold.

"Some people were smart enough to sell their stocks at the very highest, and bought them again at the very lowest—but I doubt if they never thought I was smart enough to do that. If I was smart enough to have sold out near the peak, I am sure I would have re-invested the money on the first 'break.'

Eastern Mass Is in Larger Earnings

Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway reports for October net after all charges of $67,947, compared with $66,232 in October a year ago. For the 10 months ended October 31, 1929, net totaled $654,164, against $68,460 in the same period of 1928.

Initial Payment on Weston Electrical

Weston Electrical Instrument Co. declared initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common, placing the stock on a $1 annual basis and regular quarterly of 50 cents on the Class "A" stock, both payable January 2.

SENTIMENT IN BUSINESS IS CHEERFUL

First National Bank of Boston in its New England letter made public today finds "business sentiment is more cheerful and in some lines optimism prevails."

The bank letter says, discussing the present situation, that "instead of an inflation, commodity prices have been on the decline and the index is now about 5 per cent below the same period of last year and 8 per cent below the same period of 1926. In the terms this is favorable, as it indicates that there has been no general inflation in business, and that with few exceptions we have no burdensome inventories overhanging the market, such as we had in 1919 and 1920.

"The railroads are at the highest peak of efficiency. The farm situation is on the verge of improvement, with constructive programs under way. The position is unusually strong. This showed itself in dramatic fashion two days after the panic, when the Bank of England and the Federal New York Federal Reserve Bank reduced their rates, and all classes of money rates have been on the decline during the last few weeks. Furthermore, the tariff income taxes for the coming year will be reduced by 160 million dollars.

"It appears that the recession will be of comparatively short duration, as most industries have fairly conservative inventories on hand. Following the curtailment of industrial operations, business activity will again move forward in order to provide for the wants of 120,000,000 people in this country. The demobilization of the stock market has temporarily obscured the long range outlook for American business which continues to be good."

EARNINGS FOR B. & M. UP

The Boston & Maine Railroad in October earned a net income of $658,622, which compares with $574,468 in October, 1928. Operating revenues increased $283,657 over the previous October, with freight revenue showing an increase of $231,732 and passenger revenue a continued decline amounting to $46,000.

The greater volume of traffic was handled with a smaller proportional increase in labor expense, so that the ratio of operating expense to operating revenue was again reduced. There was a charge of approximately $900,000 against operations for retirement of obsolescent equipment ($300,000 more than in October last year), making an aggregate charge of $2,250,000 on this account so far this year.

Maintenance of way and structures was continued on a liberal high standards, although the account shows a lesser charge than in October last year, largely because of abnormal adjustments upwards a year ago.

Water Works Adds to Its Holdings

The Commonwealth Water & Light Co., a subsidiary of the American Water Works & Electric Co., Inc., has acquired the Short Hills Water Co., serving the community of Short Hills, N. J.

The distribution system of the Short Hills Water Co. is adjacent to that of the Commonwealth Water Co., American Water Works & Electric Co's operating water system, property and a population of around 150,000 in growing North Jersey communities.

Armstrong Cork to Pay Larger Dividend

Armstrong Cork Co. declared an extra dividend of 37½c and a regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, both payable Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 16.

Quarterly dividend places the stock on a $2 annual basis, against $1.50 previously. In previous quarters extra dividends of 12½ cents have been paid.

Simms Petroleum Is Retiring Notes

Simms Petroleum Co. has paid off the remaining $267,500 of three-per cent convertible notes outstanding Nov. 13. The original issue of $3,431,500 has thus been eliminated, and there are now no obligations senior to the $8,411,480 no-par stock.

Mass. Gas Earning Figures Are Given

Undivided earnings of subsidiary companies of Massachusetts Gas Cos. for October today were $432,204, against $492,742 in October, 1928. For 10 months they were $3,971,949, against $3,507,112 in the same 10 months a year ago.

LARGE DAIRY PROPERTIES MERGED

At special meetings of directors of Foremost Dairy Products, Inc., and Southwest Dairy Products Company, plans were agreed upon calling for the consolidation of the two companies, thus forming the largest dairy products organization operating in the southern portion of the United States. The consolidation will be arranged through an exchange of stock, but both companies will be operated independently of the other for the time being, thus taking full advantage of the good-will which each organization has built up in its respective territory.

Foremost Dairy Products, Inc., which was originally organized by J. C. Penney, head of the chain store system, Ralph W. Gwinn and their associates, will continue the dominating factor in the consolidated company. Mr. Penney will continue as chairman of the board of the company. Mr. Penney acted as host to President Hoover a few days after his election as the latter's guest. The consolidated company, according to official statements, will have an annual sales volume of upwards of $15,000,000. The recommendation Foremost Dairy Products will increase its authorized common capital from 1,000,000 shares to 2,000,000 no par value shares. The merger will be consummated through an exchange of 1.42 shares of Foremost Dairy common for one share of Southwest Dairy Products common stock. There will be no change in the status of the bonds or preferred stocks of either company.

Success of the merger plan is assured, according to official announcement as approximately 51 per cent of Southwest Dairy Products common stock has already assented to the plan. Following completion of the merger, provided all Southwest Dairy common has been deposited under the plan, Foremost Dairy Products will have about 506,600 shares of common stock outstanding.

In addition to the merger, negotiations are now under way for the acquisition of additional properties and further improvements and extensions to properties now owned. These developments will call for additional financing on the part of the consolidated company which has been arranged through George M. Forman & Co. and Lehman, Leonard & Lynch, bankers for both companies.

J. C. Penney, chairman of the company, recently made a tour of the territory in which the company operates, which includes North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and Texas. In connection with this tour Mr. Penney stated that "there is a tremendously undeveloped potential market in the South alone. The executives of the Foremost Dairy organization will devote their time to the development of this potential source of income." In addition to Mr. Penney, officers of the merged company will be Charlotte G. Lewis, president, and Ralph W. Conway, vice-president in charge of acquisition of new properties, and now president of the Southwest Dairy. Claude S. Dawley, vice-president in charge of finance; T. Lauboher, vice-president in charge of Texas operations, and Hugo J. Larson, vice-president in charge of production.

Control of the merged organization will rest with a group of trustees for a period of 10 years. The voting trustees in addition to Messrs. Penney, Lewis and Conway, are Robert Chambers of George M. Forman and Co., O. G. Drake of Moore, Leonard and Lynch, R. W. Gwinn of the J. C. Penney-Gwinn Company, C. L. Rood and Claude S. Dawley.

Dedicate New Hangar at Hub Airport

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Well, here it is. Turkey. The day before Thanksgiving!

Along about an hour before noon today, seven representatives of the Boston metropolitan district will climb aboard two Skyways airplanes and fly down to the company's resident flying school at Marston's Mills, on the Cape.

The reason for it all is that the company wants to show a bit of appreciation for the work done for the outfit by the air writers of our daily papers. And also to show off the school down there, taking in every angle of it, including dormitories, shops, hangars and planes.

This whole show has been transferred from last Thursday, when everything, including the turkey, was snowed in. But, the boys, I mean the newspaper boys, are smacking their chops about the feed, and flight, and a trip to the Cape.

Johnnie Haughey, treasurer of Skyways, stated that there would not be a thing left out of the party, and that everybody would be very happy before returning to Boston.

The boys who will make the trip include Dan Desmond of the Transcript; Joe Toye of the Traveler, Frank Collier, Jr., of the Sunday Advertiser; Harry Hurd of the Monitor; Arthur Stratton, of the Sunday Herald; Joe Linneen, of the Globe, and the writer.

When this gang gets at Mr. Turkey, it will be just too bad for him, and we didn't say perchance, either.

Charlie Emerson or Crocker Snow will pilot the company's Bellanca cabin monoplane, and Olcott Payson will be at the controls of his own whirlwind-motored Stearman. Although the distance is about 90 miles, and is a long, tedious ride in an automobile, the hop will over will be made in about 35 minutes, and the squadron will land at the Cape Cod airport just in time to have the justly famous "lurk" brought on for the feast.

The idea of these parties is a good one, and we hope the rest of the companies will fall in line with Skyways, and give the boys a bit of food every now and then.

Charlie Arnold, who is down in North Carolina getting his way South for the winter with a brand new Day-Standard, reports that he is using a field 750 feet long and 40 feet wide, carrying four passengers a crack, and feeling supremely confident because he has a Standard and a Whirlwind out front.

This chap who is called the "King of New England barnstormers," states that the Reliable Flying Service, of Watertown, Conn., which outfit owns the ship he is flying, has furnished him with a flivver truck, two parachute jumpers, two mechanics and an advance man.

When we last saw Charlie, he was on his way to the Southland, and went around New England, saying good-bye to the gang here, and wishing that they could join him in his winter's quarters in Miami. So there he is, barging along as usual, and cutting a Ford tri-motor out of the running, as he goes. When he is working on a ship, the Ford can't do a thing, so he says, and that means that he has still the knack of giving people rides that they like.

The dedication of the East Coast Aircraft Corporation's new building at the Boston Municipal Airport has been set for Saturday, Dec. 7, according to Frank Tefft, sales manager for the company.

Fred Anes, the company's president, is on his way back from Wichita, Kansas, where he lined up Walter Beach, head of the Travel Air Company, for a visit to Boston on the day of the big time.

Practically all of the officials of the Wright Aeronautical Co., of Paterson, N. J., makers of the famous Wright Whirlwind motor, will be on deck, making the trip in that outfit's tri-motored Ford.

Keystone-Loening company officials will also report on the day, and lend their hands to the dedication. This company makes the Keystone-Loening amphibians, for which East Coast is New England distributor.

So, all in all, when the day arrives, there will be plenty dignitaries on hand for the first dedication of any new building on the airport.

Charlie Emerson, diminutive chief pilot of Skyways, had the honor of soloing Mrs. Eleonora Spear, daughter of Senator Spear, of Maine. Miss Spear has been taking time from her father's pilot, Charlie Treat, but it remained for Charlie Emerson to take her up in a Moth a couple of times, and have her show him how she could fly.

Several landings were made, and then Miss Treat joined the pilot's or rather, near-pilot's class. It takes a lot more than one solo of five minutes to become a pilot. And how!

Don't eat too much tomorrow.

Punches Friend of Wife; Is Fined $15

Brockton, Nov. 27—After hitting a friend of his wife in the jaw so hard that he broke the friend's false teeth, George C. Stetson of Florence at, this city, an insurance man, pleaded guilty to the assault charge and paid a fine of $15 in district court here.

The complainant in the case was Frank C. Drake, 45, of this city, who said he was at the Stetson home at the invitation of Mrs. Stetson. He admitted C. being there four or five nights a week at her invitation, and said he would continue to go there as long as Mrs. Stetson invited him.

The punch in the jaw, testimony showed, came after some talk between Mr. and Mrs. Stetson, in which Mr. Stetson objected to Drake being in the house so much.

Armed Bandits Fly Away With Plane

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 27—Somewhere along the nation's airways is the monoplane of Bart Stephenson, stolen by the country's first sky bandits.

The plane had been serviced here after L. W. Coghill, airport attendant, received a telephone call supposedly from Stephenson, Kansas City flier. Coghill put enough fuel and oil in its tanks to fly 500 miles and warmed up the motor.

Two masked men appeared, threatened the attendant with pistols, bound him and left him in the hangar. Then they entered the cockpit and soared away to the north.

May Buy Mayflower for N. Y. Receptions

New York, Nov. 27—Mayor Walker confirmed reports that several of his friends were considering the purchase of the presidential yacht Mayflower for the purpose of giving it to New York city for its official reception yacht.

The mayor said, however, that "nothing tangible" had developed.

Thanksgiving

Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits.—Ps. 103:2.

GOD'S benefits!

If you have difficulty tomorrow in calling to mind a FEW of them—no man can number the blessings of the Most High—picture the conditions which faced the Pilgrims, 308 years ago, on the FIRST Thanksgiving.

Survivors of the party which had landed from the Mayflower on the previous December, after journeying four months over seemingly endless seas, they numbered 55.

During their first hard winter they must have thought more than once that they were near to the end of things.

Illness laid HEAVY hand upon them. At one time, all but six were incapacitated.

They built a "common house," for the sick, and they constructed the two rows of tiny dwellings into which they moved early in March.

One month later they began their planting, 20 acres to corn, 6 acres to barley and peas.

Nearly one-half of the party died. Most of the survivors were new to farming.

Never was field watched so anxiously as this, and when, at last, October brought bountiful harvest, Bradford proclaimed a three-day celebration of Thanksgiving.

As WE estimate values, they had nothing. No automobiles, no highways, no railroad, no college, no theater, no newspaper, no radio, no library, NOTHING—except dauntless courage and sublime faith.

Caught as we are in the pursuit of things, we nevertheless are lost in admiration of THEIR courage and the faith it was built upon.

Every year we are called upon at this season by the Chief Magistrate of the Nation to emulate the example of that little group and, gathering in our "accustomed places of worship," acknowledge OUR indebtedness.

Some may say, truthfully, that the year has NOT been very good to them, but let no man suppose that HE has a monopoly on trouble. "The heart knoweth HIS OWN bitterness."

Others may object, foolishly, that in these days none except the rich man has CAUSE to be grateful. These do not know, perhaps, that riches often bring loneliness.

If you have one friend—is any of us so poor that he has not one friend?—be thankful for your wealth of friendship.

But most of us enjoy so MANY blessings that we come in time to take them for granted, and never THINK of being thankful.

Health, children, parents, wife or husband—begin thus and add the conveniences and privileges common now but about which the Pilgrims knew nothing, and you will find your list to be almost endless.

Give thought to these things, tomorrow. Think how favored the Nation has been, how fortunate we of New England. And remember the one leper who returned, of the ten who were cured, and how HE received an additional blessing for BEING thankful.

Rescuing the Family Pet

By T. E. Powers

Death Calls for Comedian

IT is a duller world for the passing as it was a brighter for the coming of Raymond Hitchcock, beloved comedian of the American and the international stage.

There may be others to attempt but none to perform as he performed in "Hitchy Koo," "The Yankee Consul," "Old Soak," "The Man Who Owns Broadway" and many other successes.

His was the merriment that set the theater in a roar and with laughter of such healthy, wholesome kind its echoes could be taken home and recalled in any company.

His genial mirth was of the man himself and not a thing apart. It was no merely antic disposition reserved for the footlights, but a native, natural humor as joyous in private as in public life. No painters have chosen him as subject for a study of the proverbially sad comedian.

HE WAS SOMETIMES SICK BUT NEVER SAD. UP TO THE VERY MOMENT OF THE FINAL CALL HE WAS IN JOVIAL SPIRITS AND HIS LAST WORDS WERE MUTTERED IN THE KEY OF KINDLY JEST.

His friends were legion and they multiplied with every performance. They became his friends the moment it was realized that the man and the comedian were one and the same lover of life and all that love to live it.

Raymond Hitchcock has passed on, but he leaves behind a long, long trail of some of the happiest memories associated with the stage of his time. He was both light and lightness, and unique in his faculty for entertaining the public.

The world owes much—much more than it sometimes acknowledges—to its great comedians. They are the lamps that lighten the dull moments of life and that dispel its gloom with their mirth and merriment. Of such noble company Raymond Hitchcock was a distinguished member.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

SECRETARY ANDREW MELLON reduces the income tax. That's good news if you have an income.

The gorgeous details arrive after Wall Street has busted everybody flatter than a sick oyster.

League of Nations refuses Mr. Hoover a offer of food ships. They're afraid one of them might reach Wall Street.

Last year we were as optimistic as a corn doctor during the Victorian era. Now, we are breathing on mirrors to see if we are still alive.

This is strictly a hot and cold public. If it ain't the fever, it's the chills.

Considering the elusiveness of a needle in a haystack, it's marvelous how often we get stabbed by it.

We haven't felt humanized since the panic joined us. If Mr. Hoover ever gets that foodship idea over, we want the job of head taster.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., offered to buy a million shares of Standard Oil at 50. But he's only 48 now.

After this we buy our stocks outright and hold them until they fester.

Grabbing on margin is as healthy as clinging to a buttered cornice.

Centuries ago, Omar wanted to know about the inverted bowl people called the ticker. We have been a ticker tape worm for six months.

We cannot yet understand how they got such bad news on such a narrow piece of paper.

However, we are through speculating. From now on we stick to hoss racing, dice and contract bridge.

Who got the gray? They say a man up in Boston made five million selling short. We don't even know what that means. All we know is that the Government is changing the glue on postage stamps because the old flavor was getting to be habit-forming.

Morgan and Rockefeller now own all the stock certificates. Twenty million people were in Wall Street. It was the biggest blindfold test ever made on a borrowed cigarette.

This is a very prosperous nation if you have anything to prove it. But we ain't even interested in the book value of Carnegie library.

Well, we're off again to a new start like an old shirt that has left its buttons in the mangle. We have our health, the Rocky Mountains and the Great Lakes. And the hoss-car lines still have their charters.

H. G. Wells Writes on

"The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

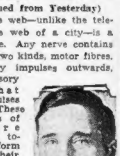
FOR the web—unlike the telephone web of a city—is a double one. Any nerve contains fibres of two kinds, motor fibres, that carry impulses outwards, and sensory fibres, that bring impulses inwards. These two kinds of fibres are bound up together to form nerves, their structure is similar and the physical nature of their impulses is similar, but they differ in the direction in which the impulses travel and in the origins, destinations and functional meanings of these impulses.



H. G. Wells

The sense-organs, the intelligence agents, by which the sensory nerve fibres end, are of many and various kinds. There are sense-organs scattered about in the muscles, in the joints and indeed in every tissue of our bodies, reporting the state of affairs there. So the central government is informed of the positions and movements of our limbs and sometimes, when there is discontent in the thorax or abdomen, it feels hunger or indigestion.

These sense-organs, which watch and report on the other tissues, may be called internal sense-organs.

Contrasting with the internal sense-organ there is a second sort of sense-organ which takes note of circumstances external to the body state.

This second group, the external sense-organs, may be further divided into two; there are some, such as the organs of feeling and taste, that report on objects and events in the immediate neighborhood of our bodies, and there are others, the organs of sight, hearing and smell, by means of which the central nervous system is informed of more distant events.

Let us consider the structure and working of a very simple contact sense-organ, a hair. Our hairs feel. If a match is pressed against one of the fine hairs on the back of the hand we feel a tickling, and that is one of the most sensitive forms of touch.

A hair is a more or less cylindrical rod of horny dead cells; it arises from and it grows by a supply of fresh cells from a "root" lying fairly deep in the skin; it runs to the surface along a special tube, the "hair-follicle," and then projects into the outer world. The tube of the follicle does not fit tight, and near where it opens to the exterior there is a little belt of branching nerve-fibres which end in swollen blobs.

Now since the hair is loose in its tube, the slightest touch or push upon it tickles these swollen blobs and at once an impulse goes off towards the nervous centers.

This impulse says nothing explicit. It is, so to speak, a rap—nothing more.

If, for example, an impulse comes along a fibre that supplies a hair-follicle, it is led to a center which interprets it as a sensation of touch, and if it comes along a fibre from the sensitive layer of the eye, it is led to another center which interprets it as a sensation of light.

A point of general interest is that if the pressure upon that very simple sense-organ the hair is sustained, the stream of messages soon dies away in the nerve. Nervous impulses generally result from a change of conditions; permanent conditions do not go on producing them. The desirability of that is evident.

The impulses traveling along the optic nerve are more like this, a dying report: "everything quiet—quiet—quiet—quiet." lifting suddenly to an arresting announcement — "hello! something moving there on the right!"

With all the sense-organs that produce precise sensations, a constant unvarying stimulus has little effect, but a change sets the impulses storming. Our skins are meant to feel not temperature but changes in temperature.

PAIN, TEMPERATURE AND TOUCH

THE skin is able to feel four different kinds of sensation —warmth, cold, pain and "touch" or deformation of the surface.

If we dab about on the skin with the point of a warm pin, we find that the warmth can only be felt at scattered points; there are warm-sensitive areas with intervening areas where warmth is not perceived. Similarly with a cold pin; the sense of cold is restricted to definite areas. Now the warm-sensitive areas and the cold-sensitive do not correspond with each other.

Some points are sensitive to warmth and not to cold, some to neither. Therefore there must be two distinct kinds of sense-organ, one for the warmth sensation and one for the cold sensation.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, my daughter, the heart of a woman accordeth not always with her judgment; but in one thing they are agreed. That a good husband and a perfect lover are not always identical.

Go to. A woman may endure many failings in a husband, that she would not abide in a lover. For, a husband is a matter of personal preference, even as the light and the dark meat of the turkey.

But the Perfect Lover hath been standardized. Yea, in all things, he is authentic! He runneth true to TYPE

And, whether she be damsel or matron, blonde or brunette, high brow or frivolous, every woman carryeth the same Ideal in her heart.

Behold, the way of the Model Lover is strewn with conquests and garlands and flatteries and dinner invitations. For, whether he be brilliant or subtle, plain or pulchritudinous, ascetic, or athletic, he possesseth the Winning Manner, which is the pass-key to the heart of all women.

Lo, he remembereth a woman's preferences and forgetteth not her pet abominations. He is more quick to divine her wishes than a head butler and more thoughtful for her comfort than a trained nurse. But Dear considereth first his own CONVENIENCE.

The Perfect Lover flattereth every woman with his eyes, but only one woman at a time with his lips. All his compliments are definite. For he knoweth that a woman prefereth an itemized account of her charms to glittering generalities.

But a novice feedeth all women the same brand of applesauce, and springeth his "line" at the first opening.

The Model Lover heareneth unto a woman's words and greeteth her opinions with gravity and her wit with applause. But a bungler seeketh to dazzle her with wise cracks and repartee. He delighteth in his own voice. He is 20 clever.

When he escorteth her upon the street, the Perfect Lover is more gallant than a doorman and more protecting than a policeman on a busy corner. But an amateur saith, "Hurry up!"

The Perfect Lover is full of tenderness, and the impetuosity of the caveman is not IN him. For he knoweth that a woman, like unto a kitten, prefereth gentle stroking to a crushing caress.

Verily, so subtle are his ways that, though there be seven times seven women present, each woman shall think in her heart, "LO, I am IT!"

And no woman whom he hath once loved shall ever forget him. For, she that hath known one Perfect Lover in a world full of tyres is indeed to be envied amongst women! SELAH.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—No place is so gay in summer and drear in winter as Coney Island. Like a bear, it goes into winter hibernation in late September and has the forlorn futility of a deserted mining camp. On the depopulated streets are seen only caretakers and night watchmen.

There is something eerie about the gaunt skeletons of myriad merry-making devices—the loop-the-loop, the roller coaster, the spidery ferris wheel and dips of death. Acres of dead light bulbs stand out like so many eyeless sockets. And always one hears the sad, monotonous pounding of the surf.

Surf avenue is, during the season, the gaudiest thoroughfare in the world. A million people drift through it on a Fourth of July holiday. But with the arrival of the melancholy days it becomes dull and coated with a thin mist—gray and ghostly.

These little shacks devoted to ring-the-cane and prize pitch games are tightly shuttered. Candy pulling machines, pop corn ovens and mechanical drink mixers are stilled. Ghastly figures stressing social ills in wax museums are sheeted and doors are padlocked.

Merry-go-rounds have been shorn of their brightly gilded chargers and mechanical orchestras are swathed in tarpaulin. Freak show banners, faded and whipped by wind and rain, are flopping strips. Left over dogs roam in packs and howl at night.

Hundreds of "grease joints," or hot dog stands, are stark in emptiness. Sooth show platforms applied high in front of the Steeplechase. The concessionaires, like birds, have winged to warmer climes to await the reopening of the showman's paradise.

Nearly all the tiny bungalows are closed although there are a sprinkling of faithful followers who remain in Coney in all seasons. Some of these are the museum "exhibits" who do not care to travel and who find Coney a pleasant cloister during the off season.

In the past year eight badly wanted fugitives have been tapped on the shoulders by detectives while writing messages at telegraph office counters. In all crime hunts a close check up is made of such places. Nearly always the guilty will send cryptic messages to associates for funds.

Three of the new types of Broadway bad men, tabloided as "holding gangland in terror," were pointed out recently. They were as sartorially brisk as a super bond salesman and one could not help but notice their carefully manicured hands. And I wonder what Bat Masterson would think!

The new "bad men" often come from not only prosaic but respectable callings. The fabled easy money breaks down their moral stamina. They are willing to chance the inevitable end—prison or assassination—for a dip into quick profits.

I am told reliably that a certain rich New Yorker has what he calls a "jewelry valet." His duties are concerned solely in keeping his various watches wound and in order, selecting scarf pins, shirt studs, cuff links cigarette cases and pocket lighters. This, along with the Park avenue lady who had three chauffeurs on daily duty and two at night, offers a new high in luxury.

And I wonder if there are others who study the desserts on a French menu carefully and then invariably order vanilla ice cream.

Kin Hubbard observes that President Hoover holds a baby as he would a Roman candle.

From Stuttgart, Ark.: "I can imitate a pelican, a tree frog, water fowl, a nanny goat, a mountain cougar, a peacock and a squealing pig."

Do you mean purposely?

Miniature Solar System

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

NOWADAYS we have all become accustomed, without very well understanding why, to the idea that an atom is a miniature solar system. At the centre of the atom is the nucleus, and around this nucleus the swarm of electrons revolve in simple or complicated orbits.

In the case of all atoms, it is easy to recognize that the mass of the nucleus, for all practical purposes, is the mass of the atom. Indeed, the individual electrons are too light and insubstantial to affect appreciably the total mass of the atom.

What the physicist was particularly interested in was the all-important question: What is the magnitude of the positive charge of the nucleus?

LET us stop a moment and consider carefully just what this means. Actually it means determining the number of electrons surrounding the nucleus in the normal or neutral state of the atom. For the number of electrons, which are negative, circulating about the nucleus, which is positive, must in order to preserve the neutral state of the atom, be equal to the number of not positive charges in the nucleus.

In his earlier investigations, Sir Ernest Rutherford was inclined to believe that the nuclear charge was one-half the atomic weight from observations on alpha particles.

For instance, in a very simple case, he showed that a helium atom, when expelled as an alpha particle, carries a positive charge of two units; and since there is strong ground for believing that an alpha particle is a helium nucleus deprived of its electrons, it follows that the electronic system of the neutral helium atom consists of two electrons.

HERE, the number of electrons (two) is one-half the atomic weight of helium, which is four. This "law," however, was found to be only an approximation; and was soon displaced by the brilliant idea advanced in 1913 by a Dutch physicist, Van der Brock, that the number of electrons in the atom of an element is equal to its atomic number.

The real solution of the puzzle came when the young British physicist, Moseley, demonstrated that the atomic number of an element is a measure of its nuclear charge.

This discovery was of fundamental importance, since it not only fixes the number of electrons in all the atoms, but shows conclusively that the properties of an atom are determined, not only by its atomic weight but by its nuclear charge.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

THE roar and rumble of the city's streets,
The crash and clatter of a world, man-made:
How endlessly, how cruel sound beats
Till senses weary, nerves grow worn and frayed!
Strange faces, faces, faces passing by,
An instant glimpsed and then forever gone,
No gleam of greeting there in any eye,
No smiling lips; strange faces passing on.

Then refuge and release! A closing door
That shuts away each vague and careless glance,
That dulls the echoes of the city's roar
And bars unfriendly act or circumstance.
Toil, envy, dark distrust and falling night,
So much it shuts away; but more, ah, more,
The things it keeps within! Love, laughter, light
In tender eyes it guards, a closing door!

Words of the Wise Men

Men often deceive; but gentle maidens not often. —Ovid.

There is no higher law than the Constitution. —Seward.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever. —Keats.

To great poets there is no need of a gentle reader; they hold him captive, however unwilling and unmanageable. —Ovid.

The religions of the world are the ejaculations of a few imaginative men. —Emerson.

The biography of poets must be sought in their works; there are to be found their most confidential confessions. —Heine.

It is a strange desire to seek power and to lose liberty. —Bacon.

It is in general more profitable to reckon up our defects than to boast of our attainments. —Cato.
